

Contents

	page
Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vii
Contributors	xiii
1 Introduction: issues and problems in the psychology of sentencing
DONALD C. PENNINGTON AND SALLY LLOYD-BOSTOCK	1
Psychology of decision making	1
Understanding sentencing disparity	5
Researching the system	7
PART I ISSUES AND PROBLEMS
2 Sentencing: some current questions
DAVID A. THOMAS	13
3 Disentangling disparity
ANDREW ASHWORTH	24
The concept of disparity	24
Disparity identified – so what?	27
Disparity and guideline systems	27
Elements in a decision-making model for sentencing	30
Some concluding suggestions	32
4 Psychology and sentencing
KEN PEASE	36
Sentencing principle and sentencing practice	36
The cafeteria and the menu	37
Immediate possibilities	40
5 Some methodological problems in sentencing research
NIGEL LEMON AND ROD BOND	46
Definition of the problem	46

Experimental and quasi-experimental designs	49
The use of simulations	50
Values in socio-legal research	51

PART II PRACTITIONERS' VIEWS

6 The practical problems of the sentencer
HIS HONOUR JUDGE R.K. COOKE	57
7 Consistently achieving our sentencing aims
DOUGLAS ACRES	61
8 Consistency in sentencing
ALEC SAMUELS	66
The diversity of aims and options	66
Guidance for judges and magistrates	67
Information and training	71
Indirect sentencing roles	72
Reform	74

PART III INFLUENCES ON THE SENTENCER

9 Who controls sentencing? Influences on the sentencer
JOANNA SHAPLAND	77
The influence of other participants	81
The effects on sentencers	84
Implications	85
10 The probation officer's dilemma: preparing social inquiry reports
COLIN ROBERTS	88
Providing alternatives to custody through social inquiry reports	89
Unintended consequences of probation supervision on subsequent criminal careers	92
Sentencers' concerns with 'credibility' and 'realism'	93
Probation policy and management expectations	94
The application of decision theory to some of these dilemmas	95
11 The logic of gender in psychiatric reports to the courts
HILARY ALLEN	104
Locating the logic	104
'Just deserts': a gendered morality	106
The damaged and the damaging: reflections on two cases	108
Treatment and treatability: a gendered therapeutics	111

Gender and dangerousness	112
Gender and the meaning of disorders	113
 12 Attitudes to punishment: findings from the British Crime Survey
MIKE HOUGH, DAVID MOXON AND HELEN LEWIS	117
Background	117
Findings from the British Crime Survey	118
Summary and conclusions	127
 PART IV MODELS OF SENTENCING DECISION MAKING
 13 An evaluation of judicial models for sentencing guidelines
AUSTIN LOVEGROVE	133
The problem of quantifying the tariff	133
Current quantitative approaches to sentencing	135
An alternative strategy for quantifying the tariff	139
 14 Simple decision making
PETRUS VAN DUYNE	143
Introduction	143
Harmonisation in the Netherlands	144
Research in judicial decision making	145
Developing decision instruments	152
Prospects for structured decision making	155
 15 The implications of sentencing for the criminal justice system
PATRICIA MORGAN, DAVID MOXON AND ROGER TARLING	159
Interdependence and the systems concept	159
The criminal justice system model	164
Summary	169
 16 Procedures with truants: a third controlled trial
IAN BERG, IMOGEN BROWN, ALISON GOODWIN, ROY HULLIN AND RALPH McGUIRE	171
Introduction	171
The randomly controlled trial	173
Closing comments	177

PART V RESEARCHING THE SENTENCER

 17 An attributional approach to explaining sentencing disparity
BRIAN EWART AND DONALD C. PENNINGTON	181
Introduction	181

Weiner's attribution model	182
Experimental study	184
Field study	186
Discussion	190
 18 Sentencing by English magistrates as a human process
ANDREAS KAPARDIS	193
Sentencer characteristics	194
Individual versus bench decisions	200
Conclusions and discussion	200
 19 Magistrates' and court clerks' sentencing behaviour: an experimental study
CLAIRE CORBETT	204
Introduction	204
Method	205
Results and discussion	206
Conclusion	214
 Author index	217
Subject index	221
Case index	228