

Contents

Preface to the 2003 Edition	xiii
Acknowledgments	xxiii
Introduction	1

Part I. IMAGES OF A MOVEMENT

1. Preliminaries	21
The Struggle over Images	24
2. Versions of SDS, Spring 1965	32
Discovering SDS	32
Framing an Action, I: The Chase Manhattan Demonstration	40
Framing an Action, II: The March on Washington to End the War in Vietnam	46
Identifying SDS	60
3. SDS in the Spotlight, Fall 1965	78
SDS in the Semi-Dark	78
The Spotlight Switches On	85
Making the Most of the Glare	90
The Media, the Right, and the Administration	92
Item: The Katzenbach Press Conference	95
"Build, Not Burn"	104
Developing Themes, I: The Movement Divided	109
Developing Themes, II: The Movement Confronted	114
Developing Themes, III: The Movement Legitimate and Illegitimate	116

Part II. MEDIA IN THE MAKING AND UNMAKING OF THE MOVEMENT

4. Organizational Crisis, 1965	127
The Membership Surge and Prairie Power	129
Who Will Speak into the Microphone? The Obsolescence of the Old Guard	133
From Community to Mass Movement	136
Political Consequences of the Early Coverage, and Sources of SDS's Vulnerability	140
5. Certifying Leaders and Converting     Leadership to Celebrity	146
The Manufacture of Celebrity	146
The Vulnerability of Ambivalent Leaders	156
Celebrity as Resource: Pyramiding	166
Celebrity as Career: Performing	170
Celebrity as Trap: Abdicating	176
Alternatives for Leadership	178
6. Inflating Rhetoric and Militancy	180
"The New Left Turns to Mood of Violence"	183
Revolutionary Will and Action News	192
The Aestheticizing of Violence in Films	197
Militancy and the Movement	202
7. Elevating Moderate Alternatives:     The Moment of Reform	205
The Tet Crisis and American Elites	205
Media on a Tightrope: Extraordinary Measures to Secure Moderating Frames	210
Moratorium and Mobilization	217
Routines and Stereotypes	230
8. Contracting Time and Eclipsing Context	233
On Discontinuity and the Decontextualization of Experience	233
The Vulnerability of a Student Movement	239
9. Broadcasting and Containment	242

Part III. HEGEMONY, CRISIS, AND OPPOSITION

10. Media Routines and Political Crises	249
Theories of the News	249
Ideological Hegemony as a Process	252

The Workings of Hegemony in Journalism	258
The Limits of Hegemonic Routine	269
11. Seventies Going on Eighties	283
Implications for Movements	283
Some Recent Frames: The Treatment of Movements
Against Nuclear Power and Nuclear Weapons	287
Appendix on Sources and Methods	293
The Movement	293
The Media	296
On Analyzing News	303
Selected Bibliography	307
Index	319