

Contents

Introduction	xvii
--------------------	------

1 Privacy Cases: Being Suborned 1

Security Through Trust	1
The Historic Trust Model Creates Oppression	2
Privately Trustful	2
Disarmed Forces	4
Missed Application	5
Harmfully Ever After	7
Open Air	8
Artifice Exemplar	9

2 Privacy Cases: Government/National Intelligence/Military Confidentiality 11

National Security vs. Governmental Security	12
A Government Is Not a Nation	14
Rationales	15
Rationale: Direct Advantage	15
Rationale: Overcome Other Secrecy	19
Rationale: Military Advantage	25
Rationale: Hidden Diplomacy	30
Rationale: Protecting Personal Privacy	31
Rationale: Emergency Powers	31
No Net Benefit; Possible Net Negative	33
Citizenry at Risk	33
Bad Public Policy	35
The Secret Police State	36

3	Privacy and Personal Protection	39
	Your Exposure	40
	Check Yourself	42
	Take Your Medicine	44
	The Scene of the Crime	46
	You're a Celebrity	49
4	A Case Against Privacy: An End to Shame	51
	Cultural Shame	54
	Location, Location, Location	55
	Beneficial Shame, Which Might Be Harmful	57
	Hypocrisy for Thee	59
5	A Case Against Privacy: Better Policy/Practices	61
	Policy Based on Bad Data: US Police and Dogs	61
	Policy Based on Bad Data: The DSM	64
	Bad Data Derived from Concern for Privacy: Suicide	68
	Counting Suicides	69
	Motivation and Reaction	72
	Famous Suicide	74
	Jumping on Guns and Bandwagons	76
6	A (Bad) Solution: Regulation	81
	Regulation = Destruction	83
	Legitimate Fear of the Private Sector	88
	Exceptions to the Rules	90
	Chill Out	92
	Power Outage	98
	Top Cover	104
	Now You See It	110

The Government Would Never Lie to Its Overseers, Right?	112
Stressing It	112
7 A Good Solution: Ubiquity of Access	115
If Everybody Knows Everything, Nobody Has an Advantage . . .	116
Atomicity, Again	118
An End to Crime?	119
First Fatal Flaw	121
Other Fatal Flaws	122
Final Fatal Flaw	123
An End to the Need for Crime?	124
De-Corrupting. Dis-Corrupting? Anti-Corruption?
Something Like That	127
An End to Sabotage?	129
Power Imbalance	130
An End to Laws?	132
Lower Costs	133
An End to Hypocrisy	134
An End to Bad Policy	135
Speaking of Accurate Portrayals of Humanity	140
Vestigial Shame	142
Vestiges in Action	144
8 The Upshot	149
Science Fiction	150
Public Perception	153
Other Visions	155
Molecular Level	160
Busting My Hump	162
Style Over Substance	162
The Added Value of the Long Reach	163
Unchill	164

Troll Toll?	165
The Threat of Erasure	169
Get Out	170
On the Genetic Level	171
Still Scared	173
Index.	175