

Contents

List of Figures and Tables

ix

Introduction: the neo-medieval paradigm	1
Genesis of the book	2
Unidentified political object	4
Should Europe become a state?	7
The neo-medieval alternative	9
Two types of empire	11
Uses and abuses of models	14
Structure of the book	20
1. Return to Europe	23
Assessing Eastern European progress	25
Market reforms and social peace	29
Constitutional liberalism or praetorianism?	33
Flash points that never flashed	34
Comparison with other post-Communist states	36
Conclusions	42
2. European power politics	44
The purpose of accession	49
Imperial design and the process of accession	54
Benign empire in action	57
Agents behind the accession	59
Conclusions	63

3. Diversity and adaptation	65
Diversity and European integration	67
Diversity and European institutions	71
Economic 'fault lines' in the enlarged EU	74
Diversity in democracy and political culture	78
The American bias	83
Conclusions	88
4. Economic governance	91
The challenge of internal cohesion	94
The global competition challenge	100
The cross-border interdependence challenge	105
Conclusions	115
5. Democratic governance	117
Governance structure	120
Majoritarianism versus constitutionalism	125
Public space and democratic culture	133
Conclusions	137
6. Governance beyond borders	140
The EU as an international actor	143
The emerging international system in Europe	150
Competing universalistic claims: EU versus United States	156
Conclusions	162
Conclusions: implications of neo-medievalism	164
What makes Europe neo-medieval	166
Integration through enlargement	171
Governing the neo-medieval Europe	176
Legitimacy in the neo-medieval Europe	182
Participation, representation, and contestation	186
The case for optimism	189
Notes	192
Bibliography	272
Index	285