
CONTENTS

LIST OF AUTHORS	xiii
-----------------------	------

FOREWORD	xv
----------------	----

1. THE INITIAL ECONOMIC ENVIRONMENT FOR PRIVATIZATION
(Jiří Hlaváček and Michal Mejstřík)	1
1.1. Introduction	1
1.2. Initial Conditions For Change of Ownership Relations	3
1.2.1. Nationalization and Collectivization	3
1.2.2. Behavior of Monopolistic Firms	8
1.2.3. Behavior of Small Firms	9
1.2.4. Broken Price System	10
1.4. Reform Pitfall	11
1.5. Necessary Conditions for Avoiding the Reform Pitfall	12
1.5.1. Behavior of Firms After November 1989	12
1.5.2. Initial Points of Privatization	14
1.5.3. Basic Steps of Transformation	15
1.5.4. Notes on the Response of the Enterprise Sphere on Changed Conditions	21
1.6. Making It Easier to Develop the Private Sector	25
1.7. Foreign Investments and Outside Shocks	26
1.8. Conclusion	30
Appendix: Selected Official Indicators for the Czech Republic, 1995.	32
2. THE RESTRUCTURING OF PROPERTY RIGHTS THROUGH THE INSTITUTIONAL ECONOMIST'S EYES (Lubomír Mlčoch)	33
2.1. Introduction	34
2.2. The Institution of Property In "Real Socialism"	34
2.3. Restructuring Property Rights: The Alternatives to Institutional Evolution	36
2.4. The Formation of Property Rights Institutions	38
2.5. Some Theoretical Comments on Practical Ways of Reestablishing Property Rights	39

2.6. Instrumental Rationality And Spontaneous Evolution Of Institutions: The Moral Dimension Of Property.....	43
3. INITIALIZATION OF PRIVATIZATION THROUGH RESTITUTION AND SMALL PRIVATIZATION (Jan Mládek).....	45
3.1. Introduction.....	45
3.2. Restitution.....	46
3.3. The Small Privatization Program	50
3.4. Conclusion	53
Notes	53
4. LARGE PRIVATIZATION: THEORY AND PRACTICE.....	55
4.1. Case By Case Or Mass Privatization (Michal Mejstřík)	55
4.1.1. Introduction	55
4.1.2. Pros and Cons of Optional Privatization Techniques	56
4.1.3. Czech Privatization Update	60
4.2. Voucher Privatization, Ownership Structures, and Emerging Capital Market in the Czech Republic (Michal Mejstřík, Anton Marcinčin, and Radek Laštovička)	64
4.2.1. Introduction	64
4.2.2. The First Wave of Voucher Privatization.....	65
4.2.2.1. The Supply	65
4.2.3. The Demand Side	66
4.2.4. Intermediaries in Voucher Privatization: Investment Privatization Funds (IPFs)	67
4.2.5. Ownership Structure Generated by the Voucher Scheme	69
4.2.5.1. Relative Importance of Shareholders	70
4.2.5.2. Test for High Ownership Concentration	72
4.2.5.3. Conclusion—Beyond Voucher Distribution.....	73
4.2.6. The Role of the Stock Market in the Czech Republic in Establishing Corporate Governance Prerequisites	74
4.2.6.1. Prague Stock Exchange	75
4.2.6.2. The RM System.....	76
4.2.6.3. Comparison of the PSE and RMS.....	76
4.2.7. Simulation Model: Evaluation of Companies in the Voucher Market and Stock Exchange.....	78
4.2.7.1. Voucher Price	80
4.2.7.2 Stock Exchange Price.....	81
4.2.7.3 Summing up the Relationship Within the Simulation Model.....	81
4.2.8. Cluster analysis of interactions between voucher privatization, the RMS, and the PSE.....	82
4.2.9. Capital Market Activity and Resulting Ownership Structures	88
4.2.9.1 The Czech Capital Market Perspectives from Laboratory to Standard Phase	88
4.2.9.2. The Resulting Ownership Structure.	90
4.3. A Technical Analysis Of The Prague Stock Exchange (Jiří Fanta)	93
4.3.1. Introduction	93
4.3.2. Assumptions.....	93
4.3.3. Discount and Lombard Rates	94
4.3.4. Discussion.....	100

