

Contents

TABLE OF CASES	xi
TABLE OF STATUTES	xii
Introduction: Specialized Justice	1
1. The Benefits and the Costs	7
A. The Quality of the End-Product	7
B. The Efficiency of the Process	16
C. The Acceptability of the Package	19
2. The Criteria	20
A. The General Recipe	20
B. The Specific Ingredients	22
1. Mix of Law, Fact, and Discretion	22
2. Technical Complexity	24
3. Degree of Isolation	26
4. Cohesiveness	27
5. Degree of Repetition	27
6. Degree of Controversy	27
7. Clannishness	28
8. Peculiar Importance of Consistency	28
9. Dynamism	29
10. Logistics: Volume, Time per Case, and Geographic Distribution	30
11. Special Need for Prompt Resolution	31
12. Unique Procedural Needs	32
3. The Models	33
A. The Variables	33
B. The Argument for the Multiple-Speciality Unit	38

Contents

4. The Multiple-Speciality Model in Operation: New Zealand's Administrative Division	43
A. Background	45
B. On Paper and in Practice	51
1. Jurisdiction	51
2. Personnel	58
3. Procedure	66
C. An Appraisal	69
1. Suitability of Subject-Matter: Why Administrative Law?	70
2. Quality of Decisions	74
3. Impact of Low Volumes	75
4. Appointment of Division Members	79
5. Use of Division Members	81
6. Conclusions on the Administrative Division	82
 5. The Inter-Nation Variables	 84
A. Government and Legal System	84
B. Population, Geography, and Demographics	91
 Conclusion	 94
Appendix	96
Bibliography	119
Index	125