

Contents

List of contributors	xi
----------------------	----

An overview	1
Erica Frydenberg

Part I Introduction

① Understanding coping: towards a comprehensive theoretical framework	9
Erica Frydenberg

Part II Development

2 Resilience and coping: the role of individual temperament	33
Margot Prior
3 Learning to cope: a discursive perspective	53
Roger Säljö
4 Sexuality in adolescence: a suitable case for coping?	64
Susan Moore
⑤ The development of social coping skills	81
Michael Argyle

Part III Family

⑥ Families as the crucible of competence in a changing social ecology	109
Don Edgar
7 The effect of family talk on young children's development and coping	130
Susan M. Chambers
8 The experience of divorce and separation in the family: a dynamic systems perspective	150
Solly Dreman

Part IV School

- 9 Coping in context: goal frustration and goal ambivalence in relation to academic and interpersonal goals 175
Monique Boekaerts
- 10 Learning to cope with conflict and violence: how schools can help youth 198
Susan Opatow and Morton Deutsch
- 11 Decision making and coping in adolescence 225
Leon Mann and Isaac Friedman
- 12 Strengthening the family-school partnership through 'Check and Connect' 248
Sandra L. Christenson and E. Brooke Carroll

Part V Peers and community

- 13 Parental and school resources that assist adolescents in coping with negative peer influences 277
Sanford M. Dornbusch, Jennifer Laird, and Robert Crosnoe
- 14 Coping in children and adolescents: a prevention model for helping kids avoid or reduce at-risk behaviour 299
Stephen A. Rollin, C. Wayne Anderson, and Robert M. Buncher
- 15 Children, young people, and war: learning to cope 322
Orla Muldoon and Ed Cairns

Part VI The way forward: future research

- 16 Constructing a research agenda 341
Erica Frydenberg

Index

353