

REVIZE 2009

Contents

Preface	vii
1. An introduction to philosophical medical ethics: the Arthur case	1
2. Medical oaths, declarations and codes	9
3. Deontological foundations for medical ethics?	14
4. Utilitarianism	21
5. Conscience, good character, integrity, and to hell with philosophical medical ethics?	28
6. "It's all too subjective": scepticism about the possibility or use of philosophical medical ethics	34
7. To what do we have moral obligations and why? (I)	41
8. To what do we have moral obligations and why? (II)	47
9. Rights	54
10. Autonomy and the principle of respect for autonomy	60
11. Paternalism and medical ethics	67
12. Beneficence: doing good for others	73
13. "Primum non nocere" and the principle of non-maleficence	80
14. Justice and medical ethics	86
15. Justice and allocation of medical resources ...	93
16. Telling the truth and medical ethics	100

17. Confidentiality	106
18. Consent	113
19. Where respect for autonomy is not the answer	119
20. Acts and omissions, killing and letting die	126
21. The principle of double effect and medical ethics	133
22. Ordinary and extraordinary means	140
23. On sickness and on health	148
24. "The patient's interests always come first". Doctors and society	156
25. Doctors and patients	163
26. Conclusion: the Arthur case revisited	174
Index	184