

Contents

Introduction	vii
1. Competitive Courtship and Aesthetic Judgment/Choice: Darwin's Model of the Arts	1
1. The "Sense of Beauty": Darwin's General Assumptions regarding Aesthetic Virtues and Aesthetic Judgment	2
2. Darwin's Visual Aesthetics: From the Theory of Bodily "Ornaments" to the Human Visual Arts	16
2.1 Naked Skin as the Prime Ornament of Human Appearance	16
2.2 The Human Arts of Self-Painting, Self-Decoration, and Self-(De)formation	23
2.3 Seeing the Invisible: From Naked Skin to Aesthetic Imagination	28
3. Darwin's Theory of Music and Rhetoric	30
3.1 Birds, Mammals, and Humans as Sexual "Singers"	30
3.2 Darwin's Theory of Music-Elicited Emotions	42
3.3 The Heritage of Sexual Proto-Music in Language, Rhetoric, and Literature	50
4. Peacocks/Songbirds and Human Artists: Merits and Limits of the Parallel	57
2. The Arts as Promoters of Social Cooperation and Cohesion	65
1. The Arts as Costly, Competitive Signals, and the "Motherese" Hypothesis	66
2. Artful Multimedia Performances as Costly Practices of "Courting" Preferred Allies?	68

3. Joint Music Making and Multimedia Performances as Promoters of Intragroup Cooperation/Cohesion	71
4. The Multiple Blends of Competitive and Cooperative Effects of the Arts	77
3. Engagement in the Arts as Ontogenetic Self-(Trans-)Formation	80
4. A Cooptation Model of the Evolution of the Human Arts: When "Sense of Beauty," Play Behavior, Technology, and Symbolic Cognition Join Forces	84
1. The "Sense of Beauty"	85
2. Sexual Courtship, Play, and the Arts	86
3. Technology and the Arts	92
4. Symbolic Cognition/Language and the Arts	104
4.1 Transcending the Here and Now: Imagination and Narrativity	105
4.2 Tolerance for and Competence in Ambiguities and Indeterminacies	112
4.3 The Risks and Potentials of Deception and Self-Delusion	115
5. The Four Coopted Adaptations in Interaction	117
Bibliography	121
Index	158