

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                                             |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Geoffrey Chew (Egham) – Mikuláš Bek (Brno): Introduction: The Dialectics of Socialist Realism .....                                                                                  | 9   |
| Concepts of Socialist Realism                                                                                                                                                        |     |
| † Jiří Fukač (Brno): Socialist Realism in Music: An Artificial System of Ideological and Aesthetic Norms .....                                                                       | 16  |
| Hermann Jung (Mannheim): Mimesis – Symbolisierung – Widerspiegelung. Zum Problem des Realismus beim Verstehen und Deuten von Musik .....                                             | 22  |
| Klaus Mehner (Leipzig): Sozialistischer Realismus als Programm .....                                                                                                                 | 32  |
| Melita Milin (Beograd): Socialist Realism as an Enforced Renewal of Musical Nationalism .....                                                                                        | 39  |
| Per Skans (Uppsala): Sozialistischer Realismus und Nationalsozialistischer Realismus .....                                                                                           | 44  |
| “Prehistory” and “Analogies”                                                                                                                                                         |     |
| Mikuláš Bek (Brno): Socialist Realism and Anti-Modernism in Czech Music ....                                                                                                         | 52  |
| Lubomír Spurný (Brno): Auffassungsänderungen des Sozialismus in der Kunst und die tschechische Avantgarde zwischen den Weltkriegen .....                                             | 61  |
| Jiří Vysloužil (Brno): Hábas demokratischer Sozialismus .....                                                                                                                        | 67  |
| Brian Locke (Toronto): Decadence, Heroism and Czechness: The Reception of Ostrčil's Legenda z Erinu .....                                                                            | 71  |
| Tatjana Böhme-Mehner (Leipzig): Realismus als Zeitproblem. Eine amerikanische Parallele, dargestellt an Kurt Weills Street Scene .....                                               | 83  |
| Elizabeth Brinsden (Ústí nad Labem): Hollywood Aesthetics and Socialist Realism .....                                                                                                | 89  |
| Rudolf Pečman (Brno): Georg Friedrich Händel im Dritten Reich. Alttestamentarische (jüdische) Oratorienthematik im Blickfeld der nazistischen Fälscher Georg Friedrich Händels ..... | 97  |
| Georges Vlastos (Athènes): La musique en Grèce sous la dictature des Colonels (1967-1974) .....                                                                                      | 101 |
| Štěpán Kaňa (Brno): Rock the State? The Czech Musical Underground versus the Normalization Regime .....                                                                              | 108 |
| Geography of Socialist Realism                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| Neil Edmunds (Bristol): The Ambiguous Origins of Socialist Realism and Musical Life in the Soviet Union .....                                                                        | 115 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                        |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Jan Špaček (Brno): Soc-real Dancing: Elements of Socialist Realism in the Light Music of Dmitry Shostakovich .....                                                              | 131 |
| Hon-Lun Yang (Hong Kong): Socialist Realism and Music in the People's Republic of China .....                                                                                   | 135 |
| Rachel Beckles Willson (Egham): Beyond Socialist Realism in Hungary: Responses, 1961-1963, to Kurtág's opp. 1-4 .....                                                           | 145 |
| Lóránt Péteri (Budapest): "Soviet Music" in Hungary: Ilya Golovin Reaches Budapest .....                                                                                        | 151 |
| Leon Stefanija (Ljubljana): Elusive Contents: Two Notes on Socialist Realism and Slovenian Music .....                                                                          | 158 |
| Lenka Stránská (Paris): Le réalisme socialiste, tel qu'il est perçu dans la culture musicale française (1934-1954) .....                                                        | 169 |
| Kathrin Eberl (Halle): Sozialistischer Realismus und die Anfänge elektroakustischen Musikschaffens in der DDR .....                                                             | 179 |
| Helmut Loos (Chemnitz): Das Gewandhaus zu Leipzig .....                                                                                                                         | 185 |
| David Tompkins (Berlin): Mobilization and Control: Music Festivals in Poland and the GDR, 1951-1955 .....                                                                       | 194 |
| Pekka Sutari (Joensuu): National Cultural Policy and the Development of Musical Life in Soviet Karelia 1920-1936 .....                                                          | 201 |
| Matjaž Barbo (Ljubljana): The First Slovene Radio Recordings after World War II: "Progress" Caught Up in Musical "Content" .....                                                | 208 |
| Geoffrey Chew (Egham): Václav Dobiáš's Celebration of Proletarian Prague: The Song Cycle Praha jediná .....                                                                     | 214 |
| Nico Schüler (San Marcos): Socialist Realism and Socialist Anti-Realism in One Composition? The Rise and the Fall of the Opera Fetters Flucht (1959/1963) by Kurt Schwaen ..... | 224 |
| Thomas D. Svatos (Praha): Surrealism vs. Socialist Realism: Bohuslav Martinů's Julietta as a Reactionary Work against the Historical Lines within Czech Musical Thought .....   | 228 |
| Ivan Poledňák (Praha): The "Klusák Case": A Nonconformist Composer Besieged by Socialist Realism .....                                                                          | 236 |
| Miroslav K. Černý (Praha): Wie und warum wurde der sozialistische Realismus von der tschechischen Musiköffentlichkeit akzeptiert? .....                                         | 244 |

Reception and Discourse

|                                                                                                                                     |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| † Torsten Fuchs (Regensburg): Die Zeitschrift Musik und Gesellschaft als Spiegel musikästhetischer Entwicklungen .....       | 247 |
| Monika Kroupová (Brno): Totalitarian Language and Its Role in Czech Musical Journals in the Late 1940s and Early 1950s ..... | 256 |
| Petr Macek (Brno): Tschechische „Kulturwerte“ in der Musikpublizistik 1945-1969: eine semantische Reflexion .....            | 262 |