

Table of contents

Chapter One: Introduction	9
Chapter Two: The Interpersonal Function in the Discourse of Commercial Websites (Christopher Hopkinson)
2.1 Introduction, theoretical framework, research aims and methods	11
2.1.1 Theoretical framework and research aims	11
2.1.2 Materials and methods	16
2.2 Encoding the participants in the discourse	19
2.2.1 Encoding the producer	20
2.2.2 Encoding the reader	23
2.2.3 Syntagmatic arrangement of encoding options	26
2.2.4 Distribution of encoding options: results and discussion	28
2.2.4.1 Context variable 1 – target culture	28
2.2.4.2 Context variable 2 – car category	30
2.3 Constructing identities and virtual relationships in the discourse	32
2.3.1 Utterances stating or implying familiarity	33
2.3.2 Personalization and emotionalization of the producer	35
2.3.3 Speech acts simulating reciprocity	36
2.3.4 Facework	39
2.3.5 Distribution of familiarity utterances and pseudo-reciprocal speech acts: results and discussion	39
2.4 Conclusion	41
Chapter Three: Advertising Education: Interpersonal Aspects in the Genre of University Websites (Renáta Tomášková)
3.1 Introduction	44
3.2 Research aims	44
3.3 Methods and theoretical framework	45
3.3.1 Systemic Functional Linguistics and genre analysis: key concepts	45
3.3.2 Genres in evolution	47
3.3.3 Genre continuum on the web	47
3.3.4 Genre analysis of hypertext	48
3.3.5 Persuasion, genres, and the hierarchy of semantic components and contextual factors	49
3.4 Material	50
3.5 University website: institutional discourse in hypertext	51
3.6 Attracting the reader	52
3.7 Targeting the market	56
3.8 Justifying the product	57
3.9 Detailing the product/service	60
3.10 Establishing credentials	67
3.11 Celebrity or typical user endorsement	70
3.12 Offering incentives, using pressure tactics and soliciting response	71
3.13 Conclusions	72

Chapter Four: Where is the Truth? – Discourse Analysis of Newspaper Headlines (Barbora Blažková)

4.1	Introduction and aims	74
4.2	Theoretical framework	74
4.2.1	The corpus	75
4.3	Communication	77
4.3.1	The newspaper	77
4.3.2	The audience – readership	79
4.4	The genre of headlines	81
4.5	Words	82
4.5.1	Negative lexicalization	83
4.5.2	The distinction between “us” and “them”	83
4.5.3	Defining a victim	84
4.5.4	Compassion move	85
4.5.5	Emotive language	86
4.6	Personal pronouns	87
4.6.1	The pronoun “we”	87
4.6.2	The pronoun “they”	89
4.6.3	The pronoun “you”	89
4.6.4	The pronoun “I”	90
4.7	Speech roles	90
4.7.1	Statements	91
4.7.2	Questions	92
4.7.3	Commands	94
4.8	Modality	94
4.8.1	Relational modality	95
4.8.2	Expressive modality	96
4.9	Agency and affectedness	97
4.9.1	The active voice	97
4.9.2	The passive voice	99
4.10	Conclusion	100
Chapter Five: Concluding remarks		103
Bibliography		105
Internet Sources		107
Corpus		108