

Contents

List of tables, figures and boxes	ix
Glossary of terms	xi
About the authors	xviii
Acknowledgements	xix
Preface	xxi
1 What is population ageing? (Demography)	1
Introduction	1
Our approach	2
Outline of chapters	6
What is population ageing?	9
Myths and facts about population ageing	12
Why is population ageing a big deal?	13
Population ageing in the context of population change	15
Population pyramids	18
A final thought	20
Review exercise 1	20
2 When am I officially past it? The ageist zeitgeist (Ageism and ageist stereotyping)	21
Introduction	21
What is an attitude?	22
What is ageism against older people?	26
How do we acquire attitudes?	27
What are stereotypes and why do we use them?	29
Is it all doom and gloom?	31
A final thought	31
Review exercise 2	33
3 Will I ever have enough money to retire? (Retirement, active ageing and working longer)	35
Introduction	35
Pensions	36
A brief history of pensions in the UK	37
The concept of the dependency ratio	39
Neoliberalising retirement	40
Does everybody get a pension?	41
Pension reform	42
Active and successful ageing (and their many detractors)	43
Work, retirement and the institutionalised lifecourse	45

Extending working lives: supply of and demand for older workers	47
A final thought	50
Review exercise 3	50
4 Will I need care when I am old? (Care and support in later life)	51
Introduction	51
Physiological changes that may accompany ageing	54
World Health Organization approach to healthy ageing	57
Long-term care	59
Who cares for whom?	63
Quality of care	66
A final thought	68
Review exercise 4	69
5 All old people are pretty much the same, aren't they? (Diversity among the ageing population)	71
Introduction	71
Sexual orientation and gender identity	74
An overview of minority ageing	78
Diversity and dementia	79
New ageing populations	81
A final thought	83
Review exercise 5	83
6 Aren't gender differences neutralised by age? (Gender)	85
Introduction	85
Why do women live longer than men?	86
How do pension and care policies affect women and men?	87
Intersectionality: men, women and ageism	89
Studying women versus using a feminist framework	91
Masculinity: sometimes it is hard to be a man ...	93
A final thought	95
Review exercise 6	96
7 Why do older people have it so good? (The myth of intergenerational conflict)	97
Introduction	97
What is a 'generation'?	98
That's generation – now what about solidarity?	102
Lessons from other crises	103
Neoliberalism and the myth of generational conflict	105
Grandparenting	107
A final thought	108
Review exercise 7	109

8	Why do older people vote, while younger people protest? (Politics of ageing)	111
	Introduction	111
	The political roots of population ageing as a policy problem	111
	Social policy demands of the 21st century	113
	Political demography: linking population change to government and politics	116
	Are we heading towards an era of 'gerontocracy'?	119
	A final thought	122
	Review exercise 8	123
9	What does it mean to live a long life? (Cultural gerontology)	125
	Introduction	125
	Cultures of Ageing	126
	Human ageing: rational, scientific management of old age	129
	Cultural critique of the 'narrative of decline'	131
	Material culture: the 'Lively project'	132
	The re-embodiment of old age	133
	A final thought	136
	Review exercise 9	137
10	What are my next steps? (Conclusions, reflections and actions)	139
	Introduction	139
	Chapter overview	139
	Pulling it all together: themes and issues for further research	145
	Language and the moral economy of ageing	148
11	Now that you know about ageing ... (Additional questions and revision)	151
	Questions
	Chapter 1: Demography	151
	Chapter 2: Ageism and ageist stereotyping	152
	Chapter 3: Retirement, active ageing and working longer	153
	Chapter 4: Care and support in later life	154
	Chapter 5: Diversity among the ageing population	155
	Chapter 6: Gender	156
	Chapter 7: The myth of intergenerational conflict	158
	Chapter 8: Politics of ageing	159
	Chapter 9: Cultural gerontology	160
	Answers
	Chapter 1: Demography	161
	Chapter 2: Ageism and ageist stereotyping	161
	Chapter 3: Retirement, active ageing and working longer	162

Chapter 4: Care and support in later life	163
Chapter 5: Diversity among the ageing population	163
Chapter 6: Gender	164
Chapter 7: The myth of intergenerational conflict	164
Chapter 8: Politics of ageing	165
Chapter 9: Cultural gerontology	165
Appendix 1: Review exercise 1 – detailed instructions on constructing a population pyramid	167
Appendix 2: World Health Organization liveability framework domains	177
Appendix 3: Care Quality Commission fundamental standards	179
References	181
Index	203