

Contents

|                                                                                                |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Acknowledgments                                                                                | vii |
| Introduction: Opening Closings                                                                 | ix  |
| 1. Indistinguishable from Magic: InvisibleInterfaces and Digital Literature as Demystifier | 1   |
| 2. From the Philosophy of the Open to theIdeology of the User-Friendly                     | 47  |
| 3. Typewriter Concrete Poetry as ActivistMedia Poetics                                     | 87  |
| 4. The Fascicle as Process and Product                                                         | 129 |
| Postscript: The Googlization of Literature                                                     | 163 |
| Notes                                                                                          | 185 |
| Index                                                                                          | 219 |