

Contents

List of Figures, Tables and Boxes	x
About the Author	xii
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv
About the Companion Website	xvii
1 INTRODUCTION: GEOGRAPHERS AT THE BEACH	1
1.1 Before we get there: Introducing philosophy and theory	1
1.2 On arrival: What are we studying?	5
Exercise 1.1: Things not to do at the beach	11
1.3 Conclusion: -isms and geography	13
Exercise 1.2: Revising -isms	14
2 POSITIVISM: OR, ROUGHLY, WHAT YOU SEE IS THE KNOWLEDGE YOU GET	17
2.1 Introduction: Geography and 'science'	17
Exercise 2.1: What do you think of as 'science'?	17
Exercise 2.2: What does 'scientific' geography look like?	21
2.2 The positive philosophy of Auguste Comte	22
2.2.1 The development and organisation of knowledge	23
2.2.2 Method in the natural sciences and the foundation of 'social physics'	25
2.3 The Vienna Circle: Logical positivism	27
2.3.1 On language and meaning: Basic principles of logical positivism	28
Exercise 2.3: The verification principle of meaning in practice	30
2.4 Positivist geography and its critics	30
2.5 Positivism in practice	33
2.5.1 A spatial analysis of civil war	33
Exercise 2.4: Identifying some positivist characteristics in physical geography research	35
2.6 Positivism at the beach	36
2.7 Positivism in summary	37

3 CRITICAL RATIONALISM: LEARNING FROM OUR MISTAKES	40
3.1 Popper's critical rationalism	40
3.1.1 The problem of demarcation	41
3.1.2 The problem of induction	42
3.1.3 Deductive falsification of theories	42
3.1.4 Science's social dimension	45
3.2 Critical rationalism in practice	45
3.2.1 Effects of beaver dams on stream ecosystem	46
3.2.2 The myth of Martin Luther King Street	48
Exercise 3.1: Ethnic diversity and social trust in urban neighbourhoods	50
3.3 Critical rationalism at the beach	51
3.4 Critical rationalism's place in geography	52
3.5 Criticisms of critical rationalism	53
3.5.1 The problem of identifying the source of error	54
3.5.2 The problem of theory preference	55
3.5.3 The problem of what constitutes a 'severe test'	57
3.5.4 The social nature of scientific practice	59
3.6 Critical rationalism in summary	59
 4 MARXISM AND CRITICAL REALISM: SEEKING WHAT LIES BENEATH	 61
4.1 Marxism	62
4.2 Marxism in geography	65
4.2.1 The globalisation of wine production	68
Exercise 4.1: The political economy of aggregates extraction: 'Pits, quarries and climate change'	70
4.3 Critical realism	70
4.3.1 Transcendental realism: Understanding science	71
4.3.2 Critical naturalism: A cautious application of natural science methods to social science	73
4.4 Critical realist geographies	75
4.5 Critical realism in practice	75
4.5.1 Violation of national pesticide regulations in the global food chain	76
4.6 Marxism and critical realism at the beach	79
4.7 Some criticisms	81
4.8 Marxism and critical realism in summary	82

