

CONTENTS

Introduction: Why a Philosopher Should Write about Bringing In the Harvest	1
1. What We Don't Know, What We Don't Want to Know, and What We Can Do	7
2. The First of May in the Viral World	17
3. Covid-19, Global Warming, Exploitation—The Same Struggle	23
4. Why Destroying Monuments Is Not Radical Enough	31
5. Father . . . or Worse	41
6. Sex in the Age of Social Distancing	49
7. The (Not So) Brave New World of Pigs and Men	57
8. A No-Touch Future? No, Thanks!	63
9. Where Are Greta and Bernie?	69
10. What Movie Is Now Playing Out in Real Life?	75
11. Deaths in Paradise	83
12. Now We Live in a Store of the Worlds	89
13. Yes, Red Pill . . . but Which One?	97
14. Simple Things That Are Hard to Do	105

(No Time) to Conclude: The Will Not to Know 119

Appendix: Four Reflections on Power, Appearance, and Obscenity 147

The New Obscene Master—Oppression, Repression,

Depression—The New Populism Is Not Fascism—

The Crisis of New Populism