

Contents

Contributors	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction: Adorno and the Autonomous Intellectual	1
Nigel Gibson and Andrew Rubin

Part I Politics and Culture 27

1	Adorno in Reverse: From Hollywood to Richard Wagner	29
	Andreas Huyssen
2	Mass Culture as Hieroglyphic Writing: Adorno, Derrida, Kracauer	57
	Miriam Hansen
3	Theodor W. Adorno and the Dialectics of Mass Culture	86
	Douglas Kellner
4	Adorno's Politics	110
	Russell Berman
5	"Why Were the Jews Sacrificed?" The Place of Antisemitism in Adorno and Horkheimer's Dialectic of Enlightenment	132
	Anson Rabinbach

6	Demythologizing the Authoritarian Personality: Reconnoitering Adorno's Retreat from Marx Lou Turner	150
7	The Adorno Files Andrew Rubin	172
Part II Aesthetics		191
8	Adorno as Lateness Itself Edward W. Said	193
9	Immanent Critique or Musical Stocktaking? Adorno and the Problem of Musical Analysis Max Paddison	209
10	Adorno and the New Musicology Rose Rosengard Subotnik	234
Part III Critical Theory and After		255
11	Rethinking an Old Saw: Dialectical Negativity, Utopia, and Negative Dialectic in Adorno's Hegelian Marxism Nigel Gibson	257
12	Hegel on Trial: Adorno's Critique of Philosophical Systems Mauro Bozzetti	292
13	The Dialectic of Theory and Praxis: On Late Adorno Henry W. Pickford	312
14	Radical Art: Reflections after Adorno and Heidegger Krzysztof Ziarek	341
15	Queerly Amiss: Sexuality and the Logic of Adorno's Dialectics Jennifer Rycenga	361

Contents

vii

16	“As though the end of the world had come and gone” or Allemal ist nicht immergleich – Critical Theory and the Task of Reading Samuel Weber	379
	Bibliography	400
	Index	425