

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements —	vii
Introduction: Egyptian Hieroglyphic and Chinese Characters —	1
Chapter 1: Platonism and the Strong Theory —	18
Chapter 2: Aristotelianism and the Soft Theory —	32
Chapter 3: Hellenized Egypt, Pythagoreanism, and the Primitivist Theory —	42
Chapter 4: Patristic Apologetics and the Scriptural Theory —	59
Chapter 5: Neoplatonism and the Hermetic Theory —	85
Chapter 6: Universals and the Scholastic Theory —	108
Chapter 7: Renaissance Neoplatonism and the Emblematic Theory —	135
Chapter 8: Athanasius Kircher on Egyptian and Chinese Ideography —	144
Chapter 9: The Great Chinese Encyclopedia —	156
Chapter 10: Zhengming 正名 “Making Words Correct” and Chinese Language Theory —	177
Chapter 11: Chinese Language Theory and the Interpretation of the Classics —	189
Chapter 12: The Erya and Lexicographic Classification —	202
Chapter 13: The Erya and Chinese Language Theory —	214
Chapter 14: The Shuowen jiezi and Chinese Language Theory —	236
Chapter 15: The “ Shuowen Postface” (Annotated Translation) —	258
Conclusion: Ideography and Chinese Language Theory —	274
Appendix: The Metalinguistic Terms ming 名, yi 義, yi 意, and zhi 志 —	285
Bibliography —	306