
CONTENTS

Table of Cases	xv
Table of Legislation and Soft Law Instruments	xxix

PART I MARKET DEFINITION AND INNOVATION

1. Introduction.....	3
I. Innovation and the Relevant Market: The Issues at Stake	4
II. The Parameters of this Study	11
A. The Relevant Market as a Legal Concept of Competition Law.....	11
B. On the Relationship between Law and Economics in Competition Law	12
III. The Course of this Study.....	14
2. The Functions of the Relevant Market in EU Competition and US Antitrust Law.....	19
I. The Relevant Product Market under US Antitrust Law	19
A. Substantive Tests in the Case Law	20
i. Product Interchangeability: Between Cross-price Elasticity of Demand and Product Characteristics	21
ii. Supply-Side Substitutability	22
iii. Brown Shoe : Sub-markets.....	22
iv. Case Law after Brown Shoe : Making Sense of Market Definition	24
B. Section 1 of the Sherman Act and Market Definition	25
C. The Relevant Market in Monopolisation Cases.....	27
D. US Merger Control and Market Definition	29
E. The Functions of Market Definition under US Antitrust Law	31
F. Agency Guidance on Market Definition	33
i. The Horizontal Merger Guidelines	33
ii. Further Agency Guidance	36
II. The Relevant Product Market under EU Competition Law.....	36
A. Substantive Tests in the Case Law	36
i. Early Case Law: Laying the Foundations of Market Definition	37

ii.	The General Court on Market Definition: Consolidation of the Case Law	38
iii.	The Vague Concept of Sufficient Interchangeability	39
iv.	Some Specifics of Market Delineation under EU Competition Law	40
B.	Anti-competitive Agreements and Market Definition	41
C.	The Relevant Market and Abuses of a Dominant Position	44
D.	European Merger Control and Market Definition	46
E.	Functions of Market Definition under EU Competition Law	48
F.	Commission Guidance on Market Definition	49
i.	General Remarks	49
ii.	The Market Definition Notice	50
iii.	Further Commission Guidance	52
III.	The Functions of the Relevant Product Market in the EU and the US: A First Comparative Look	53
A.	Market Definition between Convergence and Divergence	53
B.	The Relevant Market as a Tool for Assessing Market Power	54
C.	The Relevant Market's Functions Outside of Market Power Assessments	55
D.	Further Reflections on the Functions of the Relevant Market	56
IV.	No More Antitrust Market Definition?	58
A.	The Debate in the Literature: Kaplow, Markovits and Beyond	58
B.	Market Definition as a Legal Concept	60
i.	Economics and Antitrust Law	61
ii.	A European Point of View on Market Definition	63
V.	Conclusion	65
3.	Innovation and Competition Law	66
I.	The Notion of Innovation	67
II.	Distinctive Features of Innovative Markets as Challenges for Antitrust Market Definition	69
A.	Features of the Innovative Market	69
B.	Features of the Innovative Product	71
C.	The Dynamics of Competition in Innovative Markets	73
D.	Big Data, Artificial Intelligence, the Internet of Things: What Drives Innovative Markets Today	76
III.	Perspectives on Incorporating Dynamic Competition into Antitrust	77
A.	Schumpeter and Arrow on Dynamic Markets	78
B.	Competition Policy in Dynamic Markets	80
C.	Market Definition's Influence on Innovation: Error Costs	82
IV.	Conclusion	85

PART II
THE INNOVATION FACTOR IN MARKET DELINEATION UNDER EU COMPETITION AND US ANTITRUST LAW

4. Innovative Product Markets	89
I. Innovative Products as a Challenge for Market Definition	89
A. Policy Approaches to Innovative Product Markets	90
B. Market Definition for Digital Innovation: Examples of Innovative Markets	91
i. Interoperability, Network Effects and Data in Digital Platforms	91
ii. E-Commerce and Digital Platforms	94
iii. Digital Assistants and the Internet of Things: Integration of Markets versus Narrow Market Delineation	96
C. How Innovation Impacts Markets: A Tour d'Horizon	99
D. Defining Innovative Product Markets: Conceptual Issues	103
II. Product Differentiation Based on Innovation	106
A. General Issues	106
B. The Online/Offline Paradigm	108
C. Product Differentiation in the Digital World: Free versus Ad-Free Services	115
D. Functionalities and Product Differentiation	116
E. Differentiated Products and Innovation: Some Conceptual Issues	119
III. Innovation and the Time Horizon for Market Definition	120
IV. The Definition of Future Markets	122
A. Future Markets in Pharmaceuticals	122
B. Non-pharmaceuticals and Future Market Definition	124
C. Innovation and the Reliance on Future Markets	126
V. Conclusion	128
5. Beyond Market Definition: Potential Competition, R&D Markets and Innovation Competition	130
I. Potential Competition in Innovative Markets	130
A. Contrasting the EU and US Doctrines of Potential Competition	131
B. Potential Competition and Innovation	134
II. The US Innovation Market Approach	137
A. Policy Developments in Innovation Markets	137
B. Cases Involving Innovation Markets in the US	139
C. Criticism of the Innovation Market Approach	142
D. Lessons from the US Innovation Market Concept	145
E. Some Reflections on the Innovation Market Concept in the EU	145

