

Contents

Preface 11

Acknowledgements 17

Part I: Security, Anxiety, and Distress

- 1 Prototypes of Human Sorrow 21
  - Responses of young children to separation from mother 21
  - Conditions leading to intense responses 24
  - Conditions mitigating the intensity of responses 35
  - Presence or absence of mother figure: a key variable 42
- 2 The Place of Separation and Loss in Psychopathology 45
  - Problem and perspective 45
  - Separation anxiety and other forms of anxiety 50
  - A challenge for theory 51
- 3 Behaviour with and without Mother: Humans 54
  - Naturalistic observations 54
  - Experimental studies 60
  - Ontogeny of responses to separation 74
- 4 Behaviour with and without Mother: Non-human Primates 80
  - Naturalistic observations 80
  - Early experimental studies 83
  - Further studies by Hinde and Spencer-Booth 92

Part II: An Ethological Approach to Human Fear

- 5 Basic Postulates in Theories of Anxiety and Fear 101
  - Anxiety allied to fear 101
  - Models of motivation and their effects on theory 103
  - Puzzling phobia or natural fear 107

Contents

- 6 Forms of Behaviour Indicative of Fear 112
  - An empirical approach 112
  - Withdrawal behaviour and attachment behaviour 115
  - Feeling afraid and its variants: feeling alarmed and feeling anxious 117
- 7 Situations that Arouse Fear in Humans 122
  - A difficult field of study 122
  - Fear-arousing situations: the first year 125
  - Fear-arousing situations: the second and later years 132
  - Compound situations 146
  - Fear behaviour and the development of attachment 147
- 8 Situations that Arouse Fear in Animals 152
  - Natural clues to potential danger 152
  - Fear behaviour of non-human primates 156
  - Compound situations 162
  - Fear, attack, and exploration 165
- 9 Natural Clues to Danger and Safety 167
  - Better safe than sorry 167
  - Potential danger of being alone 172
  - Potential safety of familiar companions and environment 176
  - Maintaining a stable relationship with the familiar environment: a form of homeostasis 179
- 10 Natural Clues, Cultural Clues, and the Assessment of Danger 182
  - Clues of three kinds 182
  - Real danger: difficulties of assessment 185
  - 'Imaginary' dangers 187
  - Cultural clues learnt from others 190
  - Continuing role of the natural clues 193
  - Behaviour in disaster 198
- 11 Rationalization, Misattribution, and Projection 201
  - Difficulties in identifying situations that arouse fear 201
  - Misattribution and the role of projection 204
  - The case of Schreber: a re-examination 206

- 12 Fear of Separation 211
Hypotheses regarding its development 211
Need for two terminologies 215
- Part III: Individual Differences in Susceptibility to Fear:
Anxious Attachment
- 13 Some Variables responsible for Individual Differences 219
Constitutional variables 219
Experiences and processes that reduce susceptibility
to fear 223
Experiences and processes that increase susceptibility
to fear 228
- 14 Susceptibility to Fear and the Availability of Attachment
Figures 234
Forecasting the availability of an attachment figure 234
Working models of attachment figures and of self 236
The role of experience in determining working models 241
A note on use of the terms 'mature' and 'immature' 243
- 15 Anxious Attachment and Some Conditions that Promote it 245
'Overdependency' or anxious attachment 245
Anxious attachment of children reared without a permanent mother figure 249
Anxious attachment after a period of separation or of daily substitute care 254
Anxious attachment following threats of abandonment or suicide 263
- 16 'Overdependency' and the Theory of Spoiling 275
Some contrasting theories 275
Studies of 'overdependency' and its antecedents 278
- 17 Anger, Anxiety, and Attachment 284
Anger: a response to separation 284
Anger: functional and dysfunctional 285
Anger, ambivalence, and anxiety 292

Contents

18	Anxious Attachment and the 'Phobias' of Childhood	297
	Phobia, pseudophobia, and anxiety state	297
	'School phobia' or school refusal	300
	Two classical cases of childhood phobia: a reappraisal	325
	Animal phobias in childhood	331
19	Anxious Attachment and 'Agoraphobia'	334
	Symptomatology and theories of 'agoraphobia'	334
	Pathogenic patterns of family interaction	342
	'Agoraphobia', bereavement, and depression	352
	A note on response to treatment	354
20	Omission, Suppression, and Falsification of Family Context	357
21	Secure Attachment and the Growth of Self-reliance	366
	Personality development and family experience	366
	Studies of adolescents and young adults	373
	Studies of young children	396
	Self-reliance and reliance on others	406
22	Pathways for the Growth of Personality	411
	The nature of individual variation: alternative models	411
	Developmental pathways and homeorhesis	414
	One person's pathway: some determinants	418
 Appendices
I	Separation Anxiety: Review of Literature	423
II	Psychoanalysis and Evolution Theory	449
III	Problems of Terminology	454
	References	461
	Index	485