5 PHENOMENOLOGY AND POST-PHENOMENOLOGY: THE ESSENCE OF EXPERIENCE, OR, SEEING A SHARK IS DIFFERENT FROM SEEING A DOLPHIN	85
5.1 Introducing phenomenology	86
5.1.1 Beginning with Husserl's phenomenology	87
5.1.2 Variations in phenomenology: Husserl, Heidegger, Sartre and Merleau-Ponty	89
5.2 Phenomenology and humanistic geography of the 1970s	92
5.2.1 Methods in humanistic geography	93
5.3 A more recent return to experience	95
5.3.1 Actor Network Theory (ANT)	95
5.3.2 Non-representational theories	98
Exercise 5.1: Researching the materialities of sugar-cane fields	103
5.4 Phenomenology, or post-phenomenology, at the beach	103
5.5 Phenomenology and post-phenomenology in summary	104
6 SOCIAL CONSTRUCTIONISM AND FEMINISM: IT'S ALL DOWN TO US	106
6.1 Introducing social constructionism	108
6.1.1 How are things socially constructed?	108
6.1.2 Social constructionism in geography	110
6.1.3 The social construction of academic knowledge	111
6.2 Feminism	115
6.2.1 Some starting points	115
6.2.2 Feminism and geography	117
Exercise 6.1: Gender in your local context	119
6.2.3 Feminist geographies	120
6.2.4 Feminist geographies in practice	126
Exercise 6.2: Where is the 'global city'?	127
6.3 Feminism at the beach	128
6.4 Social constructionism and feminism in summary	128
7 STRUCTURALISM, POSTSTRUCTURALISM AND POSTMODERNISM: LIFE AT THE SURFACE	131
7.1 Structuralism: A useful departure point	132
7.2 Poststructuralism	134
7.2.1 Derrida: Difference and deconstruction	135
7.2.2 Foucault: Connecting knowledge with power	136

Exercise 7.1: The model prison	138
Exercise 7.2: Self-regulation according to norms	139
Exercise 7.3: National identity on the Fourth Plinth	141
7.3 Postmodernism	142
7.3.1 Postmodernism as style	142
7.3.2 Postmodernism as epoch	144
7.3.3 Postmodernist theory and method	146
7.4 Poststructuralism and postmodernism in geography	149
7.4.1 Rapa Nui/Easter Island: A postmodern analysis of a postmodern place?	150
7.4.2 Discipline and control in the classroom	151
7.4.3 Beyond poststructuralism and postmodernism	153
7.5 Postmodernism and poststructuralism at the beach	153
7.6 Structuralism, poststructuralism and postmodernism in summary	154
8 COMPLEXITY THEORY: FROM BUTTERFLY WINGS TO FAIRY RINGS	158
8.1 Introducing complexity: Emergence and interdependence	158
Exercise 8.1: Emergence and interdependence in action	160
8.2 Key ideas	161
8.2.1 Chaos	161
8.2.2 Path dependence	163
8.2.3 Attractors	165
8.2.4 Self-organisation and self-organised criticality	167
8.2.5 Fractals	170
Exercise 8.2: Measuring the coast	172
8.2.6 Implications of complexity	173
8.3 Researching complexity	174
8.3.1 Initial description or identification of complexity	176
8.3.2 Analysing the consequences of a model	177
8.3.3 Testing models against empirical data	179
Exercise 8.3: Characterising the rate of deforestation	183
8.4 Complexity at the beach	183
8.5 Complexity theory in summary	184
9 MORAL PHILOSOPHY AND ETHICS: RIGHT AND WRONG IN GEOGRAPHY	188
9.1 Introduction: Understanding ethics	188
9.1.1 Aristotle's virtue ethics	189
Exercise 9.1a: What would a virtuous person do?	189
9.1.2 Kant's deontological ethics	190

Exercise 9.1b: What are the motivations?	191
9.1.3 Bentham's utilitarian ethics	191
Exercise 9.1c: What are the consequences?	191
9.1.4 Feminist ethics of care	191
Exercise 9.1d: What would a caring person do?	192
9.2 Ethics and geography	193
9.2.1 Universality versus particularity: Normativity versus difference	195
9.2.2 How far should our moral concerns extend?	197
9.3 Ethics and geographical research	200
9.3.1 Research integrity and research ethics	200
9.3.2 Research and society	203
9.4 Moral philosophy and ethics in summary	204
10 THINKING, DOING, CONSTRUCTING GEOGRAPHY	208
10.1 Back to the beach! A summary of philosophies and theories in methodological terms	208
10.2 Some thoughts on human geography and physical geography	211
10.2.1 Ontological and epistemological differences	212
10.2.2 A socially constructed 'divide'	214
10.2.3 Is this the geography we need?	215
Glossary	219
References	229
Index	252