

Contents

List of figures	xiii
List of tables	xiv
List of boxes	xv
About the authors	xvii
Acknowledgements	xix
1 Introduction to political marketing	1
JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT
The basic components of political marketing	2
Political goals	2
The political market	3
The political product	3
Political marketing functional tools	5
Political marketing approaches	6
Why marketing, communication and politics students should study political marketing	8
Researching and teaching political marketing	11
Political marketing and the disciplines of political science, communication and marketing	11
Political marketing research philosophy: Pragmatism	12
Barriers to researching and teaching political marketing	13
Summary	14
Discussion points	15
Assessment questions	15
References	15
2 Political strategy	17
BRIAN CONLEY AND JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT
Targeting	18
Positioning strategies	20
Market- and sales-oriented strategies	25
Incomplete and short-lived market-oriented parties	31
Critiques of the Lees-Marshment Market-Oriented Party Model	32
The Market-Oriented Politics Model applied to institutions	32
Populist strategies	33
Strategy and the environment	35

Measuring political strategy	36
Implementing political strategy	37
Factors that hinder strategy implementation	37
Positive influences that aid strategy	38
Political strategy in the workplace	40
Summary	42
Discussion points	43
Assessment questions	43
Case Study 2.1 The failure of Blairism and the limits of market-orientation, by Aditya Tejas	44
Democratic Debate 2.1 A divided nation – a consequence of exaggerated marketing? The case of the Czech Republic, by Otto Eibl	46
References	49

3 Political market research

ANDRÉ TURCOTTE AND JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

Context: The political market and the political consumer	54
The decline in traditional patterns of political behaviour	54
Political consumerism	55
Political consumer behaviour	56
Political market research tools	57
Quantitative research	58
Segmenting and profiling the market	59
Data analytics	62
Limitations of micro-targeting	63
Qualitative research	64
Focus groups	64
Co-creation and deliberative market research	65
Other political market research tools	67
Informal low-cost political market research	67
Opposition research	67
How political market research is used	69
Limitations to the influence of political market research	70
PMR in the workplace	71
Summary	72
Discussion points	74
Assessment questions	74
Case Study 3.1 Big data analytics, technology, electoral choice and political marketing in 2017 Kenyan elections, by Bozo Jenje Bozo	75
Case Study 3.2 Little data: Using social media to gain market research and inform campaign strategy at local government level, by Nicholas Mignacca	78
Democratic Debate 3.1 The ethical issues around big data in politics, by Jennifer Lees-Marshment, Edward Elder and Vincent Raynauld	80
References	82

4 Political branding86

JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

- Core principles of effective political brands and brand equity* 87
- Branding political leaders and candidates* 88
 - Political brand personality 89
 - Authenticity and integrating the candidate's own personality 90
 - Utilising party brand heritage 91
 - Communicating the leader and candidate brand 91
 - Associative political branding with refreshments and sports 92
 - Leader and candidate brand delivery 92
 - Differentiating the brand of deputy leaders 92
- Branding parties* 93
 - Principles of successful party branding 93
 - Party brand equity in campaigning and government 95
 - Party brand personality 97
 - Party brand consumer perception 97
 - Political branding and movements 98
- Policy, government and programme branding* 98
- Nation and city branding* 99
 - Challenges with nation and city branding 100
- Maintaining and rebranding political brands* 101
 - Decontaminating negative brands 101
 - Internal stakeholders and rebranding 102
 - Market-research-informed reconnecting in government 102
- Political branding in the workplace* 103
- Summary* 103
- Discussion points* 104
- Assessment questions* 105
- Case Study 4.1 The success of Brand Trudeau in 2015 through clear, consistent messaging at a time for change, by Amber Wharepapa* 106
- Case Study 4.2 The (half a) million-dollar slogan: Auckland Council's branding of Auckland City against Needham's criteria for successful brands, by Sophie Sager* 108
- Case Study 4.3 How to sell a U-turn to get re-elected: The case of Syriza from a political branding perspective, by Panos Koliastasis* 110
- Democratic Debate 4.1 Trump's political branding: Expanding the participation of an underserved market? by Kenneth M. Cosgrove* 112
- References* 114

