

Contents

List of Figures	viii
Acknowledgments	ix
List of Abbreviations	x
 Introduction: a longue durée of segregation against Roma: inside of whiteness	 1
Critical whiteness as the only option for epistemic justice for Roma in Central Europe: methodological grounds	4
Remapping postcolonial Central Europe: the book's structure	7
 PART I
Whiteness: the never-ending story of epistemic injustice against Roma	13
 1 Whiteness: a locus for doing race	15
Roma in Central Europe: obsession with whiteness	15
Critical whiteness: options for justice	16
Whiteness in Europe: the over-determination of racism	18
Central European resistance to critical whiteness: between overt reactionism and implicit eliminativism	19
Conclusion	21
 2 Obscure racism: from national indifference to whitening Roma	25
National indifference in Central Europe: obscuring race and class	25
Fixing Jewish identity: in the footsteps of whiteness	27
Normalizing Roma: whitening the past	30
Conclusion	33

3	The post-socialist shift in pathologizing: from disabled Roma to disabled socialism	36
	Pathologizing vs. normalizing: the two extremes of "whitening" Roma	36
	Victimizing Roma: a (post-)socialist pathway of objectification	38
	Historicizing as a possible response to pathologizing: toward epistemic justice	40
	Conclusion	41
4	The limits and options of historical narratives concerning Roma in Central Europe	44
	The normalizing and pathologizing of Roma as traditional narratives	44
	Exemplary narratives in historicizing Roma: ruptures vs. continuities	45
	Critical narratives of Central European history: losing Roma in transition	46
	Quasi-genetic narratives of Roma: missing historical evidence	49
	Conclusion	51
PART II
	The (in)educability of Roma: Central Europe between overt and enlightened racism	55
5	The inception of whiteness: the Grellmannian intersections of European Roma	57
	The Grellmannian dichotomies: introducing colonial discourse to the "Gypsy issue"	57
	Non-human "Gypsies" vs. human Europeans: struggling for progress	60
	Eternal children vs. masterful adults: unapproachable assimilation	62
	The bestiality of "Gypsy" women vs. the whiteness of European men: toward the radical divergence of racial difference	63
	Conclusion	65
6	Global racial order comes to Central Europe: the puzzle of "White Gypsies" at the dawn of the twentieth century	69
	Racial intermixture in the Western world: the inception of racial intersectionality	69

Postcolonial Europe in the focus of outsiders and insiders: deepening (non)whiteness	74
The threat of racial mixing in Central Europe: belligerent outsiders	75
Other Europeans? The view of benevolent outsiders	79
The response of insiders: adapting whiteness	82
Roma in the focus of insiders and outsiders: signifying peripheral Europe	84
Conclusion	90

7 The institutionalization of a racialized approach to Roma in the 1920s–1940s: rooting the stigma of an insecure population 98

A racialized approach to Roma in police surveillance: between the challenges of a global security agenda and nation-building	99
The doctrinal racism of František Štampach and Robert Ritter: the resonance of political will and personal choice	105
Schooling the (in)educable? The intraracial hierarchy of “Gypsy primitives” in action	112
Desirable “Gypsies” vs. unwanted others: an effective false antinomy in racializing Roma	117
Conclusion	121

8 In (re)search of inclusion: Roma under the pressure of de-historicizing between the 1950s and 1990s 127

Introduction	127
Post-Porajmos racism: whitening memories to exclude Roma	128
Roma in the global agenda of population studies: insecure populations vs. human progress	138
The “Gypsy issue” in the international agenda of human adaptability: the crystallization of the racist community	139
Implications for segregative practices: the outputs of the IBP in Czechoslovak policies concerning Roma	145
De-historicizing Roma in Czech socialist fiction: visualizing whiteness	147
Conclusion	155

Conclusion: epistemic justice for Central European Roma: toward the unlimited negation of whiteness 166

Index	171
--------------	-----