

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface: A Gypsy Scholar's Quest	xi
How This Book Came About	xiii
Observation of an Orthodox Post-Communist Nation: Czechoslovakia	xv
Observation of the Liberal Post-Communist Nation: Poland	xvii
Observation of the Advanced Post-Soviet Nations: The Baltic Republics	xviii
Observation Updates of the Transformation Process: Poland and the Czech Republic	xix
Chapter One: The Exodus from Communism	1
The Unforeseen Collapse of Communism	3
The von Mises/ Lange Debate Over Economic Calculation Under Communism	4
The Pyramids of Communism	15
The Ideological Aspects of Communism	18
The Human Costs of Communism	23
The Long Resistance	25
The Dissidents Under Communism	31
The Reformers Under Communism	39
The Parallel to the Biblical Exodus	54
Chapter Two: The Mentality of Post-Communism	57
The Vexatious Problem of Mental Self-Reformation	60
The Denial of Personal Responsibility	62
The Denial of Freedom	69
The Denial of God	78

The Denial of Truth	83
The Denial of Justice	86
The Positive Mental Attitudes	88
The Absence of Mental Health Systems	93

Chapter Three: Transformation Stage I -
The Afterglow of Revolution 99

The Epoch of Anti-Communist Consensus	101
Leadership of the Dissidents	102
The Problem of Ascertaining Appropriate Economic Transformation Steps and Their Sequencing	104
Destruction of Communist Images	106
Punishment of Top Communists	107
The Emergence of a Free Press	111
The Establishment of Competitive Political Parties	113
Adoption of Democratic Constitutions	117
Re-establishment of Organized Religion	118
Reinventing Higher Education	120
Foreign Educational Assistance	123
International Technical Assistance	132
The Exhaustion of Capital	136
Multilateral International Financial Assistance	138
Bilateral International Financial Assistance	145
Post-Socialist Foreign Debt Rescheduling/Forgiveness	146

Chapter Four: Transformation Stage II- Shock Therapy 153

The Necessity of Quick Economic Reform	155
The Prelude to Shock Therapy in Poland	156
The 1990 Introduction of Shock Therapy in Poland	158
The Efficacy of Shock Therapy in Poland	161
The Prelude of Shock Therapy in Czechoslovakia	164

The 1991 Introduction of Shock Therapy in Czechoslovakia	166
The Efficacy of Shock Therapy in Czechoslovakia	167
The Prelude to Shock Therapy in Russia	170
The 1992 Introduction of Shock Therapy in Russia	172
The Efficacy of Shock Therapy in Russia	176
The Experience of Other Nations Pursuing Shock Therapy	178
The Hungarian Experience With Gradual Economic Reform	179
The Experience of Other Nations Pursuing Gradual Economic Reform	195
Withdrawal of the Soviet Military	197
Drastic Drops in Gross Domestic Products	198

Chapter Five: Transformation Stage III -
Establishment of Market Institutions 201

The Need to Provide a Structure for the Free Market	203
The Rule of Law as the Foundation of the Free Market System	204
Restitution of Property Confiscated by the Communists	207
Auction and Leasing Privatization of Retail Outlets	209
Predominance of Startup Entrepreneurs in the Period of Wild Capitalism	211
Foreign Direct Investment	213
Establishment of Securities Markets	218
Establishment of Anti-Monopoly Laws	229
Establishment of Governmental Regulatory Programs	252
Establishment of Taxation Systems	257
Introduction of New Currencies	266

Chapter Six: Transformation Stage IV - Reactionary Developments	269
The Problem of Continuing Negative Developments in All Democracies	271
Persistence of Labor Hoarding	272
Emergence of Authoritarian Leadership	278
Persistence of Massive Criminality	329
Inadequate Immigration Controls	336
Flaring of Conflicts Between Nationalities and Ethnic Groups	339
Negative Status of Women	345
Decline in Social Security Systems	348
Decline in Health Care Systems	356
The Need for Educational Reform	361
Generation Problems in Post-Socialist Societies	363
Chapter Seven: Transformation Stage V - Large Privatizations	367
Choice of Methods in Large Privatizations	369
Establishment of Corporate Governance Systems	375
Establishment of Bankruptcy Systems	380
Rationalization of Financial Institutions	384
Rationalization of Agriculture	393
Rationalization of Transportation Systems	397
Rationalization of Energy Supplies	409
The Special Problem of Nuclear Energy	420
Establishment of Environmental Policy	429
Establishment of Labor Policy	437
Chapter Eight: A Common Europe: Collective Security	443

The Cultural/Intellectual/Spiritual Strength of Post-Socialist Europe	445
The Cost of Instability in Midcontinental Europe in the Twentieth Century (Illustrated with Six Maps)	450
The Attempt to Maintain the Russian Empire	466
The Population Distribution in the New Nations Emergent from the Soviet Union	467
The Continuing Russian Military Presence in the New Nations Emergent from the Soviet Union (Illustrated with One Map)	470
The Continuing Russian Violation of Arms Control Agreements	475
The Domination of the Russian Government by Reactionary Forces	477
The Failure of Russian Economic Reforms	479
The Flawed Russian Definition of a Great Nation	484
The Need to Secure Midcontinental Europe with New Memberships in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization	488
Delays in the Expansion of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization	489
The Lack of an Alternative to Expansion of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization	491
The Mechanisms for Stabilization of Midcontinental Europe by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization	491
Chapter Nine: A Common Europe: Economic Integration	511
The Need to Expand the European Union to Include the Advanced Post-Socialist Nations	511
The Reconfiguration of Foreign Trade by the Post-Socialist Nations	521

The Weak Economic Performance of the European Union in the 1990s	524
The Economic Structural Disorder of the European Union	531
The Flawed Vision of the European Union's Monetary System	534
The Precarious Leading Role of Germany in the European Union	543
The Peculiar Supporting Role of France in the European Union	549
The Need for the European Union to Focus on the Addition of Further New Members	553
The Mechanisms for Admission of the Advanced Post-Socialist Nations to the European Union	555
The Future American Commitment to the Post-Socialist Democracies	563
Epilogue: The Best and Worst of Times	567
A Modern Tale of Two Cities	569
Nabucco vs. The Force of Destiny	570
The Promised Land	572
Addendum: Wandering in the Desert	575
About the Author	577
Post-Socialist Cities in Which the Author Has Lived and Worked	578
Post-Socialist Locations Visited by the Author	579
A Note About Sources	587
An Affectionate Farewell	588