

Contents

Table of statutes	xxi
Table of statutory instruments	xxxii
Table of European legislation	xxxix
Table of cases	xli
1 Introduction	1
1.1 General	1
1.2 A brief history of legal intervention and the legislation	4
1.2.1 Origins	4
1.2.2 The early legislation	5
1.2.3 The Conservative governments 1979–97	6
1.2.4 Labour 1997–2010: change and continuity	9
1.2.5 The Coalition government 2010–15	12
1.2.6 The Conservative government 2015	13
1.3 Machinery (1): practical dispute resolution	14
1.3.1 The Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service	15
1.3.1.1 Collective conciliation	16
1.3.1.2 Individual conciliation	17
1.3.1.3 Arranging arbitration	20
1.3.1.4 Advice	22
1.3.1.5 Powers of inquiry	23
1.3.1.6 Codes of practice	24
1.3.2 The Central Arbitration Committee	25
1.3.3 The Certification Officer	26
1.4 Machinery (2): judicial dispute resolution	27
1.4.1 Employment tribunals	28
1.4.1.1 Constitution	28
1.4.1.2 Representation and costs	29
1.4.1.3 Procedure and the introduction of fees	30
1.4.2 The Employment Appeal Tribunal	32
1.4.2.1 Constitution	32
1.4.2.2 Appeal on a point of law	32
1.4.2.3 Three specific aspects	35
Review and final thoughts	36
2 Contracts of employment (1): status, formation, continuity, and change	38
Overview	39
2.1 The relationship of employer and employee; other forms of engagement	39
2.1.1 Definition of the relationship	41

2.1.1.1	The original approach—control and integration	41
2.1.1.2	The multiple approach	42
2.1.1.3	Mutuality and personal service	43
2.1.1.4	The bottom line?	45
2.1.1.5	Delegation clauses and sham contractual terms	47
2.1.1.6	The parties' own classification	48
2.1.2	Three particular applications	51
2.1.3	'Worker' and the wider definition of employment	53
2.1.3.1	The original applications	53
2.1.3.2	Definition	54
2.1.3.3	Wider application	55
2.1.3.4	Three examples	56
2.1.4	Atypical workers (1)—domestic law	57
2.1.4.1	Background	57
2.1.4.2	Economic developments	58
2.1.4.3	Casual working generally	60
2.1.4.4	Four possible answers	61
2.1.4.5	The particular problem of agency working	64
2.1.4.6	The particular problem of zero-hour contracts	66
2.1.5	Atypical workers (2)—EU intervention	68
2.1.5.1	Part-time workers	69
2.1.5.2	Fixed-term employees	72
2.1.5.3	Agency workers	76
2.1.6	Associated employers	80
2.1.7	Possible reforms: the Taylor Review	82
2.2	Formation	84
2.2.1	The contractual basis of employment	84
2.2.2	Recruitment issues	86
2.2.2.1	Discrimination	87
2.2.2.2	Data protection	87
2.2.2.3	Previous convictions	88
2.2.2.4	Immigration status	88
2.2.2.5	References	89
2.3	Form	91
2.3.1	Form generally	91
2.3.2	Notice of terms of employment	92
2.3.2.1	The status of the written statement	92
2.3.2.2	Requirements of the written statement	94
2.3.2.3	Enforcement	96
2.4	Legality and restraint of trade	99
2.4.1	The doctrine of illegality generally	99
2.4.1.1	The basic position	99
2.4.1.2	Application to employment law, in particular in cases of tax evasion	100
2.4.1.3	The tax evasion cases	101
2.4.1.4	Three qualifications	102

