Contents in obt of paletic guint and mortimers are a paguints. A second section (159)

	。 12
Fore	word	D
1	English Language Teaching and English Language Education— History and Methods (Sabine Doff)
1.1	Background: milestones of ELT history in Germany and Europe since ca. 1800	200
1.2	Methods as an anchor of language teaching across the centuries
1.3	Foreign language education (FLE) and English language education (ELE) as academic disciplines in Germany	10
1.4	Conclusion: reasons for studying ELT/ELE history	1:
2	Institutionalised Foreign Language Learning—Teaching English at Different Levels (Daniela Elsner)	13
2.1	The German EFL classroom as part of the European education system	17
2.2	First encounters with foreign languages—EFL in the primary classroom	24
2.3	EFL at secondary level I—preparing learners for private and professional lives	2:
2.4	Preparing learners for an academic career—EFL at secondary level II	3:
2.5	Training on and for the job—EFL in vocational schools	33
2.6	New paths in foreign languages education	34
301	Teachers of English as a Foreign Language—Experience and Professional Development (Britta Viebrock)	39
3.1	Between experiential knowledge and formal academic
3.2	education: English language teachers' mind-sets Characteristics of the good English language teacher:	40 reflective practice and professionalism	4.
3.3	Professional development and models of language teacher education	4
3.4	Future challenges of the English language teaching
3.5	profession	5.

4.2 Language learners from a psycholinguistic point of view: learners as non-trivial machines processing language 59 4.3 Language learners from a socio-cultural point of view: learners as human beings and meaning makers 64 4.4 Implications for the EFL classroom 68 4.5 Conclusion 71 5 English Language Learning—An SLA-based Approach (Jörg-U. Keßler) 73 5.1 Why every foreign language teacher needs to know about second language acquisition 73 5.2 The theoretical basis of second language learning 75 5.3 Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 83 5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited 86 5.5 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 88 6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 89 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 148 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 144 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	4	Language Learners — From Learning Styles to Identity (Andreas Bonnet)	57
4.3 Language learners from a socio-cultural point of view: learners as human beings and meaning makers		Language learners from a psycholinguistic point of view:	58
4.4 Implications for the EFL classroom 4.5 Conclusion	4.3	Language learners from a socio-cultural point of view:
5 English Language Learning—An SLA-based Approach (Jörg-U. Keßler) 5.1 Why every foreign language teacher needs to know about second language acquisition 5.2 The theoretical basis of second language learning 5.3 Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited 5.5 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 6.5 Questions of assessment 6.6 Conclusion 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 7.4 Conclusion 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 8.5 Lexico-grammar 8.6 Building grammatical knowledge 8.7 Building grammatical knowledge 8.8 Electing, presenting and practising lexical items 104 105 106 107 108 108 109 109 109 109 109 109
5 English Language Learning—An SLA-based Approach (Jörg-U. Keßler) 73 5.1 Why every foreign language teacher needs to know about second language acquisition 73 5.2 The theoretical basis of second language learning 75 5.3 Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 85 5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited 86 5.5 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 88 6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 89 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 148 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154		Implications for the EFL classroom
5 English Language Learning—An SLA-based Approach (Jörg-U. Keßler)	4.5		/1
second language acquisition 73 The theoretical basis of second language learning 75 Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 83 Input—output—interaction revisited 86 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 88 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 89 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 Conclusion 98 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 Productive Competences—Speaking of English language teaching 128 Conclusion 131 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 Lexico-grammar 133 Lexico-grammar 133 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 Building grammatical knowledge 140 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 Building grammatical knowledge 148 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	5	English Language Learning—An SLA-based Approach	73
5.2 The theoretical basis of second language learning 75 5.3 Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 83 5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited 86 5.5 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 88 6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 89 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	5.1		1.3
Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom 5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited 5.5 Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom 6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 6.5 Questions of assessment 6.6 Conclusion 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 7.4 Conclusion 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 8 Building lexical knowledge 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8 Building grammatical knowledge 148 159 160 170 171 172 173 174 175 176 176 176 177 177 178 179 179 179 179 179	= 2	Second language acquisition
5.4 Input—output—interaction revisited		Interlanguage and the foreign language classroom
6. Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154
6 Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing (Carola Surkamp/Tanyasha Yearwood) 89 6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes 90 6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences 94 6.3 Challenges of receptive processes in foreign language contexts 96 6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing 98 6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 109 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154		Conclusion: a role for psycholinguistics in the EFL classroom	88
6.1 Reading, listening and viewing as interactive processes	6	Receptive Competences—Reading, Listening, Viewing	89
6.2 Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences	61
6.4 Implications for teaching reading, listening and viewing	6.2	Reading, listening and viewing as complex competences	94
6.5 Questions of assessment 104 6.6 Conclusion 108 7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 122 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154			96
7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 109 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154			98
7 Productive Competences—Speaking, Writing, Mediating (Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 109 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154		Questions of assessment
(Petra Kirchhoff) 109 7.1 Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it 109 7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it 122 7.3 Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching 128 7.4 Conclusion 131 8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	6.6	Conclusion	108
7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it	7		109
7.2 Writing: the process of writing and how to teach it	7.1	Speaking: the nature of spoken discourse and how to teach it	109
teaching		name to the second to the contract of the contract of the second of the contract of the contra	122
8 Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach (Matthias Hutz) 133 8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	7.3	Foreign language mediation: new skills for English language teaching	128
(Matthias Hutz)1338.1 Lexico-grammar1338.2 Building lexical knowledge1408.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items1438.4 Building grammatical knowledge1488.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom154	7.4		131
8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	8	Focus on Form—The Lexico-Grammar Approach	122
8.1 Lexico-grammar 133 8.2 Building lexical knowledge 140 8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items 143 8.4 Building grammatical knowledge 148 8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154	52	(Maturias Hutz)
8.3 Selecting, presenting and practising lexical items		Lexico-grammar	133
8.4 Building grammatical knowledge
8.5 Implications for the communicative English classroom 154
		Conclusion	157

