

Contents

I. Dying Trajectories and the Organization of Work	1
II. Sudden Death: A Case of Suicide	16
III. Initial Definitions of the Dying Trajectory	30
IV. Lingering Trajectories: Institutional Dying	56
V. Lingering Trajectories: At Home and in Hospitals	75
VI. The Expected Quick Trajectory	97
VII. The Unexpected Quick Trajectory	120
VIII. Last Weeks and Days	148
IX. Ending the Dying Trajectory	179
X. After Death in the Hospital	206
XI. Time, Structural Process, and Status Passage	237
XII. Improving the Care of the Dying	251
APPENDIX	260
INDEX	266

The extent of the trend, but not its full significance, is suggested by the bare fact of the changing character of locales where people die. Nursing homes, for example, are becoming less cus-

Robert Felson, "Death and Self," Journal of Religion and Health (July, 1964), p. 264.