2.4.2 The doctrine of restraint of trade	104
2.4.2.1 The use of restraint clauses	104
2.4.2.2 Valid or void?	105
2.4.3 Protectable interests	107
2.4.3.1 Trade secrets	107
2.4.3.2 Customer connections	108
2.4.3.3 Extension to cases of solicitation of staff	108
2.4.4 The extent of the restraint	110
2.4.5 Enforcement	111
2.4.5.1 Basic principles	111
2.4.5.2 Saving a potentially void clause?	112
2.4.5.3 Enforcement by the employer	114
2.5 Continuity of employment	115
2.5.1 The concept of continuity and the treatment of part-time employees	115
2.5.2 Weeks which count	117
2.5.2.1 'Any week during the whole or part of which the employee's relations with the employer are governed by a contract of employment' (Employment Rights Act 1996, s 212(1))	117
2.5.2.2 A week during which there is no subsisting contract of employment, but which is covered by special statutory provisions	118
2.5.3 Industrial disputes	123
2.5.4 Change of employment	124
2.6 Changing the terms of employment	127
2.6.1 Unilateral right to vary	127
2.6.2 Within managerial discretion to vary	128
2.6.3 Employee consent	129
2.6.4 Dismiss and re-engage on new terms	131
Review and final thoughts	133
3 Contracts of employment (2): content and wages	135
Overview	136
3.1 Express terms	136
3.1.1 Generally	136
3.1.2 Written or oral	138
3.1.3 Three problems	140
3.2 The implication of terms	143
3.2.1 The process of implication	143
3.2.1.1 Inferred terms	144
3.2.1.2 Imposed terms	145
3.2.1.3 Overriding terms	146
3.2.2 Particular sources of terms	149
3.2.2.1 Collective bargains	149
3.2.2.2 Custom	154
3.2.2.3 Works rules, company handbooks, and policy statements	158

3.3 Implied duties of the employer	160
3.3.1 To pay wages	160
3.3.2 To provide work	160
3.3.3 To exercise care	163
3.3.3.1 The duty generally	163
3.3.3.2 Stress at work cases	164
3.3.3.3 Application to references	168
3.3.4 To treat the employee with respect	170
3.3.4.1 Importance of the implied term of trust and confidence	170
3.3.4.2 Development of the term	171
3.3.4.3 During employment, not on termination	173
3.3.5 To deal promptly and properly with grievances	175
3.3.6 To provide a reasonably suitable working environment	176
3.3.7 Further developments: advice, confidentiality, and PHI schemes	177
3.3.7.1 Informing and/or advising the employee	177
3.3.7.2 Confidentiality	179
3.3.7.3 The permanent health insurance cases	182
3.3.7.4 A wider principle?	183
3.4 Implied duties of the employee	185
3.4.1 Obedience	185
3.4.2 Adaptation to new methods and techniques	186
3.4.3 The duty of care	187
3.4.4 Good faith	190
3.4.4.1 The general duty of fidelity	190
3.4.4.2 Competition	193
3.4.4.3 Misuse or disclosure of confidential information	195
3.4.4.4 The exception for whistleblowers	200
3.4.4.5 The employee's inventions	206
3.4.4.6 Failure to serve the employer faithfully	209
3.5 The law relating to wages	211
3.5.1 The right to wages at common law	211
3.5.1.1 The basic principles	211
3.5.1.2 Use as a test case	213
3.5.1.3 Applying the principle 'no work, no pay'	213
3.5.1.4 Inability to work	215
3.5.1.5 Mistaken overpayments	217
3.5.2 Wages during sickness and statutory sick pay	218
3.5.2.1 At common law	218
3.5.2.2 The statutory sick pay scheme	220
3.5.3 Wages during lay-off or short time	222
3.5.3.1 Generally	222
3.5.3.2 Guarantee payments	223
3.5.3.3 Suspension from work on medical grounds	225
3.5.4 Calculation of normal working hours and a week's pay	226
3.5.4.1 Normal working hours	226
3.5.4.2 A week's pay	228

