

Contents

List of figures	xi
List of tables	xii
List of contributors	xiv
Preface and acknowledgements	xix
1 Introduction: walking – more than pedestrian C. Michael Hall, Yael Ram and Noam Shoval	1
PART I
Culture, Society and Historical Context	25
2 Walking in the capitalist city: on the socio-economic origins of walkable urbanism Anja Hälg Bieri	27
3 Radical twenty-first-century walkers and the Romantic qualities of leisure walking Phil Smith	37
4 Long-distance walking in films: promises of healing and redemption on the trail Warwick Frost and Jennifer Laing	46
5 Walking as pedagogy Karein K. Goertz	55
6 Walking in Germany: between recreation and ideology Dirk Reiser and Vanessa Jansen-Meinen	65
7 Walking and art: perambulating pleasures Ray Boland and Brian Wheeler	74

PART II
Social Practices, Perceptions and Behaviours		81
8 Dog walking as a leisure activity		83
Yoshitaka Iwasaki
9 Walking in Switzerland: urban and not so leisurely		92
Derek P.T.H. Christie, Emmanuel Ravalet and Vincent Kaufmann
10 Purposeful leisure mobilities: reframing the walk to school		100
Debbie Hopkins and Sandra Mandic
11 Spiking: the quest for challenge and meaning among hikers		109
Ron McCarville and Chantel Pilon
12 On the beaten track: how do narratives from organised hiking differ from “real” hiking narratives?		119
Outi Rantala and Seija Tuulentie
13 Comparisons between hikers and non-hikers in Iceland: attitudes, behaviours and perceptions		127
Anna Dóra Sæþórsdóttir, C. Michael Hall and Þorkell Stefánsson
14 Passeggiata nuova: social travel in the era of the smartphone		137
Andrew Mondschein
15 Walking online: a netnography of China’s emerging hiking communities		147
Alexandra Witte and Kevin Hannam
PART III
Hiking Trails and Pilgrimage Routes		157
16 Hut-to-hut-hiking trails: a comparative analysis of popular hiking destinations		159
Sven Gross and Kim Werner
17 Taking you home: the Masar Ibrahim Al-Khalil in Palestine		172
Rami K. Isaac
18 The Wales Coast Path: the world’s first national coastal footpath		184
Stephen Miles

19	Improving the experience quality of hiking trails: a setting–experience–relationship approach Diana Müller, Heinz-Dieter Quack, Kathrin Schumacher and Franziska Thiele	194
20	Hikers' preferences and DMO strategies: contrasting perspectives and conflicting views? Ingeborg M. Nordbo	206
21	Re-signifying smuggling: cross-border walking trails as a tourist experience in the Spanish–Portuguese border Heriberto Cairo and María Lois	215
22	The solo-hike: a journey of distance and closeness Hannelene Schilar	223
23	Walking to care: pilgrimage as a slow tourism development – Kumano-kodo pilgrimage, Wakayama, Japan Kumi Kato	232
24	Hindu pilgrimage in India and walkability: theory and praxis Subhajit Das and Manirul Islam	242
PART IV
Health, Well-being and Psychology		251
25	Rambling on: exploring the complexity of walking as a meaningful activity Kirsty Finnie, Tania Wiseman and Neil Ravenscroft	253
26	Life-changing walks of mid-life adults Robert Saunders, Betty Weiler and Jennifer Laing	264
27	Walking to promote increased physical activity Ian Patterson, Shane Pegg and Wan Rabiah Wan Omar	274
28	Taking the first step: from physical inactivity towards a healthier lifestyle through leisure walking Miia Grénman and Juulia Räikkönen	288
29	Dog walking in urban greenspaces Giovanna Bertella	300

PART V

Method, Planning and Design 309

30	Walkable places for visitors: assessing and designing for walkability Yael Ram and C. Michael Hall	311
31	Walking on the shoulders of giants: historical mountain trails as management tools? Daniel Svensson, Sverker Sörlin, Annika Dahlberg, Peter Fredman and Sandra Wall-Reinius	330
32	Wayfinding design for rural flânerie in France Hélène Ducros	340
33	Community benefits from walking tourism in Western Norway Merete Kvamme Fabritius	350
34	When walking is no longer possible: investigating crowding and coping practices in urban tourism using commented walks Monika Popp	360
35	Assessing the walkability of urban public space with GIS technology: the hidden dimensions of security and community heritage Peter Schofield, Adele Doran and Ray Nolan	369
36	Developing a spatial pattern analysis method for evaluating trails in the mountains: the case of Beban Pass in Tierra del Fuego, Argentina Marisol Vereda and María Laura Borla	379
37	Improving the walkability of the Camino Xosé Somoza-Medina and Rubén Camilo Lois González	390
38	Walk on: conclusions and the future C. Michael Hall and Yael Ram	403
	Index	413