Nwando Achebe, the Jack and Margaret Swett Endowed Professor of History, is an award-winning historian at Michigan State University. She is founding editor-in-chief of the Journal of West African History. Achebe received her PhD from University of California, Los Angeles, in 2000. In 1999 and 1998 she was a Ford Foundation and Fulbright-Hays Scholar-in-Residence at the University of Nigeria, Nsukka. Her research interests involve the use of oral history in the study of women, gender, and sexuality in Nigeria. Her first book, Forgers, Traders, Warriors, and Kings: Female Power and Authority in Northern Igboland, 1900-1960 was published in 2006, and her second book, The Female King of Colonial Nigeria: Aboh Ukwala (2011), which won three book awards (Autio-Snyder, Barbara "Pearl" Kamen, and Gail Chaudhuri), is a full-length critical biography of the only female war-time chief and king in British Africa. Achebe has received prestigious grants from the Rockefeller Foundation, Wenner-Gren, Woodrow Wilson, Fulbright-Hays, Ford Foundation, World Health Organization, and National Endowment for the Humanities.

Charles Ambler is professor of history and dean of the graduate school at the University of Texas at El Paso. He has recently co-edited Struggle in Africa (2014) and is the author of a number of articles on mass media and popular culture in Africa, including "Popular Films and Colonial Audiences," in the American Historical Review. In 2010 he was president of the African Studies Association.

Ann Rasmussen is assistant dean of the African studies program at Michigan State University. She is the author of two books on Swahili poetry, a Swahili textbook, and numerous articles on African literatures. She is currently working with