3.5.5 Protection of wages	232
3.5.5.1 The repeal of the Truck Acts and the effect on cashless pay	232
3.5.5.2 Deductions from wages	234
3.6 Rights on the employer's insolvency	240
Review and final thoughts	241
4 Discrimination in employment	244
Overview	245
4.1 Historical background	245
4.2 The equality Act 2010	249
4.2.1 Application and coverage	249
4.2.2 Protected characteristics	251
4.2.3 The meaning of 'discrimination'	253
4.2.3.1 Direct discrimination	254
4.2.3.2 Indirect discrimination	261
4.2.3.3 Harassment	269
4.2.3.4 Victimization	273
4.2.3.5 Positive discrimination	275
4.2.4 Discrimination before employment	278
4.2.5 Discrimination during employment	279
4.2.6 Discrimination on, and after, termination of employment	280
4.2.7 Proving discrimination	282
4.2.8 Vicarious liability	286
4.2.9 Remedies	288
4.2.9.1 Compensation	290
4.2.9.2 The EHRC	293
4.3 Sex discrimination	293
4.3.1 Dress and appearance rules	294
4.3.2 Equal pay	296
4.3.2.1 Equality of terms	299
4.3.2.2 Like work	300
4.3.2.3 Work rated as equivalent	303
4.3.2.4 Work of equal value	304
4.3.2.5 The area of comparison	306
4.3.2.6 The genuine material factor defence	308
4.3.2.7 Equal pay remedies	313
4.3.2.8 Pensions and equal pay	315
4.4 Sexual orientation discrimination in employment	316
4.5 Racial discrimination in employment	318
4.5.1 Positive duties	320
4.6 Religion or belief discrimination in employment	322
4.6.1 Indirect discrimination	324
4.6.2 Justification	325
4.6.3 GORs	327

4.7 Disability discrimination in employment	328
4.7.1 The meaning of 'disability'	330
4.7.1.1 Elements of the definition	331
4.7.1.2 Special issues in applying the definition	334
4.7.2 The meaning of 'discrimination'	336
4.7.2.1 Discrimination arising from a disability	336
4.7.2.2 The duty to make adjustments	339
4.8 Age discrimination in employment	343
4.8.1 The meaning of age discrimination	345
4.8.2 Exceptions	346
4.8.3 Retirement	346
Review and final thoughts	349
5 The work-life balance legislation	351
Overview	352
5.1 The logic of regulating	352
5.1.1 The problem of caring responsibilities	353
5.1.2 The long-hours culture	354
5.1.3 Long hours as a 'choice'	356
5.2 The national minimum wage Act 1998	358
5.2.1 The minimum wage entitlement	358
5.2.1.1 On-call time	359
5.2.1.2 The level of pay	360
5.2.2 Calculation of compliance	361
5.2.3 Enforcement	363
5.3 The working time regulations 1998	364
5.3.1 Application	365
5.3.2 Agreements to vary or exclude	366
5.3.3 Two principal exceptions	367
5.3.4 Maximum weekly working time	369
5.3.4.1 'On-call' time as working time	369
5.3.4.2 Travel time as working time	370
5.3.4.3 The 'opt-out'	371
5.3.5 Limits on night working	373
5.3.6 Rest periods	374
5.3.7 Compensatory rest	375
5.3.8 Annual leave	376
5.3.8.1 Coverage	376
5.3.8.2 'Rolling over' annual leave during sick leave	376
5.3.8.3 Contractual leave rules	377
5.3.8.4 Rolled-up holiday pay	378
5.3.8.5 What is a week's pay for leave purposes?	379
5.3.8.6 Timing of leave	379
5.3.9 Enforcement	381

