

Contents

Foreword by Gabriel Eckstein	vii
Preface	ix
List of abbreviations	xi
Table of cases	xiii
Table of legislation	xiv
1 Introduction	1
2 Transboundary aquifers	6
2.1 What is an aquifer?	6
2.2 What is a transboundary aquifer?	13
2.3 Transboundary aquifers, climate change and sustainable development	20
3 The emergence of an international law of transboundary aquifers	28
3.1 Early scholarly efforts	29
3.2 The United Nations Watercourses Convention	34
3.3 The ILC Draft Articles on the Law of Transboundary Aquifers	40
3.4 The UNECE Water Convention and Model Provisions on Transboundary Groundwaters	51
4 The normative content of the international law of transboundary aquifers	56
4.1 Equitable and reasonable utilisation and the obligation not to cause significant harm	57
4.2 Sovereignty, cooperation and management	74
4.3 Procedural obligations	90
4.4 Protection and preservation	101

5	The future of the international law of transboundary aquifers, soft law and customary international law	108
5.1	The future format of the ILC Draft Articles on the Law of Transboundary Aquifers	109
5.2	The soft legal nature of the international law of transboundary aquifers	116
5.3	The international law of transboundary aquifers and customary international law	122
6	Transboundary aquifer agreements and arrangements	136
6.1	Agreements or arrangements?	138
6.2	The normative content of transboundary aquifer agreements and arrangements	149
6.3	The implementation landscape	163
6.4	An emerging pattern	168
7	Conclusion	171
	Bibliography	173
	Index	184