

Contents

Foreword	page xiii
by Giuseppe de Vergottini
Professor Emeritus, University of Bologna
Acknowledgments	xix
Notes on the Text	xxi
Introduction	1
1 Democratic Transitions and Constitutional Courts	8
1 Democratic Transitions	8
2 Formal Transition and Substantive Transition	13
3 From the Staatsgerichtsbarkeit to the Verfassungsgerichtsbarkeit	15
4 The Difficulties of the First European Constitutional Courts	18
5 The Close Link between the Processes of Democratic Transition and the Setting Up of Constitutional Courts after World War II	23
A The "Terrible Lessons" Learned from Autocratic Regimes	24
B Distrust toward the Legislature and Fear of the Judiciary	27
C Constitutional Courts in the Constitution-Making Processes	29
D The Role of the Council of Europe and the European Union	31
2 The First Generation: The Case of the Italian Constitutional Court	33
1 The Constitutional Court in the 1948 Constitution	33
2 The Establishment of the Constitutional Court: A Long and Complex Process	41
3 1948–1956: The Blocking of the Substantive Transition	45
4 Decentralized Constitutional Review as a "Channel of Continuity" of the State	50

5	The Constitutional Court in the Substantive Transition	57
	A Judgment 1/1956: The First Ruling Overturning a Fascist Law	62
	B The Court and the Non-Catholic Religions: A Stimulus for Reform	66
	C The Right to Strike: The Court as a "Substitute" for Parliament	71
	D The Court and Public Order: A Janus-Faced Case Law	76
6	The Italian Constitutional Court: A New Body Breaking with the Past and Going against the Tide	83
3	The Second Generation: The Case of the Spanish Constitutional Court	87
1	The Transition to Democracy and the Politics of Consensus	87
	A The Role of King Juan Carlos	91
	B The Territorial Organization of the State	93
2	The Setting Up of the Constitutional Court	97
3	The Four Main Areas of Intervention of the Constitutional Court during the Substantive Transition	101
	A The Constitutional Court and the Upholding of the Normative Value of the Constitution	105
	B The Constitutional Court and Preconstitutional Legislation: Quality More Than Quantity	110
	C The End of a Burla : The Constitutional Court and the Creation of an Effective System of Protection of Fundamental Rights	118
	D The Constitutional Court and the "Jurisprudential Construction" of the State of Autonomies	124
4	Reasons for Success	131
4	The Third Generation: The Case of the Constitutional Court of the Czech Republic	134
1	From the Velvet Revolution to the Birth of Two Independent States	134
2	The Czech Republic: Continuity with the Past, Internal Questions, and European Integration	141
3	Acceptance and Rejection of the Constitutional Court	146
4	Dealing with the Past: The Court and Transitional Justice	154
	A The Defense of Democracy: The Federal Court, the Czech Court, and the Lustration Laws	155
	B The Break with the Past: The Court and the Law on the Illegitimacy of the Communist Regime	161
	C Remedy for Injustices: The Court and the Laws on the Restitution of Property	164
5	The Court and the Protection of Fundamental Rights	168
	A The Right to Vote and the Electoral System	172
6	The Guardian of the Velvet Revolution	175

5	Comparing Three Generations	178
1	Shared Actions: The Upholding of the Normative Value of the Constitution and the Protection of Fundamental Rights	178
2	Specific Issues Examined by the Constitutional Courts	185
3	The Success of the Centralized System	189
4	Factors Influencing the Action of the Constitutional Courts	192
	A The Time Needed for the Constitutional Courts to Be Set Up	192
	B The Appointment Procedure and the Status of Constitutional Judges	193
	C The Procedural Gateways to the Courts and the Actors Entitled to Appeal	195
	D The Historical, Political, and Institutional Context	197
	E The "Europe Factor"	199
5	The Countermajoritarian Difficulty and Transition Processes	203
6	Constitutional Courts as Guarantors of the Success of the Transitions to Democracy?	205
	Bibliography	207
	Index	229