5.3.10 Effects and future	382
5.4 Rights on the birth or adoption of a child	383
5.4.1 The development of parental rights	384
5.4.2 Dismissal and detriment for pregnancy or childbirth	387
5.4.2.1 Protection from dismissal	387
5.4.2.2 Protection from detriment	390
5.4.3 Maternity leave	391
5.4.3.1 Commencement and duration	392
5.4.3.2 Notice requirements	393
5.4.4 Statutory maternity pay	395
5.4.4.1 Background	396
5.4.4.2 Qualification	397
5.4.4.3 The right to payment	397
5.4.5 Paternity leave (and pay)	398
5.4.5.1 Qualification and notice requirements	399
5.4.5.2 Extent of the entitlement	400
5.4.6 Shared parental leave (and pay)	401
5.4.6.1 Qualification and notice requirements	401
5.4.6.2 Extent of the entitlement	403
5.4.7 Adoption leave and pay	403
5.4.8 Issues around returning to work	405
5.4.9 Risk assessment and suspension from work on maternity grounds	408
5.4.10 Time off for antenatal care	410
5.5 Rights relating to caring responsibilities (parental leave and flexible working)	411
5.5.1 Parental leave	411
5.5.1.1 Entitlement to parental leave	411
5.5.1.2 Collective or workforce agreements	413
5.5.1.3 The model scheme	413
5.5.2 Emergency time off for dependants	414
5.5.3 Flexible working	416
Review and final thoughts	419
6 Termination of the employment contract at common law	420
Overview	420
6.1 Modes of termination other than dismissal	421
6.1.1 Death or dissolution of the enterprise	421
6.1.2 Frustration of the contract	424
6.1.2.1 Frustration by illness	425
6.1.2.2 Notcutt , the right to terminate with notice, and disability	426
6.1.2.3 Frustration by imprisonment	429
6.1.3 Expiry of fixed-term contracts	430
6.1.3.1 Fixed-term contracts with notice periods	431
6.1.3.2 Can an event define the term?	432

6.1.4 Mutual consent	433
6.2 Dismissal by notice	436
6.2.1 Wages in lieu of notice	437
6.2.2 Rights during notice	439
6.2.3 'Garden leave' and other restraints during notice	441
6.3 Dismissal for cause (summary dismissal)	442
6.4 Wrongful dismissal	446
6.4.1 Meaning	446
6.4.2 Remedies	447
6.4.2.1 The rule against enforcement	447
6.4.2.2 Automatic v elective theories	447
6.4.2.3 Geys and the elective theory	450
6.4.2.4 Exceptions to the rule against enforcement	452
6.4.2.5 Damages for wrongful dismissal	456
6.4.2.6 Reduction of damages	465
6.4.3 Wrongful dismissal and unfair dismissal	467
6.4.4 The residual importance of wrongful dismissal	469
Review and final thoughts	469
7 Unfair dismissal	471
Overview	472
7.1 Procedures for discipline, dismissal, and grievances	472
7.1.1 Disciplinary measures	473
7.1.2 Warnings, hearings, and appeals	476
7.1.2.1 Warnings	476
7.1.2.2 Hearings and appeals	478
7.1.2.3 The implications of flawed procedure	480
7.1.3 Workplace procedures and government policy	482
7.2 The definition of dismissal and the date of termination	484
7.2.1 Dismissal	484
7.2.1.1 The definition of dismissal	485
7.2.1.2 Constructive dismissal	486
7.2.1.3 Resignation by the employee	492
7.2.2 The date of termination	494
7.2.2.1 Dismissal with wages in lieu of notice	495
7.2.2.2 Additional points about the EDT	497
7.3 Unfair dismissal—the right and the exclusions	499
7.3.1 The right to claim	499
7.3.2 The exclusions	501
7.4 What is an unfair dismissal?	503
7.4.1 Stage one: the reason	504
7.4.1.1 The implications of changing the reason	505
7.4.1.2 Matters that may be considered in fixing the reason	506
7.4.2 Stage two: prima facie fair grounds	507

