

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	xiii
PART ONE. Theology and What May Be Said
1 The Gospel According to Melpomene: Reflections on Rowan Williams's The Tragic Imagination	3
2 Remarks Made to Jean-Luc Marion regarding Revelation and Givenness	26
3 What Is Postmodern Theology? Reflections for Tomáš Halík	45
4 Martin and Gallaher on Bulgakov	55
5 Remarks to Bruce McCormack regarding the Relation between Trinitarian Theology and Christology	65
6 The Devil's March: Creatio ex Nihilo , the Problem of Evil, and a Few Dostoyevskian Meditations	77
7 Tradition and Authority: A Vaguely Gnostic Meditation	98

PART TWO. The Borderlands of Theology and Science

- 8 Where the Consonance Really Lies 123
- 9 Should Science Think? 138
- 10 The Illusionist: On Daniel Dennett's
From Bacteria to Bach and Back: The Evolution of Minds 153
- 11 Consciousness and Grace: Thoughts on Bernard Lonergan 167

PART THREE. Gospel and Culture

- 12 Concerning By Man Shall His Blood Be Shed:
A Catholic Defense of Capital Punishment,
by Edward Feser and Joseph M. Bessette 183
- 13 Further Reflections on Capital Punishment
(and on Edward Feser) 198
- 14 Orthodoxy in America 212
- 15 University and Magisterium: Remarks in Response to Reinhard Hütter 225
- 16 The Story of the Nameless: The Use and Abuse of History for Theology 232
- 17 Beauty, Being, Kenosis 245
- 18 A Sense of Style: Beauty and the Christian Moral Life 257

PART FOUR. Literatures of Transcendence

- 19 The Shock of the Real: On Journey to the Land of the Real,
by Victor Segalen 275
- 20 Empson in the East: On The Face of the Buddha 289

21	David Jones: The Forgotten Modernist	297
22	An Introduction to Léon Bloy's The Pilgrim of the Absolute	314

PART FIVE. The New Testament

23	The First Radicals	325
24	Paul's Theology Was Rather Different from What We Think	331
25	What It Says, Not What It Means	335
26	The Spirit of the Text	340
27	A Prayer for the Poor	344
28	Different Idioms, Different Worlds: Various Notes on Translating the New Testament	351
	Index	390