PREFACE TO THE PAPER EDITION	xi
PREFACE	xxv
INTRODUCTION	1
1. Things, Logic, and Experiencing	1
2. A Description of Experiencing	10
3. The Demands of Existentialism and of Logical Positivism Can be Included	16
4. Preconceptual Experiencing Is the Basic Factor to Which Are Due the Many Current Calls for a New Methodology in the Behavioral Sciences	21
5. The Preconceptual Character of Experiencing	24
6. Content Concepts Are Ineffective to Organize Observations	29
7. Illustrations in the Area of Psychotherapy	34
I THE PROBLEM OF EXPERIENCED MEANING	44
[A] Statement of the Problem	44
[B] A Few Problems That Lead to the Problem of Experienced Meaning	48
1. Method in Psychology	48
2. Problems in Psychology	51
3. Experience as a Source of Meaning	55
4. The Dependence of Intellect	55
[C] Certain Related Issues That Are Not Involved in the Present Task	56
1. The Validity of Cognition	57
	v

Contents	vi
2. The Causation of Cognition	59
3. Example and Discussion of the Separation of the Present Problem from These Problems	60
II DEMONSTRATION THAT FELT MEANING FUNCTIONS IN COGNITION	63
Introduction	63
[A] Demonstration That Felt Meaning Occurs in All Cases of Human Cognition	65
1. Thought	65
2. Observation	67
3. Action	68
4. Speech	69
5. Art, Religion, Emotion, Persons	70
[B] Demonstration That Felt Meaning Performs Specific Functions Necessary in Cognition, Other than the Experienced or Associated Parallel Side of Cognition	71
1. Problem Solving	71
2. Remembering or Articulating	75
3. Psychotherapy	77
III HOW FELT MEANING FUNCTIONS	90
[A] Parallel Functional Relationships of Felt Meaning in Cognition	91
1. Direct Reference	91
2. Recognition	100
3. Explication	106
Summary	110
[B] Creative Functional Relationships ("Specific," "Nonparallel")	111
1. Metaphor	113
2. Comprehension	117
3. Relevance	127
4. Circumlocution	134

IV CHARACTERISTICS OF EXPERIENCED MEANING AS FUNCTIONING IN NEW SYMBOLIZATION	138
[A] Experienced Meaning Is Not Determined by Logical Relationships, But Does Not Function Arbitrarily	140
1. Reversal of the Usual Philosophic Procedure	140
2. What Determines the Creation of Meanings?	144
Summary	147
[B] Characteristics of Experienced Meaning as Functioning in New Symbolization	148
Introduction	148
1. The Non-numerical Character of Experience	151
2. The "Multischematic" Character of Experience	153
3. Meanings Are Likenesses and Vice Versa	159
4. Relation or Relata	160
5. Multiplicity	160
6. Any Concept Is One of Many	163
7. Any Experienced Meaning Can (Partly) Schematize (Creatively Determine) a New Aspect of Another Experienced Meaning	164
8. Every Experience Is Capable of Having an Aspect Schematized by Any Other Experience	167
9. Creative Regress	171
V THE PRINCIPLE OF UNIVERSALS: "IOFI"	173
Introduction	173
1. Methodological Questions Can Refer to the Kind of Experiencing Involved in a Meaning and Its Role in Discourse	175
2. Specifying Experiencing as an Instance of Itself	182
3. Reflexivity: Experiencing as an "Iofi" Is Meaning	184
4. Applicability of "Iofi"	187
5. "Iofi" Is the Principle of the Functional Relationships	192

6. An Optional Distinction Among the Functional Relationships Applied to "Iofi" and to Relativity	193
7. "Iofi," Relativity, and an Exemplary Issue Mutually Applied to Each Other	197
8. Reflexivity	200
9. The "Iofi" Principle and Traditional Philosophy	202
VI APPLICATION IN PHILOSOPHY	205
[A] Principles of Philosophic Method as Implied by Relativity	206
1. Countless Possible Meanings	208
2. Determinacy	208
3. Optional Formulation	209
4. Open Schemes	209
5. Evaluation of Schemes	211
6. The Relativity of All Terms	212
7. Functional Equality	214
8. Logical Form	216
[B] Conclusions Regarding Certain Philosophic Problems	219
VII APPLICATION TO PSYCHOLOGICAL THEORY AND RESEARCH	226
[A] Terms That Refer to Experiencing	227
Introduction	227
1. The Task: To Make Scientific Reference to Experiencing Possible	228
2. Observations of the Function of Experiencing	230
3. How "Experiencing" Can Be Known and Defined (Some Definitions of Terms)	236
[B] Current Issues in the Theory of Psychotherapy	245
1. Degree and Kind of Conceptualization in Therapy	245
2. Experience and "Congruence"	251
3. The Role of Other Kinds of Symbolization	262

Contents	ix
[C] Relationship Between the Proposed Method and Logical Positivism and Operationalism in Psychology	268
1. Prior to the First Positivistic Stage of an Investigation	269
2. At the Stage After Operational Conclusions	271
3. New Forms and Principles of Inquiry	272
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER I	275
Husserl
1. Phenomenological Method	276
2. The Experience of Meaning Can Be Distinguished and Has a Distinct Function in Cognition	276
3. The Experience of Meaning Is Distinguished from Images and from Perceptions	277
4. Meaning Is Experienced as Distinct from Symbolic Thought	279
Sartre	280
Merleau-Ponty	286
I. A. Richards	288
