

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations and Boxes ix

Preface xiii

PART ONE: INTRODUCING PUBLIC OPINION 1

---

1 | The Meanings of Public Opinion 3

Why Study Public Opinion? 4

The Meaning of Public Opinion 11

Dimensions of Public Opinion 22

Which Meaning of Public Opinion Is Best? 23

2 | The History of Public Opinion 26

Why Does History Matter? 28

Pre-Enlightenment Philosophies of Public Opinion 29

Public Opinion in the Age of Revolution 35

Public Opinion Theories: The Late Nineteenth and Early Twentieth Centuries 40

The Social History of Public Opinion: Expression and Measurement 43

Pre-nineteenth-century Opinion Communication Techniques 46

3 | Methods for Studying Public Opinion 57

Survey Research: Aggregating Individual Opinions 57

Focus Groups: Using Group Dynamics to Measure Public Opinion 71

Experimental Methods and Opinion Research 75

Content Analysis of Mass Media: "Archives" of Public Opinion	81
Conclusion	84

PART TWO: THEORIES OF PUBLIC OPINION 87

---

4	Public Opinion and Democratic Theory	89
	Why Theories?	89
	Meanings and Mechanisms of Democracy	91
	Normative Theories of Democracy and the Problem of Democratic Competence	93
	Empirical Theories of Public Opinion and Policy	95
	Elements of Democratic Competence	99
	Conclusion	102
5	Psychological Perspectives on Public Opinion	105
	Speaking the Language: Beliefs, Values, Attitudes, and Opinions	105
	Early Theories of Attitude Formation and Change: The Legacies of Behaviorism	109
	Cognitive Processing: What Happens When People Think	113
	Consistency and Judgmental Theories: Attitudes Come in Packages	116
	Motivational Theories: Same Attitude, Different Reason	122
	Links Between Attitudes and Behavior: What People Think and What They Do	126
	Emotions and Attitudes	132
	Conclusion	133
6	Stereotyping, Social Norms, and Public Opinion	141
	Attribution Theory	142
	Stereotyping	143
	Social Norms	154
	Sociological Accounts of Opinion: Traces of In-Group Conformity?	165
	Conclusion	167

7	Perception and Opinion Formation	176
	The Limits of Perception	177
	Perception and Opinion: Socialization and Social Comparison	178
	Perception and Public Opinion Formation	182
	Public Opinion as a Social Process	199
	Conclusion and Implications for the Future	204
8	Economic Approaches	212
	Induction and Deduction	212
	Economic Explanations and Rational Choice Perspectives	213
	Rational Choice and Psychology	226
	Conclusion	230
PART THREE: PUBLIC OPINION IN CONTEXT		235
9	Content and Conflict in Public Opinion	237
	The Public's Level of Political Knowledge	238
	American Public Opinion: Consensus and Contestation	261
	Understanding American Attitudes about Race	272
	Conclusion	282
10	Public Opinion and Policymaking, Coauthored with Lawrence R. Jacobs	292
	Constraint, Impulsion, or Irrelevance?	293
	Testing Policy Responsiveness	295
	Changes and Variations in Responsiveness to Public Opinion	313
	Is Government Responsiveness to Public Opinion Democratic?	319
	Conclusion	322
11	Mass Media, Campaigning, and the Public	330
	Communication, Mass Media, and Public Opinion: Early Development and Perspectives	331
	Who Decides What the Media Present?	333

	The Effects of Mass Media on Public Opinion	337
	Reconsiderations of Media Effects	346
	Campaigning and Opinion Change	352
	Election Campaigns	359
	Conclusion: How Well Do the Media Serve Public Opinion?	373
12	Looking Ahead	385
	Index	389
	<hr/>
5	Psychological Perspectives on Public Opinion	101
	Speaking and Listening in Public Opinion	101
	The Public's Level of Political Knowledge	101
	Early Theories of Public Opinion	101
	Understanding American Attitudes about Race	101
	Cognitive Processes in Public Opinion	101
	Consistency and Attitudinal Change	101
	Packages	101
	Motivational Theories of Public Opinion	101
	Links Between Attitudes and Behavior	101
	What They Do	101
	Constraint, Impression, or Involvement?	101
	Testing Policy Responses	101
	Changes and Variations in Responses to Public Opinion	101
	Is Government Responsiveness to Public Opinion	101
6	The Impact of Public Opinion on Policy Making	101
	Conclusion	101
	Attribution Theory	101
	Stereotyping	101
	Social Media, Campaigning, and the Public	101
	Communication, Mass Media, and Public Opinion	101
	Development and Perspectives	101
	Who Decides What the Media Present?	101