

Contents

List of figures	x
Acknowledgements	xi
Preface	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Establishing a framework for the book	14
1.1 Selecting the research approach	14
1.2 Conducting a grounded theory study	19
1.3 Identifying a framework	30
1.4 Conclusion	33
2 Training to be a language teacher	36
2.1 The appeal of language teaching	36
2.2 The training experience	39
2.3 Awakenings	48
2.4 Early days in the workforce	50
2.5 Conclusion	53
3 Becoming a committed language teacher	55
3.1 Starting out	55
3.2 Professional development	61
3.3 Maturing as a language teacher	67
3.4 Ongoing development	73
3.5 Conclusion	77
4 Establishing the learning environment	79
4.1 What communicative classrooms are like	79
4.2 Creating informal classroom atmospheres	81
4.3 The vital first few lessons	85
4.4 Exercising authority	97
4.5 Conclusion	100
5 The diversity of the language classroom	103
5.1 Students: the raw material of any language class	104

5.2	Factors influencing student behaviour and performance	105
5.3	Tensions within the language classroom	113
5.4	Conclusion	116
6	Managing individuals	119
6.1	Coping with individuals	119
6.2	Tuning in to class behaviour	126
6.3	Handling students with care	131
6.4	Conclusion	138
7	Teaching flexibly	140
7.1	The reality behind the myth	140
7.2	Experience-based language teaching	146
7.3	To thine own self be true	159
7.4	Why flexibility does not lead to chaos	163
7.5	Conclusion	164
8	Vitalising the language class	168
8.1	Responsive language classes	168
8.2	The role of humour in the language classroom	174
8.3	Activity-based language practice	181
8.4	Bringing the pedagogy alive	186
8.5	Conclusion	196
9	Maintaining the classroom community	199
9.1	Language classes as learning communities	199
9.2	Group dynamics in the language classroom	207
9.3	Community maintenance techniques	212
9.4	Conclusion	224
10	Frustrations and rewards	228
10.1	The English language boom	228
10.2	Major causes of frustration for language teachers	236
10.3	The rewards of language teaching	240
10.4	Conclusion	244
11	What drives language teachers	246
11.1	Standing back: a note of caution on assumptions and beliefs	246
11.2	Assumptions and beliefs underpinning the communicative approach	249
11.3	Values shared by experienced language teachers	262
11.4	Conclusion	267

12	Towards a teacher-generated theory of classroom practice	270
12.1	Harmony and balance	270
12.2	A teacher-generated theory of classroom practice	277
12.3	Conclusion	286
	References	289