

Contents

List of Figures	xi
List of Tables	xii
Acknowledgements	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xv
 Introduction: discourse, hegemony, populism, and the Visegrád Four	 1
Populism and the Visegrád Four: an oft-trodden, yet under-excavated terrain	2
Discourse – hegemony – populism: from concept to analysis	5
Research questions and objectives	7
Structure of the book	9
References	10
 1 Discourse – hegemony – populism: a conceptual horizon	 14
Populism as expression and deviation: objectivist approaches to populism	15
Populism as thin construction: ideational approaches to populism	20
Populism as construction and royal road: post-foundational approaches to populism	26
References	31
 2 Discourse – hegemony – populism: a framework for analysis	 35
Analyzing populism and its conceptual Other(s)	35
Research questions and case selection	43
Source material and selection	46
References	48

3 Populism in the Czech Republic

52

Introduction 52*Historical background: the saga of “the people” from the “people’s camps” to Masaryk to Gottwald* 53*“Your government, people, has returned to you!” The “post-November” imaginary and the anti-communist nationalist populism of the Republicans* 58*The anti-communist nationalist populism of the Rally for the Republic – Republican Party of Czechoslovakia (1990–92)* 62*The “post-November” hegemonic formation (1992–2006)* 69*“People” vs. “politicians” (2010–present): a break in the “post-November” imaginary* 77*The centrist populism of Public Affairs (2010)* 77*ANO: from centrist entrepreneur populism (2011–13) to a centrist populism of “hard work” in power (2014–present)* 83*Dawn of Direct Democracy and Freedom and Direct Democracy (SPD): from neo-liberal nativist populism (2013) to neo-conservative nativist populism (2017)* 90*ANO and SPD as competing populisms (2017)* 94*The liberal populism of the Czech Pirate Party (2013, 2017)* 96*Conclusion and summary* 99*References* 1044 Populism in Hungary

110

Introduction 110*Historical background: the saga of “the people” between 1848, 1956, and 1989* 111*“Hungarianhood” (magyarság) vs. “Hungary” (Magyarország): the divided imaginary of the “system change”* 117*“The prime minister of 15 million Hungarians”: the Hungarian Democratic Forum (MDF) between institutionalism and populist nationalism (1990–93)* 117*The populist nationalisms of the Hungarian Justice and Life Party (1993–2002) and Fidesz (1997, 2002–04)* 121

The national-conservative social populism of Fidesz
(2006–09) 127

The “System of National Cooperation” (NER) as hegemonic formation (2010–present) 134

From “illiberal state” to “Stop Soros”: the illiberal populist nationalism in power of Fidesz (2014–18) 138

Jobbik: between anti-liberal populist nationalism and nationalist populism 142

The nationalist populism of Jobbik (2010, 2014, 2017–18) 145

The left-wing populism of the Dialogue for Hungary –
Hungarian Socialist Party alliance (2018) 153

Conclusion and summary 156

References 160

5 Populism in Poland

164

Introduction 164

Historical background: the saga of “the people” from Endecja and Sanacja to Gomułka 165

Post-“Solidarity” vs. anti-“liberalism”: the divided imaginary of post-1989 transition 172

The anti-liberal left-wing populism of the Union of Labor
(1993, 1997–2000) 174

The anti-liberal nationalist and social populism of the Self-
Defense of the Republic of Poland (2001–05) 182

“Solidaristic Poland” vs. “Liberal Poland”: a break in the post-1989 imaginary 188

The anti-liberal nationalist populism of Law and Justice
(2001–07) 188

The anti-liberal nationalist and social populism of Law and Justice (2007–14, 2019) 198

The anti-clerical liberal populism of Palikot’s Movement
(2010–11) 205

The nationalist anti-party populism of Kukiz’15
(2015) 208

Conclusion and summary 213

References 217

6	Populism in Slovakia	222
	Introduction	222
	Historical background: the saga of “the people” between 1848, 1918, and 1989	223
	Pro- vs. anti-Mečiar: the divided imaginary of post-1989 transition	229
	Between nationalism and populism: the Movement for a Democratic Slovakia (HZDS)	229
	The centrist populism of the Movement for a Democratic Slovakia (2002)	236
	“Just like they stole under Mečiar, so they steal under Dzurinda”: a break in the post-1989 imaginary	239
	The centrist populism of the early Smer (1999–2002)	239
	The conservative anti-party populism of Ordinary People and Independent Personalities (2012–present)	245
	The nativist entrepreneur populism of Sme Rodina (2016–present)	254
	Between ethno-nationalist reductionism and populism: Kotleba – People’s Party Our Slovakia (2016–present)	261
	Conclusion and summary	263
	References	267
7	Conclusions: discourse, hegemony, and populism after ’89	271
	Patterns of populism: hegemonic and counter-hegemonic, centrist, conservative, liberal, nationalist, nativist, social	272
	Populism as hegemonic and counter-hegemonic logic: from the first to the fourth generation	272
	Centrist, conservative, liberal, nationalist, nativist, social populisms	282
	Final remarks and outlook	286
	References	288
	Bibliography	290
	Index	312