9	Teaching Culture—Intercultural Competence, Transcultural Learning, Global Education (Britta Freitag-Hild)	159
9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	What is culture? Definitions and concepts	160 163 166 170
9.5	Teaching culture in and beyond the classroom: three teaching examples	172
9.6	Conclusion	175
10	Literature and Film—Approaching Fictional Texts and Media (Christiane Lütge)	177
10.1	Literature matters: a rationale for teaching literature and film	177
10.2	Literature and film—concepts and competences	180
10.3	Literary genres and text selection	183 186
10.5	Perspectives for the literature classroom	190 194
11	Principles and Methods—Focus on Learners, Content
	and Tasks (Annika Kolb/Thomas Raith)	195
11.1 11.2 11.3 11.4 11.5	The communicative turn and its implications Focus on learners Focus on content Task-based language learning Conclusion	196 199 203 206 209
12	Media-Assisted Foreign Language Learning—Concepts and Functions (Torben Schmidt/Thomas Strasser)	211
12.1	Basic definitions	212
12.2 12.3	From textbooks to multimedia learning environments Current technological and pedagogical trends and	216
	developments Conclusion	226 230
13	Settings — Teaching in and beyond the English Language Classroom (Eva Wilden)	233
13.1	Inside the English language classroom	234
13.2	Beyond the English language classroom	238
13.3	The classroom as a social meeting place
13.4 13.5	The Internet and English language education	243
	learning opportunities	245

14	Assessment — What, Why and How? (Karin Vogt)	249
14.1	Assessment: what is it and what is important about it?	250
14.2	The why: purposes of assessment	253
14.3	Effective assessment design	254
14.4 14.5	Beyond testing: alternatives in assessment	262
	language assessment	266
15	Authors	267
15 16	Authors	267269
	Authors
16 17	Authors Bibliography	269293
16 17	Authors Bibliography Index Authors Bibliography Index Authors Author	269 293
16 17: 081: 88:	Authors Bibliography Index Authors Bibliography Index Authors Author	269 293
16 17: 0816 6816	Authors Bibliography Index Authors Bibliography Index Authors Author	269 293

6 Task-based language learning strong strong strong 206 8 Conclusion with his guidean guideant and anneastic 209 1001 to strong 1001 to stron

Basic definitions of motified and season and an included the Front textbooks to multimedia fearning environments in the 216 Currier technological and pedagogical trends and a sit an appropriate technological and pedagogical trends and a sit and pedagogical trends and a season as the particular to the contract of the same of the season as the season a