III.	The Emergence of Innovation Competition.....	147
A.	Competition in Innovation in the EU	147
B.	Innovation Competition in the US	151
C.	The Move from Innovation Markets to Innovation Competition	151
IV.	Conclusion	154
6.	Intellectual Property Rights.....	155
I.	Market Definition and Intellectual Property Rights	155
II.	The Move Away from Intellectual Property Rights Seen as Conferring Market Power	156
III.	Market Definition in the Presence of Intellectual Property Rights	159
A.	Delineating the Relevant Market Along the Lines of an Intellectual Property Right	160
B.	The Role of Intellectual Property Rights in Relevant Markets Not Defined Along the Lines of Intellectual Property Rights.....	165
C.	Analysis.....	172
IV.	Technology Markets and the Licensing of Intellectual Property Rights	179
A.	Policy on Technology Markets	179
B.	Technology Markets in the Case Law	181
C.	The Influence of an Intellectual Property Right's Revocation on the Technology Market	184
D.	Analysis.....	186
V.	Standard-Essential Patents and Product Market Definition: Just Another Technology Market?	187
A.	Policy Regarding Market Definition in Standard-Essential Patents.....	187
B.	Cases Delineating Markets in the Area of Standard-Essential Patents.....	188
C.	Analysis.....	192
VI.	Conclusion.....	193
7.	Innovative Aftermarkets	195
I.	Policy Documents on Delineating Aftermarkets.....	195
II.	The Relationship between Primary and Secondary Markets	198
A.	Primary and Secondary Markets in the Case Law	198
B.	Analysis.....	201
III.	Proprietary Primary Markets and Proprietary Aftermarkets	202
A.	Proprietary Aftermarkets in the Case Law	203
B.	Non-proprietary Aftermarkets Related to Proprietary Primary Markets.....	206
C.	Analysis.....	211

IV.	The Special Case of Aftermarkets in Franchises	214
A.	Franchises in the Case Law	214
B.	Analysis.....	215
V.	Conclusion.....	217
8.	Platform Markets	218
I.	Market Definition in Platforms.....	218
II.	Free Services in Innovative Platform Markets	220
A.	Cases on Free Market Sides.....	221
B.	On the Incorporation of Free Market Sides into the Analysis	223
III.	Delineating Multi-sided Markets.....	226
A.	Cases Ignoring Multi-sidedness	226
B.	Acknowledging a Platform Market's Multi-sidedness	229
i.	EU Courts.....	229
ii.	European Commission	231
iii.	US Courts	232
iv.	US Agencies	234
C.	The Incorporation of Multi-sidedness into the Antitrust Framework	235
D.	Analysis.....	238
i.	Stages of Development Regarding Multi-sidedness in the Case Law.....	238
ii.	Doctrinal Views on Multi-sidedness	240
iii.	Platform Interchangeability: Conceptual Issues.....	244
IV.	Conclusion.....	246
9.	Further Issues Concerning Innovation and Market Delineation	248
I.	Standard Economic Tests and Innovation	248
A.	The Hypothetical Monopolist Test.....	249
i.	From Policy to Case Law.....	249
ii.	The Arbitrariness of the SSNIP	252
iii.	The SSNIP's Heightened Problematic in Innovative Markets	253
iv.	Multi-sided Markets.....	255
B.	Market Shares and Alternatives in Innovative Settings.....	258
i.	Market Share Thresholds in the Case Law as Remnants of a Static Analysis	259
ii.	Market Share Thresholds in Policy Documents – and Alternatives	261
iii.	The Use of Market Shares in Innovative Markets.....	265
C.	Concentration Levels	267
II.	Innovation and Geographical Market Definition.....	269
III.	Conclusion.....	273
	Conclusions on Part II: Accounting for Innovation When Delineating Markets.....	273

PART III
RECONCEPTUALISING THE LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR DELINEATING ANTITRUST MARKETS IN DYNAMIC CONTEXTS

10. An Antitrust Framework for Delineating Dynamic Markets	277
I. A Typology for Reconceptualising the Market Definition Framework.....	278
II. Options for Market Definition Guidance in the Presence of Innovation	280
A. Type A Guidance: Market Delineation with a Focus on Market Power	281
B. Type B Guidance: Market Delineation with a Focus on Market Characterisation	285
C. Discussing the Guidance Options: Depicting Innovation in Antitrust Markets.....	291
i. General Aspects.....	292
ii. Innovative Products and Product Differentiation.....	293
iii. The Time Horizon and Future Markets.....	295
iv. Potential Competition and Innovation Competition.....	296
v. Intellectual Property Rights	298
vi. Aftermarkets	299
vii. Multi-sided Platforms.....	300
viii. Economic Tests.....	303
III. Choosing a Market Definition Framework	304
IV. The Guidance Options as a Way Towards Convergence in Market Definition?	306
V. Conclusion	308
11. Reflections: Is Market Definition Too Big to Fail – or is it Failing Innovation?	310
Bibliography	319
Index	341