

Contents

Foreword	ix
Introduction: A Neo-Tocquevillean Approach	1
Longitudinal trends	2
Framework: democratic institutions in a market economy	8
Social structure versus political institutions	12
Conclusion	14
PART I CIVIL SOCIETY	17
1 The Market Economy	17
The market economy	18
The socio-economic structure in Western Europe	22
Short-run perspective: unemployment and inflation	33
Conclusion	36
2 Cleavages	37
Cleavage theory	37
The concept of cleavage	41
Religious cleavages	44
Ethnic cleavages	53
Class-based cleavages	67
Conclusion	73
3 Political Parties	76
The shifting nature of parties	77
Mapping the parties	79
Programmatic orientation and social profile	88
Formation of parties	91
Parliamentary experience and government participation	93
Electoral trends	98
Declining party membership	103
Conclusion	106
Appendix 3.1 Alternative classifications of political parties in Western Europe	108
4 Parties and Voters	109
The frozen party system hypothesis	109
Cleavage bases	110

Values	121
The floating electorate	123
Gross volatility	126
Net volatility	127
Gross and net volatility	130
Conclusion	132
5 Party Systems	134
Party system theory	134
Party system dimensions and indicators	138
Party system variation and stability: how much?	140
Conclusion	150
PART II GOVERNMENT	153
6 Decision-Making Institutions: Autonomy	153
The institutions of democracy	154
Individual autonomy	159
Institutional autonomy	169
Conclusion	188
Appendix 6.1 Local and regional administrative divisions in Western Europe around 1995	190
7 Decision-Making Systems: Influence	191
Modes of citizen influence	192
Citizen participation	196
Legislatures	204
Types of executive	208
Government formation	217
Judicial power	225
Corporatism	226
Conclusion	234
8 European Integration	237
Development of the EC into the EU	237
Union institutions	240
Governance in the European Union	245
Economic integration	256
Conclusion	261
9 Issues	264
The concept of an issue	265
Issues: observation and classification	267
Theories of issues	270
Mixture of issues	271
Preponderance of non-structural issues	274
Issue resolution	279

The time span of issues	281
The partisan nature of issues	284
The new issue of corruption	287
Comparative analysis	289
Conclusion	291

PART III OUTCOMES 293

10 Political Stability	293
What does 'political stability' mean?	294
Long-run perspective	298
Short-run perspective	301
Explaining political stability: multipartism	307
Testing short-run models of political stability	311
The long-run perspective	315
Conclusion	318
11 Public Sector Growth and the Welfare State	322
Public sector growth	323
The public household	326
Why public sector expansion?	336
Conclusion	340
12 Conclusion	342
References	346
Index	375