

Contents

1	C'mon! Don't Tell Me the Current Trends Are Sustainable!	1
1.1	Introduction: The World in Disarray	1
1.1.1	Different Types of Crisis and a Feeling of Helplessness	2
1.1.2	Financialization: A Phenomenon of Disarray	7
1.1.3	Empty World Versus Full World	9
1.2	The Limits to Growth : How Relevant Was Its Message?	11
1.3	Planetary Boundaries	14
1.4	The Anthropocene	16
1.5	The Climate Challenge	17
1.5.1	We Need a 'Crash Plan'	18
1.5.2	How to Deal with Overshoot?	19
1.5.3	Why Not a Marshall Plan?	20
1.5.4	Has Humanity Already Missed the Chance to Meet the Climate Goals?	20
1.6	Other Disasters Ahead	22
1.6.1	Technological Wildcards and Familiar Threats	22
1.6.2	Nuclear Weapons: The Forgotten Threat	25
1.7	Unsustainable Population Growth and Urbanization	27
1.7.1	Population Dynamics	27
1.7.2	Urbanization	30
1.8	Unsustainable Agriculture and Food Systems	32
1.9	Trade Versus Environment	35
1.10	The 2030 Agenda: The Devil Is in Implementation	38
1.11	Do We Like Disruptions? The Case of the Digital Revolution	44
1.11.1	Disruptive Technologies: The New Hype	44
1.11.2	Digitization Is the Buzzword of Our Time	45
1.11.3	Scary 'Singularity' and 'Exponential Technologies'	47
1.11.4	Jobs	49

1.12	From Empty World to Full World	50
1.12.1	The Impact of Physical Growth	50
1.12.2	The GDP Fallacy: Physical Impacts Ignored	53
1.12.3	The GDP Fallacy Again: Treating Costs as If They Are Benefits	55
	Linking Chapters 1 and 2	56
	References.	58
2	C'mon! Don't Stick to Outdated Philosophies!	63
2.1	Laudato Sí: The Pope Raises His Voice.	63
2.2	Change the Story, Change the Future	66
2.3	1991: 'The First Global Revolution'	67
2.4	Capitalism Got Arrogant	69
2.5	The Failure of the Market Doctrine.	71
2.6	Philosophical Errors of the Market Doctrine.	75
2.6.1	Adam Smith, Prophet, Moralist, Enlightener	76
2.6.2	David Ricardo, Capital Mobility and Comparative Versus Absolute Advantage.	77
2.6.3	Charles Darwin Meant Local Competition, Not Global Trade.	79
2.6.4	Reduce the Contrasts.	82
2.7	Reductionist Philosophy Is Shallow and Inadequate.	83
2.7.1	Reductionist Philosophy	83
2.7.2	The Misuse of Technology	88
2.8	Gaps Between Theory, Education and Social Reality	89
2.9	Tolerance and Long-Term Perspectives.	91
2.10	We May Need a New Enlightenment	92
2.10.1	New Enlightenment, Not Renewed Rationalism.	92
2.10.2	Yin and Yang.	94
2.10.3	Philosophy of Balance, Not of Exclusion.	95
	Linking Chapters 2 and 3	97
	References.	99
3	Come On! Join Us on an Exciting Journey Towards a Sustainable World!	101
3.1	A Regenerative Economy	101
3.1.1	A New Narrative	101
3.1.2	Natural Capitalism: Arc of Transition	103
3.1.3	Redesign Everything	104
3.1.4	Regenerative Management.	104
3.2	Development Alternatives	108
3.3	The Blue Economy	113
3.3.1	Core Principles.	115
3.3.2	Coffee Chemistry and Edible Mushrooms.	115
3.3.3	Designing Biorefineries and Thistles in Sardinia.	116
3.3.4	3D Sea Farming and Fishing with Air Bubbles.	117

3.4	Decentralized Energy	117
3.5	Some Agricultural Success Stories	123
3.5.1	General Lines of Sustainable Agriculture Policy	123
3.5.2	Sustainable Farming in the Developing World	124
3.5.3	Developed World Contributions	126
3.6	Regenerative Urbanization: Ecopolis	127
3.6.1	Ecopolis: Circular Resource Flows	127
3.6.2	Regenerative Cities	129
3.6.3	Cities and Natural Disasters	130
3.6.4	Adelaide	131
3.6.5	Copenhagen	132
3.7	Climate: Some Good News, But Bigger Challenges	132
3.7.1	Good News	133
3.7.2	Addressing the Historic Debt and the 'Carbon Budget' Approach	134
3.7.3	A Price on Carbon	136
3.7.4	Combatting Global Warming with a 'Post-war Economy'	137
3.8	Circular Economy Requires a New Economic Logic	140
3.8.1	The Economy Must Be Transformed	141
3.8.2	The Societal Benefits of Moving Towards a Circular Economy	142
3.9	Fivefold Resource Productivity	144
3.9.1	Transport	144
3.9.2	Resource-Efficient Buildings	146
3.9.3	Water Efficiency for the Farm	147
3.10	Healthy Disruption	148
3.10.1	Thirty Years of Welcoming IT	148
3.10.2	'A Good Disruption'	149
3.10.3	And Now a Shocking Proposal: The Bit Tax	150
3.11	Reform of the Financial Sector	152
3.11.1	Separate Commercial and Investment Banking	153
3.11.2	Dealing with Debt	154
3.11.3	Control Money Creation: The Chicago Plan	155
3.11.4	Tax Financial Trading	156
3.11.5	Enhance Transparency	156
3.11.6	Independent Regulators	156
3.11.7	Taxing the Rich and Collecting the Tax	156
3.11.8	Curbing the 'Big Four' Accounting Firms	157
3.12	Reform of the Economic Set-Up	158
3.12.1	'Doughnut Economics'	159
3.12.2	Reforms that May Find Majority Support	160
3.12.3	Making the Green Transition Ever More Profitable	162
3.12.4	Economy for the Common Good	165

3.13	Benign Investment	167
3.13.1	From Wall Street to Philanthropy	168
3.13.2	Ongoing Structural Changes	169
3.13.3	Impact Investing.....	171
3.13.4	Becoming Mainstream Is Key	172
3.13.5	Green Bonds, Crowdfunding and Fintech	173
3.14	Measuring Well-Being Rather than GDP.....	175
3.14.1	Recent Work on Alternative Indicators	175
3.14.2	Divergence Between GDP and GPI.....	179
3.14.3	Towards a Hybrid Approach	179
3.15	Civil Society, Social Capital and Collective Leadership	181
3.15.1	Public Conversation: The Concept of Citizens' Assemblies	182
3.15.2	Building Up Social Capital: Multi-stakeholder Collaboration	183
3.15.3	A Case of Collective Leadership: The Common Code of the Coffee Community	184
3.16	Global Governance	186
3.16.1	Introduction: The UN System and Forward-Looking Ideas.....	186
3.16.2	Specific Tasks.....	188
3.16.3	COHAB: Cohabitation Mode of Nation States	189
3.17	National-Level Action: China and Bhutan.....	191
3.17.1	China and Its 13th Five-Year Plan	192
3.17.2	Bhutan: The Gross National Happiness Index.....	195
3.18	Education for a Sustainable Civilization	196
	References.....	201
	Conclusion: We Invite Readers to 'Come on'.....	205
	Praise for Come On!	207
	Index.....	211