4.3.5. Strengths and Weaknesses of the Trading Market	101
4.3.6. Buyer's and Seller's Market	101
4.3.7. Price, Volume, and Volatility.....	103
4.3.7.1. Blue Chips.....	103
4.3.7.2. Issues with a Low Frequency of Trading	103
4.3.7.3. Issues of Investment Fund Companies	105
4.3.7.4. Issues of Bonds.....	106
4.3.8. Short-Term Market Memory.....	106
4.3.9. Long-Term Market Memory.....	107
4.3.10. Cluster Analysis	109
4.3.11. Conclusion.....	110
4.4. A Multicriteria Evaluation Of Alternative Privatization Methods (Martin Černý)	112
4.4.1. Introduction	112
4.4.2. Outline of the Methodology of Multicriteria Evaluation of Alternatives	112
4.4.3. The Input Data of the Experiment	114
4.4.4. Application of the ELECTRE Methods	118
4.4.5. Evaluation by Weighted Averages (Expert Choice System)	120
4.4.6. Conclusion	122
Appendix 4.1. The Criteria Tree Used to Evaluate Privatization Methods by the Expert Choice System.....	123
Appendix 4.2. The Dependence of the Final Ranking of Alternatives on the Global Weight of Social Criteria C1 And C5, All Firms	124
Acknowledgment.....	124
5. FISCAL IMPACT OF PRIVATIZATION AND FISCAL POLICY (Jan Kubín and Zdeněk Tůma)	125
5.1. Introduction	125
5.2. The Macroeconomic Situation.....	126
5.3. Budget And Tax System Reform.....	128
5.4. Review Of Fiscal Policy For 1990 Through 1995	132
5.4.1. Before the Split of Czechoslovakia: 1990 Through 1992.....	132
5.4.2. The First Years of the Czech Republic: 1993 Through 1995.....	134
5.5. Privatization.....	135
5.5.1. Privatization Forms and Yields.....	136
5.5.2. Privatization and Private Consumption.....	136
5.6. The National Property Fund and Its Ties to the Budget	137
5.7. Development of Budget Revenues and Expenditures.....	139
5.8. Conclusions.....	142
Notes	143
6. THE EMERGENCE OF INSTITUTIONAL OWNERS: THE ROLE OF BANKS AND NONBANKING FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS IN THE PRIVATIZATION OF THE ECONOMY AND THE BANKS (Michal Mejstřík)	145
6.1. Introduction	145
6.2. The Czech Financial Institutions After 1989	147
6.3. Compensation For Inherited Debt by the Proceeds of Privatization	147
6.4. Development of the Czech Banking Sector.....	150
6.4.1. Problems of Financing Divestitures Through Leveraged Buyouts....	152

