

CONTENTS

Introduction: The Five Key Terms of Dramatism	xv
---	----

PART ONE—WAYS OF PLACEMENT

I. CONTAINER AND THING CONTAINED	3
The Scene-Act Ratio	3
The Scene-Agent Ratio	7
Further Instances of These Ratios	9
Ubiquity of the Ratios	11
Range of All the Ratios	15
II. ANTINOMIES OF DEFINITION	21
Paradox of Substance	21
Contextual Definition	24
Familial Definition	26
Survey of Terms for Substance	29
Dialectic Substance	33
The Paradox of Purity	35
Dialectic of Tragedy	38
Actus and Status	41
Universal Motives as Substance	43
Intrinsic and Extrinsic	46
The Rhetoric of Substance	51
Two Kinds of Departure	53
The Centrality of Substance	55
III. SCOPE AND REDUCTION	59
The Representative Anecdote	59
The Way of Creation	62
Act as Locus of Motives	64
The "Grounds" of Creation	69

Pantheism and Ontology	72
Grammatical Steps to Naturalism	74
Circumference	77
Monographic Terms of Placement	85
Monetary Reduction	91
Kinds of Reduction	96
Complexity of a Simple Motive	101
Money as a Substitute for God	108
The Nature of Monetary "Reality"	113
Love, Knowledge, and Authority	117

PART TWO—THE PHILOSOPHIC SCHOOLS

I. SCENE	127
Scene in General	131
Hobbes	132
Spinoza	137
Alignment of Terms in Spinoza	146
Darwin	152
The Two Great Hellenistic Materialisms	159
Rhetorical and Symbolic Levels	161
II. AGENT IN GENERAL	171
Idealization	172
Unification	175
Berkeley	177
Hume	181
Leibniz	184
Kant	185
Moral Transcendence in Kant	190
Idealism After Kant	191
Marxism	200
Hegel	200
Communist Manifesto	200
A Dramatist Grammar for Marxism	201
Santayana	210
Imagination	220

III. ACT	227
Aristotle and Aquinas	227
The "Pathetic Fallacy"	232
"Incipient" and "Delayed" Action	235
Realist Family and Nominalist Aggregate	247
Further Remarks on Act and Potency	252
Psychology of Action	262
IV. AGENCY AND PURPOSE	275
The Philosophy of Means	275
The Range of Pragmatism	281
Conditions	281
The "Facts"	282
Two Principles of Truth in James	282
Symbolic of Agency	283
Purposive Agencies of Applied Science	286
Ends	287
Modifications of Purpose	292
Purpose in Aristotle	292
Platonist and Neo-Platonist Purpose	293
Physiology of Mysticism	294
Purposiveness in the Negative	294
Unity and the Reflexive	297
Mysticism and Idealism: The Self	299
Images and the "Demonic Trinity"	300
Silence and the Hunt	303
The Mystic "Moment"	305
Mysticism of Means	309
Rationalism and the Verbal Medium	311
Means and Ends of This Grammar	317

PART THREE—ON DIALECTIC

I. THE DIALECTIC OF CONSTITUTIONS	323
Necessity for Representative Case	323
The Two Circles	325

Terminal as Anecdote	326
Representativeness of Total War	328
The Constitutive and the Admonitory	330
Peace: Constitutive or Directive?	332
Futurism: Religious and Secular	333
Our Position Epitomized	335
Imagistic and Conceptual Summaries	338
Five Basic Terms as Beginning	340
Meanings of "Constitution"	341
Technical Immunity of "Anarchism" as Ideal	344
"Anarcho-Syndicalism"—the Ideal Organized	345
The Anarcho-Syndicalist "Constitution"	346
A New Constitution for Laissez faire	349
A Spectrum of Terms Between "Freedom" and "Capitalism"	350
Strategic Choice of Circumference for "Freedom"	354
Money as "God-term"	355
"Principles" and "Reform"	356
Constitutions and the Opponent	357
Constitutions—Addressed by Agents to Agents	360
Constitution-Behind-the-Constitution	362
Shifts in the Locus of the "Representative"	363
The Generalizing of Wishes	365
Limits and Powers of a Constitution	367
Constitutional Tactics of Coleridge's "Pantisocracy" Project	368
Constitutions but Partially Representative	371
Principles of the Conflict Among Principles	373
Constitution Makes Extra-Constitutionality Mandatory	376
Some Degrees of Constitutionality in Every Law	378
"Essentializing" and "Proportional" Strategies of Interpretation	380
Marshall's Argument for Right of Judicial Review	385
Constitutional Unity and Political Diversity	388
Role of the President	391
Political Rhetoric as Secular Prayer	393
War and Collectivistic Nature of Sacrifice	394

CONTENTS

xiii

The Dialectics of Federation	398
II. DIALECTIC IN GENERAL	402
The Transformation of Terms	402
Merger and Division	403
Dialectic of the Scapegoat	406
Per Genus et Differentiam	408
More Variants of Merger and Division	410
The Mind-Body, Being-Nothing, and Action-Passion Pairs	418
The Socratic Transcendence	420
The Temporizing of Essence	430
Dissolution of Drama	440
A Neo-Liberal Ideal	441

APPENDIX

A. SYMBOLIC ACTION IN A POEM BY KEATS	447
B. THE PROBLEM OF THE INTRINSIC	465
C. MOTIVES AND MOTIFS IN THE POETRY OF MARIANNE MOORE	485
D. THE FOUR MASTER TROPES	503
INDEX	519