

CHAPTER 3 Data and empirical material sources for tourism research	69
3.1 Introduction.....	70
3.2 Sources of data and empirical materials for use in tourism research: an overview	70
3.2.1 Primary data and empirical material sources for tourism research	71
3.2.2 Secondary data and empirical material sources for tourism research	72
3.2.3 Problems with census data	78
3.2.4 Sources of secondary data and empirical materials	79
3.2.5 The process of documentary research	82
3.2.6 Analysis of secondary data and/or empirical materials	83
3.3 Differences between primary and secondary data and/or empirical material sources	86
3.4 Diversity in both primary and secondary data and/or empirical material sources	86
Summary	87
Questions	88
Exercises	89
Research project	92
References	93
Further reading	95
Journal articles	95
CHAPTER 4 The ethics of tourism research	96
4.1 Introduction.....	97
4.2 The need for ethics in the conduct of tourism research.....	99
4.3 The various debates in ethics literature.....	100
4.4 The tourism researcher's ethical responsibilities to society.....	100
4.5 The tourism researcher's ethical responsibilities to the scientific community.....	103
4.6 The tourism researcher's ethical responsibilities to research participants.....	105
4.6.1 Physical harm	105
4.6.2 Psychological harm	106
4.6.3 Legal harm	106
4.6.4 Other harm	106
4.6.5 Informed consent	109
4.6.6 Deception and covert research	109
4.7 The tourism researcher's ethical responsibilities to sponsors	111
4.7.1 Deception	111
4.7.2 Incentives	112
4.8 The tourism researcher's ethical responsibilities to the self.....	112
4.8.1 Key issues for the researcher	112
4.8.2 Relationships between the researcher and the participants	113
4.9 The concepts of reciprocity and reflexivity	114
4.10 So why be ethical?	116
Summary	117
Questions	118
Exercises	118

Research project	119
References	119
Further reading	121
Web sites	122
CHAPTER 5 Methodological considerations for tourism research	123
5.1 Introduction	124
5.2 Research methodologies	124
5.2.1 Selecting the 'right' methodology	125
5.3 Emic and etic perspectives	125
5.3.1 Emic perspectives	126
5.3.2 Etic perspectives	126
5.3.3 Mixing emic and etic perspectives	127
5.4 Qualitative and quantitative methodologies	127
5.4.1 Qualitative methodology	127
5.4.2 Quantitative methodology	128
5.4.3 Differences between qualitative and quantitative methodologies	129
5.5 Mixed methods	131
5.6 Indigenous methodologies	134
5.7 Cross-cultural methodologies	135
5.8 Sampling	137
5.8.1 Non-probability sampling	139
5.8.2 Probability sampling	140
5.8.3 Differences between random and non-random sampling	144
5.8.4 Sample size	146
5.9 Reliability and validity	149
5.9.1 Quantitative methodology	149
5.9.2 Qualitative methodology	150
5.10 Triangulation	151
5.11 Crystallisation	152
5.12 Positionality and voice	152
5.13 Pilot studies	154
Summary	155
Questions	157
Exercises	157
Research project	158
References	158
Further reading	163
Journal articles and edited book chapters	163
CHAPTER 6 Qualitative methods and tourism research	165
6.1 Introduction	166
6.2 Qualitative methodology	166
6.2.1 Symbolic interactionism	166
6.2.2 Phenomenology	167
6.2.3 Heuristic research	167
6.2.4 Ethnomethodology	167
6.2.5 Ethnography	168
6.2.6 Grounded theory	168

