

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
-------------------------	-----

Notes on Contributors	ix
------------------------------	----

Part I Debates and Transitions

1 Production Research: Continuity and Transformation Chris Paterson, David Lee, Anamik Saha, and Anna Zoellner	3
2 On the Vagaries of Production Research Philip Schlesinger	20
3 The Importance of Time in Media Production Research David M. Ryfe	38

Part II Theory and Research

4 Field Theory and Media Production: A Bridge-Building Strategy Ida Willig	53
5 Studying News Production: From Process to Meanings Daniel A. Berkowitz and Zhengjia Liu	68
6 News Media Ecosystems and Population Dynamics: A Cross-Cultural Analysis Wilson Lowrey and Elina Erzikova	79
7 Micro vs. Macro: A Reflection on the Potentials of Field Analysis Tore Slaatta	95

Part III Matters of Method

8 Applying Grounded Theory in Media Production Studies Astrid Gynnild	115
9 The Qualitative Interview in Media Production Studies Hanne Bruun	131

10	When You Can't Rely on Public or Private: Using the Ethnographic Self as Resource Michael B. Munnik	147
11	Investigating the Backstage of Newswriting with Process Analysis Daniel Perrin	161
Part IV Beyond the Newsroom
12	From 'Poetics' to 'Production': Genres as Active Ingredients in Media Production Ana Alacovska	181
13	Production Studies and Documentary Participants: A Method Willemien Sanders	200
14	A Cultural Biography of Application Software Frederik Lesage	217
	Epilogue C.W. Anderson	233
	Index	237