Contents

1 Introduction 1

1.1 Asking Critical Questions of Discourse: How Is Discourse Defined and Located? 4

1.2 Asking Critical Questions of Discourse: What Are the Experiences and Dispositions of Discourse Participants? What Are Their Purposes and Actions? 7

1.3 Modelling the Description, Interpretation, and Explanation of Discourse, Participants, Actions and Texts 11

References 13

Part I Concepts and Issues 15

2 Discourses on Discourse 17

2.1 Discourse Practices and Social Practices 18

2.2 Metaphors and Concepts for Discourse Analysis 19

2.2.1 Bourdieu's Concepts 20

2.2.2 Foucault's Concepts 26

2.2.3 Habermas's Concepts 31

2.2.4 Some Further Concepts 36

2.3 A Case Study 39
References 41

3 Who's Involved in Discourse? 43
3.1 Participants and Actors: The Interaction and the Institutional Order 44
3.2 Discourses and Professional, Institutional and (Inter-) Personal Identities/Roles 46
3.3 The 'Front' and 'Back' Stages of Social Life 48
3.4 Locating Performances: Events, Activity Types and Genres 53
3.4.1 Methodology: Analysing Genre 59
3.5 Actions, Discourse Types and Strategies 61
3.5.1 A Nested Arrangement 64
3.6 Some Background to Our Discourse Analytic Program: Contexts and Explorations 65
3.7 Accounting for Accountability 72
3.8 Categorising Membership in Communities of Practice 74
3.9 A Case Study 80
References 82

4 'What Is It That's Going on Here?' 85
4.1 Introduction 86
4.2 Frames, Strips and Footings 87
4.3 Managing Face and Facework in Discourse 99
4.4 Relationship of Politeness Theory to Face and Facework 103
4.5 Exploring Ethnography 106
4.6 Participant's Knowledge and Beliefs 112
4.7 Linguistic Ethnography 114
4.7.1 Two Examples of (Linguistic) Ethnography in Action 117
4.8 Reflexivity and 'Thick Participation' 118
4.9 A Case Study 124
References 125

5 How Do You Know That? 129
5.1 Overview: Retrospect and Prospect 129
5.2 Negotiating Meanings in Discourse: Exploring Interpretive Potential 131
5.3 Interactional Sociolinguistics 135
5.4 Ecological Validity and Participant Accounts 139
5.5 Some Issues and Some Challenges with Participant Accounts 140
5.6 Researcher/Participant Paradoxes 143
5.7 Researcher Role and Researcher Stance 144
5.8 Roles and Their Relationships 147
5.9 A Case Study 151
References 152

6 Why That Now? 155
6.1 Introduction 156
6.2 Ethnomethodology and Conversation Analysis 156
6.3 Ethnomethodology 157
6.4 Human Interaction: A Foundation for CA 159
6.5 Conversation Analysis 161
6.6 The Mechanics of Talk: Micro-Level 'Systematics' 167
6.7 A Research Note: Working with Transcribed Data 175
6.8 A Case Study 176
References 178

7 What Actions Are Being Taken Here, by Whom and Why? 181
7.1 Introduction 182
7.2 Mediated Discourse Analysis 183
7.2.1 MDA: Some Constructs and Some Methods 187
7.2.2 What Are the Sites for MDA? 192
7.3 'Professional Vision' 193
7.3.1 Defining the Practices 193
7.3.2 Exploring Professional Practices 194

7.4 Social Psychological Approaches to DA: Identity(ies), Role(s) and Accommodation 196
7.4.1 Henri Tajfel and Social Identity 198
7.5 Communication Accommodation Theory 199
7.6 Some Further Examples of the Relationship Between Discourse and Identity 203
7.6.1 Language, Identity and Language Maintenance 203
7.6.2 Institutionally Relevant Construction of Identity 204
7.6.3 Identity and Issues of Intercultural (Mis) Communication 205
7.7 Building a Model of Social Psychological Approaches to DA 206
7.8 Methodology in Social Psychological Approaches to DA 208
7.8.1 How CAT Research Is Carried Out and Its Methodological Tools 210
7.8.2 An Example: Applying Social Psychological Approaches to DA 211
7.9 A Case Study 211
References 213

8 How Do Discourse and Social Change Drive Each Other? 217
8.1 Towards Critical Discourse Analysis 217
8.2 CDA 219
8.2.1 Some Reflections on Fairclough and Wodak's 'Eight Principles' of CDA 221
8.3 Development of CDA: A Brief Historical (and Personal) Account 222
8.4 CDA in Action: Description, Interpretation and Explanation in Discourse Analysis 224
8.4.1 Features of Description, Interpretation and Explanation 228
8.5 Discourse and Social Change 229
8.6 A Case Study 232
References 234

Part II A Multi-perspectival Approach to Analysing Discourse 237

9 What Next? 239
9.1 Introduction 239
9.2 The Question of Warranting 240
9.3 Revisiting Ecological Validity 242
9.4 Introducing the Research Map 245
9.5 Multiple Perspectives in Researching Discourse in Context and in Action 250
9.6 Modelling the Relationships Among Perspectives 251
9.7 Focusing on a Perspective 255
9.7.1 A Closer Look at Participant Accounts 256
9.7.2 Research Methodologies or Techniques for Participant Accounts 260
9.8 Creating a Conversation Among Perspectives 261
9.9 Bringing the Perspectives Together: Concepts, Focal Themes and Crucial Sites 263
References 271

Part III Resources 275

10 Key Sources 277
10.1 Books 277
10.2 Edited Collections 278
10.3 Handbooks 279
10.4 Readers 280
10.5 Journals 280
10.5.1 Discourse Journals 280
10.5.2 Related Journals 281
10.6 Principal Discourse Conferences and Associations 282
10.7 Key Internet Sites 283
10.8 Other Relevant Resources 283
10.8.1 Doing Research 283
10.8.2 Software for Data Analysis 284

References 287

Index 301