

Contents

Acknowledgements

viii

Introduction

1

1 Freedom of religion or belief

4

1. The meaning of 'religion' and 'belief' in international law 4

Article 18 4

1.1. Defining 'religion' and 'belief' 5

1.2. Pluralism as the guiding principle 10

2. ICCPR Article 18 and the plurality of religion and belief 15

2.1. Freedom to have or adopt a religion or belief 15

2.2. Freedom to manifest religion or belief 19

2.3. Freedom from coercion 21

3. Limitations to manifestations 22

3.1. Fewer limitations to article 18 than for other rights 23

3.2. Limitations favour religion over non-religion 24

3.3. Non-derogability of article 18 27

4. Conclusion: The limits of article 18 to protect freedom from religion 30

2 The hierarchy of religion and belief

32

1. Established, major religions at the top of the hierarchy 32

1.1. High influence of religious non-state actors 33

1.2. Weak regulation of religious non-state actors 39

2. New, unusual or emerging religions and beliefs 43

2.1. High persecution of new or 'unusual' religions 44

2.2. Low protection of new or 'unusual' religions 47

3. Non-religion and atheism at the bottom of the hierarchy 50

3.1. High persecution of non-believers and atheists 50

3.2. Low protection of non-believers and atheists 54

4. Conclusion: Non-religious and atheist rights-holders neglected 59

3	Freedom from proselytism	62
1.	Proselytism as a manifestation of religion	63
1.1.	Advantage of proselytism to major religions	64
1.2.	Disadvantage of non-proselytising religions and beliefs	66
1.3.	Non-applicability of right to proselytise to non-religious rights-holders	68
2.	Forms of improper coercion	69
2.1.	Proselytism through threats or violence	71
2.2.	Proselytism through exploitation of circumstance	78
2.3.	Proselytism through exposure to religious symbols	81
3.	Determining where coercion undermines choice	83
3.1.	Attributes of the source and target of proselytism	83
3.2.	Location and nature of proselytism	85
3.3.	Context of the proselytism	87
4.	Conclusion: The need to prioritise rights over religions	88
4	Freedom from hate	90
1.	Article 20 and hate speech in the name of religion	90
2.	Pro-religious bias of article 20	96
2.1.	Hatred in the name of religion	99
2.2.	Homophobia: Prohibited discrimination or a religious right?	103
3.	Weak protection of non-believers and atheists from hate speech	109
4.	Conclusion: Curtailing incitement of violence against atheists	113
5	Freedom from parents	115
1.	Balancing rights of parents and children	116
1.1.	The rights and liberties of parents over their children	117
1.2.	The rights and evolving capacities of the child	119
2.	Freedom from coercive religious or moral education	124
2.1.	The liberties of the parent	126
2.2.	The best interests of the child	128
3.	Freedom from religious circumcision	129
3.1.	The child's right to health	130
3.2.	The child's freedom of religion and belief	137
4.	Conclusion: The need to protect children from their parents	141

6	Conclusion	143
1.	Indefensibility of pro-religious bias of human rights law	143
1.1.	Relevance of the inherent value of religion and belief	143
1.2.	Relevance of religion or belief in social life	148
2.	Freedom from religion as the measure of religious freedom	154
2.1.	Pluralism as the guiding principle	154
2.2.	Freedom from religion as the litmus test	157
	Bibliography	160
	Index	180