

Contents

Introduction	1
Three illustrative examples	2
Definitions of discourse analysis	6
1. Foundations of discourse analysis	9
Chomsky and psychology	9
Words as deeds: speech act theory	14
'Doing' talking: ethnomethodology	18
Signs of structure: semiology	24
Social study of language	28
Problems and limitations	29
2. Unfolding discourse analysis	32
Some major components of discourse analysis	32
Variable discourse and traditional social psychology	36
The suppression of account variability	39
Attitudes in discourse	43
Beyond attitudes	53
3. Making rules work	56
The ethogenic perspective	56
Problems with ethogenics	61
Discourse analysis and the study of scientists' rules	64
Testability, soccer violence and the analysis of rules	71
4. Accounts in sequence	74
Accounts and social psychology	74
Conversation analysis and accounts	80
Accounts in court	87
Discourse and accounts	93
5. Speaking subjects	95
Traditional images of the self	95
Towards a new conception of the subject	101
The ideological self	108
Discourse analysis at work on the self	110
6. Categories in discourse	116
Social psychology and social categories	117
Problems with traditional categorization research	120

Prototypes and variability	122
Motives and membership categories	126
Categories, content and community	132
Categories and the construction of discourse	136
7. From representations to repertoires	138
The theory of social representations	139
Problems with social representations	142
Interpretative repertoires	146
Language, representation and repertoire	155
8. How to analyse discourse	158
Philosophy, sociology and methodology	158
Ten stages in the analysis of discourse	160
Conclusions	175
9. Controversial topics and future directions	177
Discourse and the world 'under the skull'	177
Discourse and the world 'out there'	180
Discourse and reflexivity	182
The development of discourse analysis	184
Appendix: transcription notation	188
References	190
Index	205