

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Introduction: Disability and colonialism: (dis)encounters and anxious intersectionalities Shaun Grech and Karen Soldatic	1
1. Decolonising Eurocentric disability studies: why colonialism matters in the disability and global South debate Shaun Grech	6
2. Orientalising deafness: race and disability in imperial Britain Esme Cleall	22
3. 'Let them be young and stoutly set in limbs': race, labor, and disability in the British Atlantic World Stefanie Kennedy	37
4. Postcolonial reproductions: disability, indigeneity and the formation of the white masculine settler state of Australia Karen Soldatic	53
5. WHO's MIND, whose future? Mental health projects as colonial logics Tanya Titchkosky and Katie Aubrecht	69
6. A Foucauldian journey into the islands of the deaf and blind Ann Lazarsfeld-Jensen	85
7. Ain't I a woman? Female landmine survivors' beauty pageants and the ethics of staring Rachel A.D. Bloul	95
Index	111