6.3	Methods.....	168
6.3.1	Interviews.....	171
6.3.2	Participant observation.....	178
6.3.3	Focus groups.....	181
6.3.4	Longitudinal studies.....	183
6.3.5	Delphi techniques.....	184
6.3.6	Case studies.....	185
6.3.7	Action research.....	187
6.3.8	Documentary method.....	190
6.3.9	Visual methods.....	190
6.4	Non-sexist research methods.....	191
	Summary.....	193
	Questions.....	195
	Exercises.....	195
	Research project.....	197
	References.....	197
	Further reading.....	202
	Journal articles.....	202
CHAPTER 7 Qualitative methods of empirical material interpretation/(re)construction		203
7.1	Introduction.....	204
7.2	Qualitative empirical material interpretation/(re)construction compared to quantitative data analysis.....	204
7.3	Qualitative interpretation/(re)construction	206
7.3.1	Memos.....	207
7.3.2	Coding.....	208
7.3.3	Content analysis.....	211
7.3.4	Constant comparative analysis.....	213
7.3.5	Successive approximation.....	213
7.3.6	Domain analysis.....	214
7.3.7	Ideal types.....	215
7.3.8	Event-structure analysis.....	216
7.3.9	Matrices.....	216
7.3.10	Other methods of interpretation/(re)construction and display.....	217
7.3.11	Grounded theory analysis.....	219
7.3.12	The zoom model.....	220
7.4	Reporting interpretations/(re)constructions.....	221
7.5	Qualitative empirical material interpretation/(re)construction and computer programs.....	221
7.5.1	Computer programs that assist in empirical material interpretation/(re)construction.....	222
7.5.2	Computer software programs for qualitative empirical material interpretation/(re)construction.....	223
	Summary.....	225
	Questions.....	225
	Exercises.....	226
	Research project.....	227

References	227
Further reading	229
Web sites	229
CHAPTER 8 Quantitative methods and tourism research	230
8.1 Introduction	231
8.2 Paradigms that inform a quantitative methodology	231
8.3 Types of surveys	231
8.4 Surveys and questionnaires	233
8.4.1 Mail surveys	233
8.4.2 Telephone surveys	235
8.4.3 E-surveys	237
8.4.4 Self-completion questionnaires	238
8.4.5 Interviewer-completed questionnaires	241
8.4.6 Other types of surveys	242
8.4.7 Comparison of survey methods	243
8.4.8 Advantages and disadvantages of surveys	246
8.5 Questionnaire construction	246
8.5.1 Response sets	248
8.5.2 Survey response sets	250
8.5.3 Levels of measurement	253
8.5.4 Pilot studies	253
8.5.5 Response rates	254
8.6 Other quantitative methods	255
8.6.1 Observation	255
8.6.2 Longitudinal studies	255
8.6.3 Case studies	256
8.6.4 The Delphic method	256
8.6.5 Documentary or archival method	258
8.6.6 Experimental and quasi-experimental methods	258
8.7 Forecasting and impact methods	259
8.7.1 Forecasting	259
8.7.2 Social and environmental impact assessments	260
8.7.3 Nominal group technique	260
8.8 Overlaps between quantitative and qualitative methods	261
Summary	262
Questions	264
Exercises	265
Research project	266
References	266
Further reading	268
Journal articles	268
CHAPTER 9 Quantitative methods of data analysis	270
9.1 Introduction	271
9.2 Preparing and coding data	271
9.2.1 Coding data	272
9.2.2 Data entry	275
9.2.3 Data cleaning	279

9.3	Analysing data: descriptive and inferential statistics.....	280
9.4	Descriptive statistics: univariate, bivariate and multivariate analysis.....	281
9.4.1	Univariate analysis.....	281
9.4.2	Bivariate analysis.....	290
9.4.3	Multivariate analysis.....	293
9.5	Inferential statistics.....	295
9.5.1	Statistical significance.....	295
9.5.2	Levels of significance.....	296
9.5.3	Type I and Type II errors.....	296
9.6	Computer programs for quantitative data analysis.....	297
9.6.1	SPSS.....	297
9.6.2	Minitab.....	297
9.6.3	SAS.....	297
	Summary.....	299
	Questions.....	299
	Exercises.....	300
	Research project.....	300
	References.....	301
	Further reading.....	301
	Web sites.....	302
CHAPTER 10 Tourism research proposals and reports		303
10.1	Introduction.....	304
10.2	The purpose of a research proposal.....	305
10.3	The structure of a research proposal.....	305
10.3.1	Introduction.....	305
10.3.2	Literature review.....	306
10.3.3	Methodology section.....	311
10.3.4	Time line.....	312
10.3.5	Budget.....	313
10.3.6	Reference section.....	314
10.4	The presentation of a research proposal.....	314
10.4.1	Audience considerations.....	315
10.4.2	Ethical clearance.....	315
10.5	The purpose of research reports.....	315
10.6	Types of research reports.....	316
10.6.1	Narrative reports.....	316
10.6.2	Qualitative research reports.....	317
10.6.3	Quantitative research reports.....	320
10.7	Audience considerations for research reports.....	328
10.7.1	The general public.....	329
10.7.2	Decision makers.....	329
10.7.3	Professionals.....	329
	Summary.....	331
	Questions.....	332
	Exercises.....	332
	Research project.....	335
	References.....	335
	Further reading.....	336

