
Contents

List of contributors

vii

1 Introduction

1

Derek L. Braddon and Keith Hartley

2 The history of economic thought on conflict

8

Fanny Coulomb

PART I THEORY

3 A bargaining theory perspective on war

29

Charles H. Anderton and John R. Carter

4 Modeling mass killing: for gain or ethnic cleansing?

52

Attiat F. Ott and Sang Hoo Bae

5 The economics of destructive power

79

Mehrdad Vahabi

6 The government budget allocation process and national security: an application to the Israeli–Syrian arms race

105

Itay Ringel and Asher Tishler

7 Characteristics of terrorism

143

Karen Pittel and Dirk Rübbelke

8 Conflict and corruption

172

John R. Hudson

9 Conflict in space

195

Vasilis Zervos

10 The economics of peacekeeping

237

Vincenzo Bove and Ron Smith

11 Peacekeeping, private benefits and common agency

265

Ugurhan G. Berkok and Binyam Solomon

12 The long-term costs of conflict: the case of the Iraq War

293

Linda J. Bilmes and Joseph E. Stiglitz

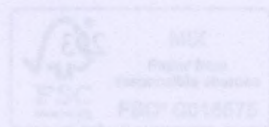

13 Macroeconomics and violence

311

Jürgen Brauer and J. Paul Dunne

PART II CASE STUDIES

14	The macroeconomic effects of conflict: three case studies Christos Kollias and Suzanna-Maria Paleologou	341
15	Economics of conflict: Turkey's experience Sennur Sezgin and Selami Sezgin	362
16	Terrorism: the case of ETA Carlos P. Barros and Luis A. Gil-Alana	377
17	Helping secure the 'biggest bang for the taxpayers' buck': defence resource management in the United Kingdom Neil Davies, Tony Turner, Andrew Gibbons, Stuart Davies, David Jones and Nick Bennett	394
18	The economic impact of the conflict in the Balkans: the case of Serbia Derek L. Braddon, Jonathan Bradley and Paul Dowdall	420
19	The strategic bombing of Germany in the Second World War: an economic perspective Keith Hartley	453
20	The reprivatization of war Stefan Markowski and Peter Hall	479
	Index	507

ISBN 0 646 4448 1 879 NBSI

Typeset by Servis Filmsetting, Ltd, Southampton, England
Printed by the University of Cambridge Press, Cambridge, UK