Contents

Preface

Introduction

Xi

xiii

	AHI
1.	Intro	e Behaviorist Approach and the Chomskyan Revolution duction 3	3
	1.1	The Insufficiencies of an S-R Account 3
	1.2	The Transformationalist Stance 8
	1.3	Wanted: A Learning Approach 11
2.	Th	e Methodological Status of Chomsky's Rationalism	18
	Intro	duction 18
	2.1	The Rationalist Research Program 20
	2.2	Chomsky's Upper Bound 21
	2.3	Chomsky's Lower Bound 24
	2.4	Rationalist Pastimes 26
	2.5	A Viable Research Program 28
	2.6	The Rationalist as Prophet of Doom 30
3	. Th	e Semantic Approach	43
	Intro	duction 43
	3.1	Motivations for the Semantic Approach 44
	3.2	I-Markers and Relation Rules: 1971 46
	3.3	Support for the Semantic Approach 58
	3.4	The Origin and Nature of I-Marker Relations: 1974 60
	3.5	The Origin and Nature of I-Marker Relations: Postscript 1979	75
	3.6	The Problem of Missing Constituents 80

7.3 Steps in the Acquisition of Relation Rules

7.5 Formation of Relational Categories 198 7.6 The Scope of Early Relational Categories 7.7 Individual Differences in the Acquisition Process

219 8.2 Utterances Resulting from More Than One Relation Rule

195

250

7.4 Active and Passive Learning

8. The Developments of Relation Rules

218

8.3 The Hierarchical Structure of I-Markers 8.4 Alternative Sets of Relation Rules

Introduction

8.1 Word Classes

4. Cognitive Development and Linguistic Input  Introduction 88 4.1 Cognitive Determinism 90 4.2 The Categorization Problem 91 4.3 The Linguistic Input Hypothesis 95 4.4 The Interpretation Problem 97 4.5 An Integrated Approach 102 Conclusion 103  PART II  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321  Subject Index 321
4. Cognitive Development and Linguistic Input  Introduction 88 4.1 Cognitive Determinism 90 4.2 The Categorization Problem 91 4.3 The Linguistic Input Hypothesis 95 4.4 The Interpretation Problem 97 4.5 An Integrated Approach 102 Conclusion 103  PART II  9. Toward an Adult System Introduction 260 9.1 Relational Categories in the Adult System 261 9.2 I-Marker Frames and Specifications 266 9.3 Lexically Based Semantic Assimilation 269 9.4 Semantic Assimilation That Is Not Lexically Based 278 9.5 Cognitive Structures and I-Markers 285 9.6 Meaning Rules 293 9.7 The Problem of Lexical Decomposition 300  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321	WIII CONTENTS	CONTENT
Introduction 88 4.1 Cognitive Determinism 90 4.2 The Categorization Problem 91 4.3 The Linguistic Input Hypothesis 95 4.4 The Interpretation Problem 97 4.5 An Integrated Approach 102 Conclusion 103  PART II  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321  Introduction 260  9.1 Relational Categories in the Adult System 261 9.2 I-Marker Frames and Specifications 266 9.3 Lexically Based Semantic Assimilation 269 9.4 Semantic Assimilation That Is Not Lexically Based 278 9.5 Cognitive Structures and I-Markers 285 9.6 Meaning Rules 293 9.7 The Problem of Lexical Decomposition 300  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321	VIII CONTENTS	A. I. M. Counterer
Introduction 88 4.1 Cognitive Determinism 90 4.2 The Categorization Problem 91 4.3 The Linguistic Input Hypothesis 95 4.4 The Interpretation Problem 97 4.5 An Integrated Approach 102 Conclusion 103  PART II  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321  Introduction 260 9.1 Relational Categories in the Adult System 261 9.2 I-Marker Frames and Specifications 266 9.3 Lexically Based Semantic Assimilation 269 9.4 Semantic Assimilation That Is Not Lexically Based 278 9.5 Cognitive Structures and I-Markers 285 9.6 Meaning Rules 293 9.7 The Problem of Lexical Decomposition 300  Author Index 315  Subject Index 321	4 Cognitive Development and Linguistic Input 88	9. Toward an Adult System
5. Acquisition of Words: The First Steps Introduction 108 5.1 Referent Pairing 110	Introduction 88 4.1 Cognitive Determinism 90 4.2 The Categorization Problem 91 145 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64 64	9.1 Relational Categories in the Adult System 261 9.2 I-Marker Frames and Specifications 266 9.3 Lexically Based Semantic Assimilation 269 9.4 Semantic Assimilation That Is Not Lexically Based 278 9.5 Cognitive Structures and I-Markers 285 9.6 Meaning Rules 293
Introduction 108 5.1 Referent Pairing 110	PART II	Author Index 315
Introduction 108 5.1 Referent Pairing 110	5. Acquisition of Words: The First Steps	Subject Index 321
	Introduction 108	Subject much 32.1
5.2 Initial Generalization 113
	5.2 Initial Generalization 113
5.3 Categorization 115
5.4 Protoverbal Elements 122	5.4 Protoverbal Elements 122
5.5 A Comparison with Other Approaches 130
5.6 The Problem of Prelinguistic Concepts 136	5.6 The Problem of Prelinguistic Concepts 136
6. The Acquisition of Words: Further Steps 151	6. The Acquisition of Words: Further Steps
Introduction 151	Introduction 151
6.1 Pairing Mechanisms 151	6.1 Pairing Mechanisms 151
6.2 The Progress of Categorization 156	6.2 The Progress of Categorization 156
6.3 Context-Dependent Word Meanings 164	6.3 Context-Dependent Word Meanings 164
7. Acquisition of Relational Categories: The First Steps 170	7. Acquisition of Relational Categories: The First Steps 170
Introduction 170	Introduction 170
7.1 The Nature of Early Relation Rules 171
7.2 The Problem of the Origin of Relational Categories 176

218

260