7.4.3 Stage three: fairness	509
7.4.4 The correct approach: the 'range of reasonable responses' test	512
7.4.4.1 The modern 'range' test	514
7.4.4.2 Criticisms of the 'range' or 'band'	516
7.5 Particular cases	517
7.5.1 Capability or qualifications	518
7.5.1.1 Incapability through incompetence	518
7.5.1.2 Incapability through illness	519
7.5.2 Conduct	522
7.5.2.1 Warnings and disciplinary procedure	523
7.5.2.2 Criminal offences	526
7.5.2.3 Reasonable investigation	527
7.5.2.4 Human rights	530
7.5.2.5 E-misconduct	533
7.5.3 Redundancy and reorganization	533
7.5.4 Automatically unfair dismissals	535
7.5.4.1 Health and safety protection	536
7.5.4.2 Assertion of statutory rights	538
7.6 Remedies for unfair dismissal	538
7.6.1 Reinstatement and re-engagement	539
7.6.1.1 Practicability	540
7.6.1.2 Employer non-compliance	541
7.6.2 Compensation	542
7.6.2.1 The basic award	543
7.6.2.2 The compensatory award	543
7.6.2.3 Contributory fault	552
7.6.2.4 Mitigation	554
7.6.2.5 The order of deductions	555
Review and final thoughts	556
8 Redundancy, reorganization, and transfers of undertakings	558
Overview	558
8.1 Redundancy and reorganization	559
8.1.1 The definition of redundancy	560
8.1.1.1 Closure of the business	561
8.1.1.2 Diminished requirements for employees to do work of a particular kind	561
8.1.1.3 'In the place where the employee was so employed'	566
8.1.2 Dismissal in redundancy and reorganization	569
8.1.2.1 Unfair redundancy	571
8.1.2.2 Reorganization and SOSR dismissals	579
8.1.3 Redundancy procedures for consultation and information	584
8.1.3.1 Consultation with employee or trade union representatives	585
8.1.3.2 Notification to the Secretary of State	591
8.1.3.3 The 'special circumstances' defence	591

8.1.3.4 Protection of representatives	592
8.1.4 The redundancy payments scheme	592
8.1.4.1 Qualification: transfer of business or undertaking	597
8.1.4.2 Exclusions	599
8.1.4.3 Computation of a redundancy payment	600
8.1.4.4 Procedure for claiming a redundancy payment	600
8.1.4.5 Offers of alternative employment	601
8.1.4.6 The effects of misconduct and industrial action	605
8.1.4.7 Lay-off and short time	607
8.2 Transfers of undertakings	608
8.2.1 Introduction	608
8.2.2 What is a TUPE transfer?	611
8.2.3 Consultation on transfers of undertaking	613
8.2.3.1 The duty to inform and consult	613
8.2.3.2 Enforcement provision	615
8.2.4 What transfers?	616
8.2.5 Who transfers?	619
8.2.6 Unfair TUPE dismissal	622
8.2.7 What can be changed after the transfer?	624
8.2.8 Application to contracting-out cases	628
8.2.8.1 Developments before the 2006 Regulations	628
8.2.8.2 The reforms in the 2006 Regulations	630
8.2.9 Conclusions	633
Review and final thoughts	633
9 Collective labour law	635
Overview	636
9.1 Background and some statistics relating to the level of union influence in the workplace	637
9.1.1 The importance of union density	637
9.1.2 The reduced significance of union bargaining	637
9.1.3 The future?	638
9.2 The legal position of a trade union	638
9.2.1 Definition of 'trade union'	638
9.2.2 Listing as a trade union	639
9.2.3 The legal status of a trade union	639
9.2.4 Independent trade unions	640
9.2.4.1 The importance of independence	640
9.2.4.2 Certification of independence	641
9.2.4.3 The tests of 'independence'	642
9.3 Freedom of association—general issues	644
9.3.1 History: British common law	644
9.3.2 International law—does British law comply?	645
9.3.2.1 The relevant international provisions	645

