
Contents

1. Monetarism: facing the need for new solutions	7
1.1. Some preconditions for targeting monetary aggregates	8
1.2. Policy autonomy, exchange rate regimes, and international capital flows ..	10
1.3. Post-Keynesian critique: quest for a "New Paradigm"?	12
2. Two European examples of coping with change: pragmatic monetarism	19
2.1. The Swiss National Bank	19
2.2. The German Bundesbank	23
3. Dilemmas of pragmatic monetarism in the Czech Republic	29
3.1. Ambiguity of parameters needed for targeting	31
3.2. Interenterprise arrears and additional liquidity	38
3.3. Fixed exchange rate, convertibility, and policy autonomy	40
3.4. Endogenous money supply	43
References	47
Statistical Annex	53