CHAPTER 11 Conference presentations, posters and articles 337

11.1	Introduction.....	338
11.2	Conference papers	338
11.2.1	Structure and style of conference papers	338
11.2.2	Types of conference papers	339
11.2.3	Conference paper selection	339
11.2.4	Changes to the genre	339
11.2.5	Conference papers and written outputs	340
11.2.6	Some considerations for conference paper submission	340
11.2.7	Conference paper content and preparation	341
11.2.8	Presentation style	342
11.2.9	Use of visual aids	343
11.2.10	Modes of presentation	344
11.2.11	Audience considerations	345
11.2.12	Tips for conference chairs	346
11.3	Poster presentations.....	347
11.3.1	Structure and style of poster papers	347
11.3.2	Size	347
11.3.3	Structure	347
11.3.4	Content	348
11.3.5	Visual layout	348
11.3.6	Styles of presentation	349
11.3.7	Audience considerations	349
11.4	Journal articles.....	350
11.4.1	Structure and style of journal articles	350
11.4.2	Manuscript preparation	351
11.4.3	Audience considerations	352
11.5	The process of getting your work accepted.....	352
	Summary	354
	Questions	355
	Exercises	355
	Research report	360
	References	360
	Further reading	361

CHAPTER 12 The future of tourism research 362

12.1	Introduction.....	363
12.2	The role of research in tourism.....	363
12.3	Tourism methodologies and methods.....	364
12.4	Responsibilities of tourism researchers.....	365
12.5	Case study 1: An interpretive social sciences approach.....	365
12.6	Case study 2: Using a postpositivist approach	384
12.7	Case study 3: Engaging in cross-cultural research	404
12.8	Comment on the three case studies	421
12.9	Current and potential research needs of the travel and hospitality sectors	422
12.9.1	Travel retailers and wholesalers	422
12.9.2	The meetings, incentives, conventions and exhibitions industry	422
12.9.3	Special events	423
12.9.4	Attractions and destinations	423

12.9.5 Travel and tourism experiences	423
12.9.6 Restaurant industry	424
12.9.7 Transport industry	424
12.9.8 Accommodation industry	424
12.9.9 Travel and tourism industry issues	425
12.10 Employment opportunities for research in tourism	425
12.11 Tourism research in the future	426
Summary	428
Questions	429
References	429
Web sites	430
Appendix 1 Refereed English language tourism journals (2009)	431
Appendix 2 A table of random numbers	435
Useful terms	436
Index	446
Research project	300
References	300
Further reading	301
Web sites	302
CHAPTER 10 Tourism research proposals	303
Introduction	303
The purpose of a research proposal	304
The structure of a research proposal	305
10.1 Introduction	306
10.2 Literature review	306
10.3 Methodology section	311
10.3.1 Time line	312
10.3.2 Budget	313
10.3.3 Reference section	314
The presentation of a research proposal	314
10.4 Audience considerations	315
10.4.1 Ethical clearance	315
10.5 The purpose of research reports	315
Types of research reports	315
10.6 Narrative reports	315
10.6.1 Qualitative research reports	315
10.6.2 Quantitative research reports	315
Audience considerations for quantitative research reports	315
10.7 The general approach	315
10.7.1 An interpretive social sciences approach	315
10.7.2 A positivist approach	315
10.7.3 Professionalism	315
Summary	315
Current and potential research needs of the travel and hospitality sectors	315
Exercises	315
Research presentation and exhibition conventions and guidelines	315
References	315
Further reading	315
CHAPTER 12 The future of tourism research	315
Introduction	315
The role of research in tourism	315
Tourism methodologies and methods	315
Responsibilities of tourism researchers	315
Case study 1: An interpretive social sciences approach	315
Case study 2: Using a positivist approach	315
Case study 3: Engaging in cross-cultural research	315
Comment on the three case studies	315
Current and potential research needs of the travel and hospitality sectors	315
Exercises	315
Travel trends and forecasts	315
The meeting, incentives, conventions and exhibitions industry	315
Special events	315
Attractions and destinations	315