9.3.2.2 The Wilson and Palmer cases	646
9.3.3 Restrictions on freedom of association stemming from EU law	648
9.3.4 Atypical workers and union representation	649
9.4 Right of association through laws against union discrimination	650
9.4.1 Refusal of employment on grounds of union membership	650
9.4.1.1 The basic protection for union membership	650
9.4.1.2 Protection for union activities?	651
9.4.1.3 Remedies	652
9.4.2 Blacklisting	652
9.4.3 Dismissal and detriment short of dismissal on trade union grounds	653
and anti-union inducements	653
9.4.3.1 The protections in brief	653
9.4.3.2 Elements common to trade union dismissal, detriment,	654
and inducement	654
9.4.3.3 Detriment for trade union reasons	659
9.4.3.4 Dismissal for union reasons	662
9.4.3.5 Anti-union inducements	664
9.5 Right of association through laws providing time off work	666
9.5.1 Time off for trade union duties	666
9.5.1.1 Time off in relation to negotiation	667
9.5.1.2 Time off for other functions on behalf of employees	667
9.5.1.3 Time off for training	667
9.5.1.4 Other points	668
9.5.1.5 Time off to attend disciplinary and grievance meetings	668
9.5.1.6 The right is for paid time off	668
9.5.2 Unpaid time off for trade union members to take part in trade	670
union activities	670
9.5.3 Paid time off for union learning representatives	671
9.5.4 Remedies for breach by the employer	671
9.5.5 Time off in the public sector	672
9.6 The right to dissociate and the closed shop	672
9.6.1 Protection of individual non-members	672
9.6.2 Other measures restricting the closed shop	673
9.7 Collective bargaining (1): recognition of trade unions	674
9.7.1 What is 'recognition'?	674
9.7.2 The definition of recognition	675
9.7.3 The statutory recognition procedure	677
9.7.3.1 History	677
9.7.3.2 The European Convention on Human Rights	677
9.7.3.3 The statutory recognition procedure—overview	679
9.7.3.4 The detailed provisions	681
9.7.3.5 Derecognition	686
9.7.3.6 Semi-voluntary agreement	686
9.7.3.7 Overall effect	686
9.7.4 TUPE and recognition	687

9.7.5 Forcing recognition on third parties	687
9.8 Collective bargaining (2): disclosure of bargaining information	688
9.8.1 The duty to disclose	688
9.8.2 Exceptions to the duty to disclose	689
9.8.3 Enforcement provisions	690
9.8.4 Other obligatory disclosure	691
9.9 Informing and consulting the workforce generally—the new approach?	692
9.9.1 Overview	692
9.9.2 European Works Councils	693
9.9.2.1 Organizations covered	693
9.9.2.2 The 'trigger' and negotiating to establish a European Works Council	693
9.9.2.3 The default EWC provisions	693
9.9.2.4 Disputes relating to establishing an EWC	695
9.9.2.5 Have the EWC Regulations had much impact?	695
9.9.3 'Domestic' works councils: the Information and Consultation of Employees Regulations 2004	695
9.9.3.1 A minimum worker consultation obligation in EU states	695
9.9.3.2 The 'trigger'	696
9.9.3.3 Negotiated agreements	697
9.9.3.4 Pre-existing agreements	698
9.9.3.5 The statutory default: the standard ICE provisions	699
9.9.3.6 Enforcement	700
9.9.3.7 Have the ICE Regulations had much impact?	701
Review and final thoughts	702
10 Industrial action	704
Overview	705
10.1 History—still relevant in understanding the current law—and the european convention on human rights	706
10.1.1 Historical background	706
10.1.2 Major change under the Conservative governments	708
10.1.3 Continuity under the following governments	710
10.1.4 The Conservative government of 2015	710
10.1.5 Possible involvement of human rights law?	711
10.1.5.1 Industrial action and the gig economy	713
10.2 Liability in tort and the statutory immunities	714
10.2.1 The law in a nutshell	714
10.2.1.1 The detail	715
10.2.2 Liability in tort—judge-led developments followed by simplification in the OBG case	715
10.2.3 Inducing breach of contract	717
10.2.3.1 The cause of action	717
10.2.3.2 The immunity	718
10.2.4 Causing loss by unlawful means	718
10.2.4.1 The cause of action	718

