

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Abbreviations .....	viii
List of Tables and graphs .....	x
Acknowledgements .....	xiii
Introduction .....	1
Chapter 1 State- and institution-building – a framework for analysis .....	11
1.1 The state and state-building definitions and debates .....	11
1.2 Fiscal perspectives on the state .....	17
1.3 Regimes and states: the missing link in the transition debate .....	21
1.4 Potential contributions of post-Soviet cases to general theories of state-building .....	23
Chapter 2 A framework for assessing states: size, capacity, and quality ..	29
2.1 The three aspects of the state .....	29
2.2 States as problems and solutions under various regimes .....	31
2.3 The size of the state .....	34
2.4 State capacity: decision-making, implementation, and control .....	36
Chapter 3 The dynamic of change: state-building as institution-building .	45
3.1 State-building as institutional change—deterioration and re- building .....	46
3.2 The costs and risks of institutional change .....	47
3.3 Types of institutional change .....	49
3.4 The importance of formal-informal discrepancies .....	51
Chapter 4 A model of post-Soviet state-building trajectories .....	55
4.1 The causal model .....	55
4.2 Individual causal factors .....	58
4.3 Four state-building trajectories .....	69
4.4 Summary .....	73

Chapter 5 State-building in the post-Soviet region .....	79	9.2 Economic developments: preserving the command economy .....	215
5.1 The Soviet state and its fiscal system .....	79	9.3 Belarus' international situation .....	219
5.2 Institutional deterioration: perestroika and the break-up of the Soviet Union .....	83	9.4 State-society relations in Belarus .....	220
5.3 State-building in the post-Soviet 'universe' .....	85	9.5 Fiscal policies .....	224
5.4 Exploring some quantitative relationships: level of development and political consolidation .....	93	9.6 Belarus: the strong state that does not want to be a state .....	232
5.5 Summary .....	104	Chapter 10 Lithuania: moving towards Western models .....	243
Chapter 6 Ukraine—from Soviet breakdown to disordered independence .....	109	10.1 Political developments: early elite reconfiguration and after .....	244
6.1 From Soviet republic to independent Ukraine .....	111	10.2 Economic developments: the great leap from communism to capitalism .....	250
6.2 The great depression: economic crisis after independence .....	112	10.3 State-society relations in Lithuania .....	253
6.3 The challenge of nation-building .....	114	10.4 Fiscal and budgetary system .....	259
6.4 Struggles for power and institutional weakness .....	115	10.5 State capacity and its determinants in Lithuania .....	274
6.5 A fiscal system in crisis .....	127	Chapter 11 The 'authoritarianizing' route to recovery: the case of Russian tax reform .....	285
6.6 The first steps of state-building .....	132	11.1 The stage: political power and oligarchic groups .....	286
Chapter 7 A new trajectory taking shape .....	137	11.2 The economic background to reform .....	289
7.1 Economic stabilization and virtualization .....	138	11.3 State-society relations .....	292
7.2 The bid for presidential consolidation .....	139	11.4 Fiscal crisis and tax reform: surveying explanations .....	294
7.3 State-society relations—the rise of political-business groups and weak democratic accountability .....	141	11.5 From drag to leap: the gestation and eventual success of tax reform .....	295
7.4 External factors .....	148	11.6 From prolonged deterioration to unfinished recovery: the Russian path of state-building .....	307
7.5 Stabilizing the fiscal system .....	149	Chapter 12 Conclusion .....	315
7.6 Shaping and distorting the new state .....	167	12.1 States as problems and solution .....	316
Chapter 8 The second transition in Ukraine .....	175	12.2 Institutional deterioration and the importance of the political regime .....	321
8.1 From hybrid regime to unconsolidated democracy .....	176	12.3 Setting the background: legacies, international integration, and the level of development .....	328
8.2 Economic recovery and socio-economic policies of the new government .....	185	12.4 Wider implications: conceptualizing institutional change, regime change, and state-building .....	332
8.3 The power of civil society and the continuing importance of opaque groups .....	187	Appendix .....	341
8.4 External influences on the rise .....	188	Bibliography .....	355
8.5 Fiscal developments: reforms and revelations .....	190	Index .....	375
8.6 From Kuchma to Yushchenko: re-tooling the state .....	200
8.7 Summary: the state-building process in Ukraine as reflected in the fiscal sphere .....	202
Chapter 9 Averting institutional change: the case of Belarus .....	211
9.1 Political developments: from liberalization to autocracy .....	212		