

---

Contents

Foreword	vii
Harold Pinter
Introduction	1
Philip Hammond and Edward S. Herman

Part I: The West's Destruction of Yugoslavia

1. Nato and the New World Order: Ideals and Self-Interest	7
Diana Johnstone
2. Western Intervention and the Disintegration of Yugoslavia, 1989–1999	19
David Chandler
3. War Crimes	31
Mirjana Skoco and William Woodger
4. The War and its Aftermath	39
Peter Gowan

Part II: Seeing the Enemy

5. New Militarism and the Manufacture of Warfare	59
Richard Keeble
6. Nazifying the Serbs, from Bosnia to Kosovo	70
Mick Hume
7. The Military and the Media	79
Mirjana Skoco and William Woodger
8. Symbolic Warfare: Nato versus the Serbian Media	88
Goran Gocic

Part III: Reporting the War around the World

9. Following Washington's Script: The United States Media and Kosovo	97
Seth Ackerman and Jim Naureckas

10. CNN: Selling Nato's War Globally Edward S. Herman and David Peterson	111
11. Third Way War: New Labour, the British Media and Kosovo Philip Hammond	123
12. Censorship by Omission John Pilger	132
13. The French Media and the Kosovo War Diana Johnstone	141
14. From 'Never again War' to 'Never again Auschwitz': Dilemmas of German Media Policy in the War against Yugoslavia Thomas Deichmann	153
15. 'Thank you God! Thank you Norway!' Norwegian Newspapers and the Kosovo War Karin Trandheim Røn	164
16. The Greek 'Participation' in Kosovo Nikos Raptis	170
17. Consensus and Conflict in the Russian Press Philip Hammond, Lilia Nizamova and Irina Savelieva	177
18. India: How India Sees Through Western Reports Raju G.C. Thomas	185
An Indian View of the Western Media from Iraq to Yugoslavia Siddharth Varadarajan	196
Conclusions: First Casualty and Beyond Philip Hammond and Edward S. Herman	200
Notes on Contributors	209
References	212
Index	217