5 Internal political marketing118

ROBIN PETTITT AND JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

- Marketing volunteers* 118
 - Understanding volunteer demands 120
 - Creating volunteer-friendly organisations 122
 - Communicating with volunteers 124
 - Viewing volunteers as part-time political marketers 125

Creating unity	129
Relationship marketing within political parties and campaigns	133
Fundraising	136
Managing political marketing staff and resources	138
Central versus local versus volunteer control	139
The dangers that supporters bring	140
Internal political marketing in the workplace	141
Summary	141
Discussion points	143
Assessment questions	143
Case Study 5.1 Who calls the shots? How centralising power improved NZ Labour's success at the 2017 election, by Heather du Plessis-Allan	145
References	147

6 Broadcast political marketing communication

152

VINCENT RAYNAULD AND JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

Marketing communication of candidates	153
Campaign communication	154
Research-led campaign communication	154
Market-oriented advertising	155
Insights marketing	156
Guerrilla marketing	157
Celebrity marketing	157
Communication tools	158
GOTV	158
Direct marketing	159
Targeted communication	161
Mobile/virtual marketing	163
Selling policy	163
Communicating change	165
Crisis management	166
Integrated marketing communications	167
Political marketing communications in the workplace	168
Summary	169
Discussion points	171
Assessment questions	172
Case Study 6.1 Targeting neglected voter groups online: The 2016 Hillary Clinton campaign and Americans with disabilities, by Filippo Trevisan and Robert Rodriguez-Donoso	174
Democratic Debate 6.1 Political consultants' ethics of conviction, by Miloš Gregor	176
References	178

7 Relational political marketing communication

183

EDWARD ELDER AND JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

E-marketing	183
Principles of effective e-marketing	183
Two-way and user-generated relational e-marketing	185

Participatory e-marketing	186
E-marketing by challengers and social movements	187
Public relations	189
Interactive and responsive leadership communication	192
Voter responsibility communication	197
Reputation management	197
Political marketing relational communications in the workplace	199
Communications advisors	199
Digital advisors	200
Public/community engagement officer	200
Government relations	200
Summary	201
Discussion points	202
Assessment questions	202
Case Study 7.1 Communicating contemporary market-oriented governing leadership: Justin Trudeau 2015–2017, by Danielle Parshotam and Edward Elder	203
Democratic Debate 7.1 The varied implications of relational political marketing communication, by Edward Elder	206
References	208
8 Political delivery marketing	211
JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT
Delivery challenges	212
The constraints of government	212
Political consumer perception of delivery	213
Pre-election delivery	214
Making precise promises or pledges	214
Connecting expectations to outcomes	216
Reassuring voters about the potential costs and benefits of proposed policies	216
Building a reputation for managing delivery	217
Communicating delivery challenges	217
Making delivery happen in power	217
Delivery relationships	217
Delivery units	218
Delivery by minority governments	218
Implementing policy	220
Managing problems in delivery	220
Communicating delivery progress and success	221
Good visuals	221
Delivering quick wins	221
Showing progress if not completion	222
Conveying the benefits of policies	222
Giving voters credit for delivery	222
Individualising delivery	223
Reminding voters of achievements and harvesting a reputation for delivery	223

Communicating delivery in coalition	224
Communicating mayoral and individual politicians' delivery	224
Political marketing delivery in the workplace	226
Summary	227
Discussion points	228
Assessment questions	229
Case Study 8.1 The importance of communicating delivery:
A case study of Justin Trudeau's government, by Hannah Lobb	230
Case Study 8.2 Delivering as the Mayor of Auckland: Phil Goff's
first year, by Ryan Mearns	232
Democratic Debate 8.1 Canada's Liberal Government as delivery
devotees, by Anna Esselment	235
References	237

9 Conclusion: Political marketing practice and ethics 240

JENNIFER LEES-MARSHMENT

Political marketing in practice	240
Strategising in practice	241
Researching in practice	243
Organising in practice	245
Communicating in practice	246
Political marketing and ethics	251
The ethical issues from political marketing, and potential rebuttal	251
Using political marketing unethically	251
Using political marketing ethically	254
Summary	256
Democratic Debate 9.1 The Brexit Referendum and the
limitations of consumer choice in political decisions,
by Paula Keaveney	257
Democratic Debate 9.2 Political marketing and unfair
competition in politics, by Arthur Beckman	259
References	261

Index