

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	xiii
1. Introduction	1
1.1 India since Independence	1
1.2 On Learning from Others	4
1.3 Social Opportunity and Public Policy	6
2. Economic Development and Social Opportunity	9
2.1 Development, Freedom and Opportunities	9
2.2 On Education and Health	13
2.3 The Government, the State and the Market	16
2.4 Interdependence between Markets and Governance	18
2.5 Market-excluding and Market-complementary Interventions	21
2.6 A Positive Focus	25
3. India in Comparative Perspective	27
3.1 India and the World	27
3.2 Lessons from Other Countries	32
3.3 East Asia and Growth-mediated Progress	35
3.4 Human Capital and More Basic Values	42
3.5 Internal Diversities	44
3.6 Studying Indian States	51
4. India and China	57
4.1 Perceptions of China	57
4.2 Conditions of Life and Death	59
4.3 Contrasts in Basic Education	61
4.4 Pre-reform Achievements	66
4.5 Post-reform Records	68
4.6 Pre-reform and Post-reform Performances	73
4.7 Authoritarianism, Famines and Vulnerability	75
4.8 Coercion, Population and Fertility	77
4.9 The Real Lessons for India from China	83

5. Public Action and Social Inequality	87
5.1 The Public and its Role	87
5.2 The Reach of Inequalities	92
5.3 Social Inequality and Economic Reform	97
5.4 Basic Equality, Social Security and Health Care	99
5.5 Local Governance and Social Reform	105
6. Basic Education as a Political Issue	109
6.1 Education and Social Change	109
6.2 The State of School Education	111
6.3 Biases and Confounded Strategies	116
6.4 The Role of Expenditure	120
6.5 Priorities and Challenges	123
6.6 Provision, Utilization and Compulsion	128
6.7 On Female Education	132
6.8 Education and Political Action	137
7. Gender Inequality and Women's Agency	140
7.1 Female Deprivation and Missing Women	140
7.2 On the Female-Male Ratio	142
7.3 Women's Agency and Child Survival	159
7.4 Fertility and Women's Emancipation	167
7.5 Widowhood and Gender Relations	172
7.6 Gender Equality and Social Progress	175
8. Well Beyond Liberalization	179
8.1 What is the Cage?	179
8.2 People as Ends and as Means	183
8.3 Radical Needs and Moderate Reforms	185
8.4 Governance and Public Action	189
8.5 Women's Agency and Social Change	193
8.6 Comparative Perspectives	195
8.7 A Concluding Remark	202
Statistical Appendix	205
References	231
Name Index	279
Subject Index	287