10.2.4.2 The immunity	720
10.2.5 Conspiracy	721
10.2.5.1 The cause of action	721
10.2.5.2 The immunity	722
10.2.6 Outflanking the immunities—three further possibilities	723
10.2.6.1 Possibility (1): conflict with EU law on freedom of establishment and freedom to provide services	723
10.2.6.2 Possibility (2): a tort of inducing a breach of statutory duty	726
10.2.6.3 Possibility (3): the importation of the contractual doctrine of economic duress	726
10.2.7 The golden formula	727
10.2.7.1 Introduction	727
10.2.7.2 Is there a trade dispute?	728
10.2.7.3 Is the action 'in contemplation or furtherance'?	731
10.2.8 Restrictions on the statutory immunities—kinds of industrial action which are never protected	732
10.2.8.1 Secondary action	733
10.2.8.2 Unlawful picketing	734
10.2.8.3 Action to enforce union membership	734
10.2.8.4 Pressure to impose union recognition requirements	734
10.2.8.5 Action taken because of the dismissal of unofficial strikers	735
10.3 Balloting and notice requirements	735
10.3.1 Introduction—and trends in interpretation	735
10.3.2 The balloting requirements	737
10.3.2.1 Overview	737
10.3.2.2 Entitlement to vote	738
10.3.2.3 Aggregate ballots across several workplaces	740
10.3.2.4 Notice of ballot to the employer	741
10.3.2.5 The voting paper	743
10.3.2.6 Conduct of the ballot	745
10.3.2.7 The ballot result	745
10.3.2.8 Period of effectiveness of ballot	747
10.3.2.9 The calling of industrial action	748
10.3.3 Notice of industrial action to employers	749
10.3.4 A rebalancing of the system?	750
10.4 Potential criminal liability	751
10.4.1 Sit-ins—criminal trespass	752
10.4.2 Situations where industrial action might itself be a crime	752
10.4.3 One kind of crime not criminal if done for a trade dispute	753
10.5 Picketing	754
10.5.1 What is picketing?	754
10.5.2 Introduction	754
10.5.3 The law in a nutshell	755
10.5.4 The relevance of the European Convention on Human Rights	755
10.5.5 Potential civil liability	757

10.5.6 Potential criminal liability	758
10.5.6.1 Miscellaneous crimes	758
10.5.6.2 The importance of an anticipated breach of the peace	759
10.5.6.3 Public order offences	761
10.5.7 The picketing immunity	763
10.5.7.1 Introduction	763
10.5.7.2 It is only attendance for communication and persuasion that is rendered lawful	764
10.5.7.3 Location of picket	765
10.5.7.4 Picket supervisor	766
10.5.7.5 Picketing as secondary action	766
10.5.7.6 Number of pickets	767
10.5.8 The Code of Practice on picketing	768
10.6 Injunctions and damages	769
10.6.1 Introduction	769
10.6.2 When can a union be liable in tort for acts of its officers and members?	770
10.6.3 What remedies can be sought against a union?	771
10.6.4 The use of injunctions in industrial cases	772
10.6.4.1 The most important remedy	772
10.6.4.2 Speed	772
10.6.4.3 How strong must the claim be?	773
10.6.4.4 Other points	775
10.7 The effect of industrial action on the participating employee	777
10.7.1 The effect of industrial action on individual contracts of employment	778
10.7.2 The effect of industrial action on miscellaneous statutory employment rights	780
10.7.3 Industrial action and unfair dismissal	780
10.7.3.1 Regime (1): unofficial action	782
10.7.3.2 Regime (2): properly balloted and notified official industrial action	782
10.7.3.3 Regime (3): dismissal during a lockout or official action where Regime (2) does not apply	784
10.7.3.4 Regime (4): dismissal after the industrial action or lockout	790
10.7.3.5 Are industrial action dismissals fair?	790
10.7.4 Detriment short of dismissal for taking part in industrial action	792
Review and final thoughts	792
Index	795