

Contents

SECTION V

New technologies and cultural forms

16

Doing technoscience as ('new') media

SARAH TEMER

List of contributors

Acknowledgement

Editors' introduction

JAMES CURRAN AND DAVID MORLEY

SECTION I

Media, modernity and globalisation

1 The 'poetics' of communication

BILL SCHWARZ

2 Globalisation and cultural imperialism reconsidered:
old questions in new guises

DAVID MORLEY

3 The push and pull of global culture

JAMES LULL

4 Post-feminism and popular culture: Bridget Jones and the new gender regime

ANGELA MCROBBIE

SECTION II

Media, community and dialogue

5 A nation and its immigration: the USA after September 11

ARVIND RAJAGOPAL

x

xiv

1

15

19

30

44

59

71

75

- 6 Thinking experiences: transnational media and migrants' minds 86
KEVIN ROBINS AND ASU AKSOY

- 7 Peckham tales: Mass Observation and the modalities of community 100
GARETH STANTON

- 8 Media as conversation, conversation as media 115
JOHN DURHAM PETERS

SECTION III

Media power, ideology and markets 127

- 9 Media and cultural theory in the age of market liberalism 129
JAMES CURRAN

- 10 Placing promotional culture 149
AERON DAVIS

- 11 International agreements and the regulation of world communication 164
TED MAGDER

- 12 Transvaluing media studies: or, beyond the myth of the mediated centre 177
NICK COULDREY

SECTION IV

Cultural production, consumption and aesthetics 195

- 13 Rethinking creative production away from the cultural industries 197
KEITH NEGUS

- 14 'Inventing the psychological': lifestyle magazines and the fiction of autonomous selfhood 209
LISA BLACKMAN

- 15 Discussing quality: critical vocabularies and popular television drama 221

CHRISTINE GERAGHTY

SECTION V

New technologies and cultural forms 233

- 16 Doing technoscience as ('new') media 235

SARAH KEMBER

- 17 Synthesians among us: rethinking the actor in media work and media theory 250

JONATHAN BURSTON

- 18 Digital film and 'late' capitalism: a cinema for heroes? 263

JANET HARBORD

- 19 Internet transformations: 'old' media resilience in the 'new media' revolution 275

DES FREEDMAN

- Index 291