6.4.2. Bank Performance and Privatization Credits Impact	154
6.5. The Evolutionary Development of the Nonbanking Financial Sector	156
6.5.1 Funds in the Second Privatization Wave	160
6.6. The Privatization of Major Banking Groups	161
6.7. Further Evolution of Privatized Major Financial Groups	163
6.8. Conclusion	167
7. PRIVATIZATION, POSTPRIVATIZATION, AND STRUCTURAL PROBLEMS.....	171
7.1. Structural Changes and the Privatization Process (Luděk Urban).....	171
7.1.1. Changing Opinions on Structural Policy	171
7.1.2. Specific Structural Problems in the Czech Republic's Transitional Economy.....	174
7.1.3. Czech Government Approaches to Economic Restructuring	178
7.1.4. Privatization as a Strategy for Structural Change.....	180
7.1.5. The Creation of Market Conditions and Macroeconomic Equilibrium as a Precondition for Structural Change.....	182
7.1.6. First Results of Structural Change.....	184
7.1.7. Restructuring with State Participation.....	189
7.1.8. Structural Change at the Micro Level.....	191
7.1.9. Factors Influencing the Course of Structural Change in the Czech Republic.....	194
7.1.10. Structural Policy Debates in the Czech Republic	198
7.1.11. Further Prospects for Structural Policy	202
7.2. Enterprises Restructuring During and After Privatization (Alena Zemplerová and Radek Laštovička).....	203
7.2.1. Introduction	203
7.2.2. The Major Agents of Restructuring	204
7.2.2.1. State Involvement in the Restructuring of Firms.....	204
7.2.2.2. The Role of Banks and Monetary and Exchange Policies	205
7.2.2.3. Management's Role in Restructuring	207
7.2.3. Corporate Governance and Ownership	209
7.2.4. An Empirical Analysis.....	210
7.2.4.1. State Versus Private Ownership.....	211
7.2.4.2. Voucher Privatization Versus Standard Methods of Privatization.....	212
7.2.4.3. Foreign Versus Domestic Ownership	212
7.2.4.4. Obstacles of Restructuring	212
7.2.5. Conclusions.....	213
7.3. The New Private Sector in the Czech Republic (Alena Zemplerová and Vladimír Benáček)	214
7.3.1. The Private Sector and Small Business Developments from 1990 through 1995	214
7.3.2. Conditions for Emerging Entrepreneurship	219
7.3.2.1. Performing Legal and Judiciary Systems	221
7.3.2.2. Excessive Regulation and Bureaucracy.....	222
7.3.2.3. Fiscal Burdens.....	223
7.3.2.4. Rigidities of the Labor Market	224
7.3.2.5. Capital Acquisition Constraints.....	225
7.3.3. Economic Policy Recommendations	226

7.4 Monopoly In The Context of the Privatization Process (Alena Zemplerová and Josef Stíbal)	226
7.4.1. Introduction	226
7.4.2. Analysis of the Monopoly Position	228
7.4.2.1. Import Penetration	230
7.4.2.2. Market Concentration	231
7.4.3. Government Policy Toward Monopoly During the Transition	233
7.5. Monitoring Of Borrowers Under Asymmetric Information: The Czech Experience in the Early 1990s (Aleš Bulíř)	238
7.5.1. Introduction	238
7.5.2. Credit Markets and Imperfect Information	239
7.5.2.1. Asymmetric Information in the Financial Sector	239
7.5.2.2. Multiple Credit Market Equilibria	240
7.5.2.3. Credit Market Failure and Cost of Capital	240
7.5.2.4. Monitoring of Borrowers and Credit Market Differentiation	243
7.5.3 Mechanisms Alleviating Imperfect Monitoring	244
7.5.4. Some Sectoral Financial Data for Czech Firms	257
7.5.5. Conclusions	253
7.5.6. Appendix: Data and Sources	254
7.6. The Impact of Privatization and Capital Market Development on Posttransitional Exchange-Rate Policies (Alexis Derviz)	255
7.6.1. Introduction	255
7.6.2. Macrodescription of the Economy	260
7.6.2.1. Variables of the Model and Passive Actors	260
7.6.2.2. Firms in the Productive Sector	263
7.6.2.3 Global State Variables, Sources of Uncertainty, and the Informational Structure	265
7.6.3. Decision Problem of the Central Bank	266
7.6.4. Decisions-Made by International Investors	269
7.6.4.1. Subjective Beliefs and Private Probability Measures of the Investors	269
7.6.4.2 An Optimization Problem for a Typical Investor	270
7.6.5. Equilibrium Trajectories on the Foreign-Exchange Market	274
7.6.6. Conclusion	278
7.7. The Phillips Curve And Market Structures (Miloslav S. Vošvrda)	279
7.7.1. Introduction	279
7.7.2. Stability Conditions	280
7.7.3. The Expected Inflation Rate	289
7.7.4. The Phillips Curve and Market Situations	292
7.7.5. Conclusion	303
Acknowledgments	303
Notes	303
REFERENCES	307
INDEX	319